Senate Gets Bills Calling For Federal, D. C. Raises

Retroactive Wage Increases of $330 And $650 Proposed For Various Groups

Senate Civil Service leaders joined yesterday in a bipartisan move for legislation to boost the pay of Federal and District workers in these ways:

1. Give all District classified employes—plus school teachers, firemen, policemen and members of the Park and White House Police—a $330 annual pay increase retroactive to last July.

2. Give all Federal and District classified employes, plus postal employes, a $650 annual pay boost retroactive to January 1 of this year.

Sponsors Listed

To accomplish these purposes, two bills were introduced in the Senate by Senators Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee; William Langer (R., N. Dak.), former chairman of the committee; Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) and Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.).

One bill applies to postal employes. The other covers Federal classified and the District employes.

Senator Johnston said the bill did not apply the proposed new $650 pay raise to District police, firemen and teachers, because adjustment of their salaries would have to be treated in separate legislation to be handled by the District Committee.

But, said Johnson, the bills did offer the retroactive $330 pay raise to the various groups of District employes because it was felt that priority should be given to correcting the pay inequity that left them out in the cold last year.

Classified District employes, who normally get the same raises Federal workers receive and in the same legislation, were dropped from the pay-raise bill last year as result of a Senate battle over a District sales tax.

On the same count, raises for other District employes also were sidetracked.

Johnston said he felt, too, if there are going to be long hearings on the Federal pay-increase issue, a separate bill should be expedited first to give retroactive District pay raises.

Radar Guides AF Plane to Safe Landing

Patuxent, Md., Jan. 18 (AP).—An Air Force transport with 30 cadets aboard and its gas tanks running dry, was guided into the naval air station here tonight by radar.

Maj. Gerald McNulty of Painesville, Ohio, the pilot, said he landed the C-82 with "just enough gas" left.

McNulty said he had left Bergstrom Field at Austin, Tex., to transport the Air Force Cadets to Bolling Field, Washington, for President Truman's Inauguration.

After clearing the Appalachian mountains, the pilot said the weather closed in and at the same time the plane's regulation radio equipment failed. The Military Flight Service, on the ground, alerted all services and police in several States at 6:30 p. m.

Major McNulty said he continued to circle the Washington area while awaiting help from the ground, his gas meanwhile running low.

The Patuxent Naval ground controlled approach radar finally located the plane over Cambridge, Md., about 50 miles southeast of Washington. The plane by then had rigged up partial voice radio communication and was brought in to Patuxent at 9:35 p. m.

Major McNulty said the plane had been in the air nearly 11 hours, about four hours beyond its estimated time of arrival at Bolling Field.

Besides the pilot, there were four men in the crew.

Confirmation Of Acheson Voted, 83-6

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate confirmed Dean Acheson as Secretary of State yesterday by an overwhelming 83-to-6 vote.

The six who voted "no," all Republicans, were Senators Styles Bridges (N. H.), Homer Capehart (Ind.), William E. Jenner (Ind.), William F. Knowland (Calif.), William Langer (N. Dak.) and Kenneth Wherry (Nebr.).

Confirmation followed a two-hour debate in which three of Acheson's opponents flung long-familiar charges against him.

Capehart denounced him as a "Wall Streeter," Jenner held him a spokesman of an "absurd" American foreign policy, and Wherry, who has had his knife sharpened for Acheson for years, attacked him as one of the architects of UNRRA, of the so-called Morgenthau Plan for Germany and of American policy in Japan and China.

"If you go through this country and talk to the people," cried Wherry, "you will find it is common knowledge that Mr. Acheson has been an appeaser of Russia." This was the charge which Acheson himself described, at a public hearing on January 8, as "so incredible" that not even "disinterested malevolence" could have thought it up.

There was no surprise in the opposition votes of Wherry, Jenner, Capehart or of Langer, who has constantly fought against recent American foreign policy.

The real surprises were the "no" votes of Bridges and Knowland, both of whom supported the Marshall Plan and other major foreign policy decisions. Bridges' vote was believed to be a protest against the State Department's policies in China; Knowland's was a puzzle.

Almost as surprising were the votes cast for Acheson by Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.), a

Foster to Get Separate Trial For Conspiracy

Court Rejects Appeal To Postpone Cases of 11 Other Communists

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—William Z. Foster, aging and ailing head of American Communists, will be tried on conspiracy charges separately from 11 other indicted party leaders, a Federal judge ruled today.

At the same time, Judge Harold R. Medina denied applications for a postponement of the trial of the 11 others, members of the party's national board.

Defense attorneys asked delays ranging from 15 to 90 days, contending they had not had enough time to prepare their case.

"I will not only not grant a 15-day or 30-day continuance," Medina said, "I will not grant any continuance."

Before he heard arguments on the postponement Medina sent home a panel of 525 prospective jurors and directed them not to report back until Thursday morning.

Later defense counsel applied to Chief Federal Judge John C. Knox to hear their petition that a judge not of the Southern Federal District of New York sit to hear their challenge of the Federal jury system and the way of picking panels in the district.

The defense counsel said the Communist Party filed affidavits charging that the jury system in the Southern District "systematically excludes the poor, Negroes, Jews, women and members of minority parties."

Defense counsel were granted 10 minutes to see Knox. The attorneys, however, did not get in to see him.

Medina called them back into the courtroom after the 10-minute recess and said Knox had refused to consider the motion.

Reds Massing For Assault On Peiping

Shanghai, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—The Communists brought up troops and artillery from captured Tientsin for an all-out assault on Peiping today and appeared to have opened their long-expected drive on Hankow.

Nanking, seat of the Nationalist government, was plunged into gloom when it became known that Russia had joined the United States, Britain and France in refusing China's request for mediation of the civil war. The cabinet was reported to favor opening peace talks with the Communists despite harshness of the Communist terms.

A truckload of Peiping civic leaders, brandishing a white flag, drove out of the city's west gate today to meet Communist Gen. Yeh Chien-ying in hopes of obtaining a truce. Neutral quarters expected Yeh to demand the surrender of the defending armies.

Ultimatum Unconfirmed

Nationalist military sources in Peiping refused to confirm or deny that they had received a 48-hour surrender ultimatum.

Peiping reports said the Communists brought "large numbers" of men and artillery to Fentai, just south of Peiping.

The Communist radio today claimed the capture of Siangyang, Yanchen and the former government airbase of Laohokao, in a triangular area 180 miles northwest of Hankow. Large Red forces have marked time in the area for nearly a year, awaiting the signal to move toward Hankow through lake country which would be almost impossible to defend.

Refugees Flock to Nanking

Reports from Nanking said most of the city expected the arrival of Gen. Chen Yi's Red forces on the banks of the Yangtze at any hour. Thousands of refugees, including soldiers from scattered army units, crossed the river into Nanking. Government officials were leaving the city in a steady stream aboard "dispersal trains."

Usually reliable Nanking sources said Premier Sun Fo's inner cabinet favored opening peace talks with the Communists despite the harshness of Mao Tse-tung's conditions. The decision was expected to be conveyed to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek today.

Bruce Reported Resigning From ECA Deputy Post

Howard Bruce, deputy administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration, was reported last night in ECA circles to have submitted his resignation, effective January 31, although Paul G. Hoffman, the administrator, has not given up hope of persuading him to continue on the job a while longer.

In his letter, understood to have been submitted last month, Bruce is understood to have pointed out that he had taken the job with the understanding that he would be free to retire to private business at the turn of the year.

Hoffman is said to be particularly anxious to have Bruce stay with ECA, at least until it has presented to Congress its case for more than five billion dollars of new appropriations to round out the current fiscal year programs.

Vote in Senate May Reduce D. C. Charity Take $75,000

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senate Republicans formed tight ranks with half a dozen Democrats yesterday and blocked passage of a bill to exempt inaugural events tickets from the Federal amusement tax.

The unexpected action spelled a tax bill against the inaugural ticket sales that may trim as much as $75,000 from the total take. Profits were to have gone to charity, with distribution through the Community Chest.

Inaugural event sponsors said they hoped the Senate action would not work a hardship on local business groups that have put up $227,000 to underwrite expenses.

The Senate voting lineup spelled endless potential trouble for the new Truman Administration's legislative program.

The voting demonstrated that when Republican lines hold firm, and the Democrats break ranks, the Administration does not control the Senate, despite the paper lineup of 54 Democrats to 42 Republicans.

Observers pointed out the voting pattern of yesterday would not necessarily occur on every Administration measure. The early attempt of Senate Republican "Young Turks" to upset the leadership of Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) foreshadowed the likelihood of later splits in the minority party on major legislation.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), Finance Committee chairman who led the drive to pass the tax exemption bill, said he could not account for the solid Republican opposition. He said the Republicans had made an issue of a completely issueless bill.

It was the first time Senate Republicans had made a serious show of their legislative force in the new Congress. House Republicans in an earlier alignment with some Southern Democrats had failed to beat down the Administration

'Nerve Center' Planned For Special Services

A "nerve center" for all special services dealing with Thursday's Inaugural ceremonies will be established at the United States Information Building, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., William Armstrong, chairman of all special services, announced last night.

Armstrong said that any information pertaining to grandstands, seats, ushers, the concessions and first aid will be handled at the center beginning at 7 a. m. Thursday. Its telephone number will be Republic 5050. He asked that the public NOT call Inaugural Headquarters at the Tariff Building.

3 More Added To Delegation Of Governors

By The Associated Press

Three more State Governors, with escorting parties, arrived in the Capital yesterday for the Inauguration.

Headed by Gov. Roy J. Turner, 237 Oklahomans came by special train and registered at the Annapolis Hotel.

Col. John F. Byrd of Oklahoma City was assigned by the Army to be military aide to Governor Turner while he is in Washington.

Governor Turner is chairman of the Truman-Barkley Club, and presided last night at the dinner at which President and Mrs. Truman were honored.

The University of Oklahoma Alumni scheduled a luncheon at the Annapolis Hotel for visiting alumni.

The Oklahoma State Society will give a breakfast for the Governor, visiting Oklahomans and the congressional delegation at the Mayflower this morning.

Stars for Gala Concert Due Here Today

Hollywood and Broadway luminaries will race into Washington today by plane, train and car for the Inaugural Gala Concert tonight in the National Guard Armory.

President Truman and his family will be among the 5300 spectators at the 21-variety-act show, expected to be the "greatest one-night stand" ever staged in the Capital City.

More than 700 stage, screen, radio, opera and concert performers will appear on the program, which starts at 8:30 p. m. All seats were sold out many days ago.

Directors of the extravaganza last night revealed that "three surprise features have been designed for the President's pleasure."

Climax of the show will be a finale blending the music of some 525 musicians, including Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force Bands. Other bands participating will be those of Lionel Hampton, Phil Spitalny and Sam Jack Kaufman.

Crews of workmen continued working late into the night yesterday readying a huge stage, 56 feet wide and 40 feet deep, erected at the south end of the Armory.

As workmen scurried about the concave auditorium, 26 lovelies from the Ted Shane model agency were drilled in their routines as usherettes at tonight's performance.

The production will be in two parts, with a 20 minute intermission. First half of the show, which will open with a "special production number" presented, for the President's amusement, by more than 100 persons, will include:

Spitalny and his All Girl Orchestra, Joan Davis, Tony and

2500 Hail President at $15 Banquet

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman last night called on all Americans to back his efforts to "get the peace in the world we need and . . . are going to have."

The Chief Executive, who is to take the oath for a full, four-year term Thursday, spoke off the cuff before an unsegregated gathering at a dinner of the National Truman-Barkley Club in the Mayflower.

It was a high-spirited affair marked by delighted whoops when Mr. Truman walked into the ballroom amid the strains of "I'm Just Wild About Harry," and also by cries of "Amen!" when the oratory took a partisan turn.

Mr. Truman appealed to the faithful in the Truman-Barkley Club not to let their organization go out of existence.

"Keep it alive," he said.

He went on to add that the country was going to need a cooperative Congress just as badly in 1950 as it needs one now.

"We don't want to elect another Eightieth Congress in 1950," he said of the Republican-dominated body he excoriated all over the land in the recent campaign. "It's up to you."

The dinner, first in a whirl of shindigs that will mark the 1949 Inauguration, was attended by 2500 who paid $15 a plate. The ballroom couldn't hold them all, and they overflowed into the corridor and four other Mayflower dining rooms.

Orchids, mink and champagne abounded and bespoke a prosperity that was not always apparent

Bill Is Signed Giving U.S. Employes Two Extra Days Off

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

The population of Washington swelled by at least 100,000 persons yesterday as the main wave of visitors started rolling on the Capital to witness President Truman's Inauguration Thursday.

The Weather Bureau last night repeated an earlier forecast that Thursday will be "windy, cold and rather cloudy weather, with no precipitation in sight."

This outlook would make the day of President Truman's Inauguration resemble yesterday, weatherwise, when the thermometer fluctuated between 43 and 47 degrees.

High of 40 Expected

Observers at National Airport said Thursday's high temperature should be about 40 degrees, with low around 34. A threatening cold air mass sweeping southeastward from Canada, which should bring rain today, is a safe bet to spend itself before tomorrow, the bureau said.

Traffic engineers made unofficial estimates of yesterday's rise in downtown activity, placing vehicular traffic at about 10 per cent greater than normal and that of pedestrians about 15 per cent.

On a normal day, there are approximately 800,000 persons who roam the area bounded by 7th, 15th sts., Pennsylvania and New York aves. nw. At the same time, some 100,000 vehicles are squeezed into the same area, according to traffic officials. Officials agreed that 100,000 additional persons would be a conservative estimate.

Observers have estimated throngs which will see all or part of the formal launching of President Truman's "fair deal" will number between 750,000 and a million persons.

Holiday Bill Signed

A sizable part of the crowd will be made up of Government workers in the metropolitan area. The President signed the bill giving Government workers Thursday and Friday off for a four-day weekend.

Hundreds of spectators will watch the 2½-hour Inaugural Parade from buildings lining Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. Spokesmen for the Raleigh, Willard and Washington Hotels—all of which afford such vantage points—said outside rooms were fully occupied yesterday. Many had been reserved as early as June of last year.

Notices appeared on bulletin boards of business houses and Government buildings near the route of march, outlining plans for accommodating spectators.

The parade will descend from Capitol Hill at 1:30 p. m., follow-

Inquiry Indicates Death Of Millionaire Was Accident

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP).—Officers leaned toward an accidental death theory today in the mysterious plantation trail shooting of a 27-year-old heir to a banking fortune.

State Attorney William D. Hopkins said the death of socialite Grenville Baker of New York, whose grandfather amassed a 100 million dollar fortune on Wall Street "doesn't look like murder."

Young Baker was found dying of a pistol bullet wound through the head early yesterday shortly after his jeep wrecked. He had been riding in the moonlight along a lonely dirt road, with pretty Thelma Griffin, a young divorced tavern car hop, who had met him only a few hours before at a night club.

The State attorney said "it is very possible" that the discharge of the pistol was accidental. He emphasized, however, that a suicide theory has not been discarded. A coroner's jury last night ruled that Baker was killed by a pistol held by an unknown party.

The shooting occurred on the vast plantation of Baker's mother where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and other celebrities have been entertained. The plantation, 22 miles north of here is a mecca for hunters.

Officers at first announced Baker had been killed in the jeep accident. Then the gunshot wound was discovered.

The young divorcee shed no light on the shooting, telling officers she was dazed when the jeep hit an embankment.

The socialite arrived Sunday night by plane from the Bahamas and went to the tavern of a friend, Floyd Whiddon, for a midnight supper with the Whiddons and Mrs. Griffin. Then the party went to the home of Baker's mother, Mrs. George F. Baker, sr. The Whiddons and Mrs. Griffin said there was very little drinking.

Early yesterday Baker got out the jeep to show the Whiddons the way back to the main highway. The cars became separated on the winding maze of trails in the estate. Baker fired a shot from a pistol to attract attention of the Whiddons.

The waitress, riding with Baker, put the pistol back in the pocket of his coat which she was wearing—but she reported it wasn't there when she regained her faculties after the accident.

Baker's wife, the former Alicia Grajales of Mexico City, was reported en route to Tallahassee by plane today. He reportedly married her over stern objections of his mother after they met at a New York party in 1941 while he was a Harvard student.

None Ever Electrocuted Here

D. C. Jury Votes Death Penalty For Woman Slayer of Rival

A 38-year-old waitress was convicted of first-degree murder in District Court yesterday.

Unless she wins a reversal in a higher court or executive clemency she will be the first woman ever to be electrocuted in the District.

She is Clotiel Cox of 1311 V st. nw., convicted in the fatal shooting last August 2 of Mrs. Hattie H. Lavender, 54, in the Dunbar Hotel, 2015 15th st. nw.

The defendant, a Negro, was convicted by a jury of six men and six women which included a Negro man and three Negro women. The jury deliberated an hour and a half before returning with the first-degree murder verdict, which carries with it a mandatory death penalty.

Court officials could not remember any other woman convicted of first-degree murder.

District Jail officials after studying jail records dating back to the 1860s could not find a single instance in which a woman was executed under civil law.

However, Mary E. Surratt was hanged here on July 9, 1865, by the military after she had been convicted by a military commission of complicity of the assassination of President Lincoln.

The trial of Miss Cox began Monday before Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut and it was brought out that the fatal shooting resulted from a love triangle.

Third figure in the triangle, it was testified, was Casey Lavender, a petty officer in the Navy.

Witness said that Lavender, after dating both women for two years, finally married Hattie last July 26 in Rockville, Md. He re-

Snow, Ice, Zero Cold

Midcontinent Crippled Anew By Bitter Winter Onslaught

By The Associated Press

Winter slammed the weather-groggy Midcontinent with new crippling punches yesterday.

The heaviest snow and sleet, and worst cold of the winter, lashed parts of the area.

Snow piled up, at an inch-an-hour rate in Kansas City, stalling traffic, closing schools and forcing some business houses to shut down. Kansas City was under a 7-inch blanket, and another 5 inches was forecast.

The sneak storm dumped deep snow on parts of southeast Nebraska, northeast Kansas, northwest Missouri, and part of Oklahoma.

A sleet storm, spearheading a bitter cold wave, spread a sea of ice from Texas northeastward to central Illinois and Indiana. The new storm hit as the section was recovering from the worst ice damage to communication lines in years. About 2 inches of ice was on the ground at Pittsburg, Kans.

The weather bureau in Chicago said the cold wave would send temperatures skidding in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Heavy snow is looked for, accompanying the drop.

The mercury was expected to go to 5 degrees below zero in Chicago by tonight. It dropped to 14 degrees below zero at Butte, Mont., yesterday.

The cold weather along the Pacific seaboard continued as a threat to the California citrus crop.

Standees Get Third Of Parade Route

Standees who wish to view the Inaugural parade Thursday will have a fighting chance to occupy one third of the sidewalk space along the parade route, according to an estimate yesterday by Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller.

Discounting those who can swing from nearby trees, statues and lamp posts, here are places available for the neck-stretching audience who are without Inaugural stand seats:

Both sides of Constitution ave. from the Senate Office Building to 1st st. nw., with the exception of one bleacher stand on the north side of Constitution ave.

Sidewalk space along the north-side of Constitution ave. between First and 2d sts. nw.

The sidewalk space on the entire north side of Constitution ave. between 2d and 5th sts. nw. Stands are built on an embankment behind the sidewalk. Some space is available on the south side of Constitution ave. from 3d st. nw. to 5th st. nw.

Sidewalk space on the entire north side of Pennsylvania ave. between 7th and 8th sts. nw.

Space on the south side of Pennsylvania ave. between 7th and 8th sts. nw.

Both sides of Pennsylvania ave. between 8th and 9th sts. nw.

Entire north side of Pennsylvania ave. between 9th and 12th sts. nw.

Some space on Pennsylvania ave. between 9th and 10th sts. nw., and entire block between 11th and 12th st. nw.

Part of both sides of the avenue between 12th and 14th sts. nw.

Entire north side of the avenue between 14th and 15th sts. nw. Some space on the south side of this block.

Some space on the east side of the Treasury Building along 15th st. nw.

Glee Club Takes Ball Spotlight

The 53-voice Purdue Glee Club was the center of attraction at the Indiana State Society dance in the Shoreham Hotel last night. Resplendent in white and tails, the glee club serenaded the Hoosiers during intermission after singing at the Truman-Barkley dinner in the Mayflower Hotel.

The glee club arrived in Washington yesterday morning as the official representatives of the 51 Land Grant Colleges Association during the Inauguration.

Present at the reception which preceded the Indiana State Society dance were Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Gen. and Mrs. Lewis B. Hershey, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. J. C. Butcher, Senator and Mrs. Homer Capehart, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Coy, Representative and Mrs. Thurman C. Crook, Representative and Mrs. Winfield K. Denton, Representative and Mrs. Charles A. Halleck, Representative Cecil M. Harden, Representative and Mrs. Ralph Harvey and Rear Admiral and Mrs. R. E. Ingersoll.

Also, Representative and Mrs. Andrew Jacobs, Judge and Mrs. John W. Kern, Representative and Mrs. Edward H. Kruse, jr., Representative Ray J. Madden, Representative and Mrs. James E. Noland and Representative and Mrs. Earl Wilson.

Musicians' Union Pays Expenses of 10 Bands

The musicians' union is paying wages and expenses of some 10 bands playing at Inaugural ceremonies, according to James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL) and national music chairman for the inauguration.

"Sincere admiration for a fellow musician and a great fighting President" prompted the action, Petrillo said in a release to the press yesterday.

A round-trip chartered flight from Miami to Washington and back for Xavier Cugat and his band alone will cost upward of $3000, a spokesman added.

The cost will be footed by the union's general treasury, by approval of the international executive board, the spokesman said, noting "we've never done this before."

The National Symphony Orchestra was one of the musical aggregations listed by the union as "on our tab." Also listed were bands of Phil Spitalny, Guy Lombardo, Lionel Hampton, Benny Goodman, Barney Breeskin and a 28-piece-unit recruited from all sections of Missouri for the Inaugural Ball Thursday evening.

Handy Guide to Keep Hosts and Visitors Posted on Inaugural Events, Schedules, Problems

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Here is a handy guide for Washingtonians and out-of-town visitors to use to keep up with inaugural events.

HOUSING

The Inaugural Housing Committee has been promised use of 27,000 beds in Greater Washington for Inaugural Week. The committee has branch offices at 201 S. Washington st., Alexandria, and at College Park, Md. (Varsity Grill), to catch D. C.-bound traffic from north and south on Route 1.

It has offices also at 313 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, and at 7240 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, for automobile passengers using alternate routes into the city. Large signs are directing motorists to stop at these offices and arrange housing before they reach town.

The committee has a desk at Union Station and at each of the bus terminals to catch inbound passengers on public transportation. These visitors are asked to apply directly to the committee at 509 14th st. nw., second floor, for housing accommodations.

Any out-of-town visitors who miss these signals may call Sterling 1555 or Sterling 1595 if a place to stay is needed.

Local hotels state they are booked solid for Inauguration Day. Baltimore hotels yesterday were turning away roomseekers, refusing further reservations until after January 20. The overflow has gone as far as Philadelphia on hotel rooms.

HOLIDAY

All Federal and District government employes in the metropolitan area will have Thursday and Friday as holidays, "except those who may for special public reasons be required to be on duty on such days by the heads of their respective departments."

All public school children in Greater Washington will be given Thursday off from their classes. Public schools in the District, Alexandria and Prince Georges County also will suspend classes Friday. Pupils in Prince Georges County must attend classes February 22 to make up for the extra day.

Banks and most downtown D. C. stores will be closed Thursday, to reopen Friday. Most public places planning inaugural exhibits also will be closed most of Thursday, reopening Friday.

Mail collections will be on a holiday schedule Thursday. None except special deliveries will be made. Limited deliveries will be made Friday. Service will be normal Saturday.

TRAFFIC

Downtown traffic: At midnight tonight, a 24-hour ban against parking in the downtown area and on feeder routes to be congested for the inauguration will go into effect. Any cars found on the street between midnight tonight and mdinight January 20 will be impounded by police.

During the night, steel cables will be strung along Pennsylvania ave. from the Capitol to 21st nw. The following cross streets will be kept open until 10 a. m. January 20, to permit through traffic:

Delaware ave. 3d st., 7th, 9th, 12th, 14th and 15th sts. New York, E. Executive and W. Executive sts., 17th, 18, 19th and 20th sts.

At 10 a. m. January 20, Pennsylvania ave. from 8th st. se. to 23d st. nw. will be closed to all vehicular traffic. Pennsylvania ave. streetcars and buses will suspend service between the Capitol and 18th st. nw. After the parade reaches 7th st. nw., street-car services from 18th st. to Washington Circle will be suspended.

Between 8:30 and 9 a. m. Thursday police will report for duty at all intersection points for traffic within a three-block radius of the parade. They will take over traffic controls, with lights no longer governing car movements. However, no special one-way streets are to be set up in this area, police said yesterday.

Inbound traffic—Greater Washington residents are urged to leave their cars at home and take public transportation to the parade. Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett has stated special Capital Transit Co. buses will meet all incoming traffic at the District line and carry passengers to downtown areas. The terminal points will be established at Western and Wisconsin aves., Alexandria and Rosslyn, and at points where Route 1, 301 and 5 cross the District line.

Radio and telephone communications between Washington, Virginia and Maryland police will be in operation. When traffic gets dense in any approach area, motorists will be directed to alternate routes into the city.

Northbound traffic over the 14th st and Memorial bridges will be directed to parking spots on the grass along the Alexandria and Washington sections of the Mount Vernon hwy. and in available portions of the Pentagon Building parking lot.

INAUGURATION CEREMONY

Begins at 12 noon Thursday on a special platform on the East Portico of the Capitol. All seats sold. About 120,000 can view the ceremony, counting seat-holders and those who stand in unrestricted space on the Capitol Plaza.

Inauguration oath: President Truman will take the inauguration oath with his left hand on two Bibles—a replica of the Gutenberg Bible, furnished by his home town of Independence, Mo., and the White House Bible on which he was sworn in after the death of President Roosevelt. He will receive the oath from Chief Justice of the United States Fred M. Vinson. His inaugural address is expected to last about 15 minutes.

PARADE

Time: The parade is estimated to start at 1 p. m., depending on when President Truman takes his place in the First Division. It is expected to take 2 hours and 15 minutes to pass any given point. Police estimate it will take 45 minutes for the parade to go from New Jersey ave. and B st. se., its point of origin, to the White House reviewing stand. If the schedule is followed, the first unit will reach the White House at 1:45 p. m. and the last unit will pass the reviewing stand at 4 p. m. Parade units will disperse between 19th st. and Washington Circle off Pennsylvania ave.

Local participation: Civilian units marching in the parade have been asked to follow these instructions on formation:

Units from the northeast and northwest sections of the city should follow the best available route to 2d or 3d sts. ne., and then proceed south to the formation area.

Units from the southeast and southwest sections of the city should follow the best available route to Virginia ave. and proceed on Virginia ave. to formation area.

The formation area is located south of Independence ave. between 6th st. se. and 3d st. sw.

Spectators (grandstand ticket-holders and standees): Pedestrians will be allowed to cross Pennsylvania ave. after 10 a. m. if they do not interfere with the parade.

Ticket-holders on the south-side stands will be allowed to cross over from the northside, and vice versa. Persons who do not hold tickets but want to find standing room on the opposite side of the Avenue will be allowed to cross if there is standing room available there.

There are 44,000 grandstand seats, all of which have been sold. Police estimate no more than 250,000 additional persons may stand along the sidelines to watch the parade.

Taxicabs: Emergency cab stands have been set up on both sides of the parade route. Persons arriving by taxi either north or south of Pennsylvania ave. have been asked to dismiss their cabs two or three blocks from the route, to permit taxicabs to be used as fully as possible.

Persons who ask drivers to circle the parade route, either west of 23d st. nw. or east of 8th st. se., will be charged for additional zones if they pass through such zones.

Streetcars and buses: Will maintain most regular routes except those affected by the Pennsylvania ave. ban. Passengers will be able to alight within one to two blocks of the parade route. Temporary bus terminals will be set up within a few blocks both north and south of Pennsylvania ave. to pick up outbound traffic after the parade.

Streetcar and bus service is expected to resume within 15 minutes of the parade end.

PRICES

The Inaugural Committee has put ceiling prices on all food to be dispensed from official concessions during Thursday's parade. Here is the ceiling list: 8-ounce cup of coffee, 15 cents; hot chocolate, 20 cents; hot dogs, 20 cents; soft drinks, 10 cents; lunchbox, containing two sandwiches, fruit and a piece of cake, 65 cents; candy, 10 cents; cigarettes, 25 cents. Cost of sandwiches will vary according to type. Inaugural program, 75 cents.

OTHER MAJOR EVENTS

Inaugural Gala Celebration: Will be held at the National Guard Armory at 8:30 p. m. tonight. All seats have been sold. About 1000 parking places will be provided on an adjoining lot. There will be emergency taxicab loading stands. About 700 artists of radio, screen and stage will provide the entertainment. It will be a black tie affair.

Inaugural Ball: Begins at 10 p. m. Thursday at National Guard Armory. All seats sold. Admission by invitation only. Same parking provisions as for Inaugural Gala. It will be a white tie affair.

Loveland Nominated

President Truman yesterday formally nominated Albert J. Loveland of Iowa to be Undersecretary of Agriculture. Loveland was given a recess appointment to this post last year when Congress was not in session.

Mail Service to Be Reduced In District Thursday, Friday

Mail service in Washington will be curtailed Thursday and Friday because of the Inauguration.

There will be no deliveries Thursday, except special delivery. Collections will be on a holiday schedule.

On Friday there will be one delivery in the morning throughout the city, and two morning deliveries in the business district.

Parcel post will be delivered throughout the city Friday on a regular daily schedule. There will be one morning collection from all boxes, and a regular weekday collection beginning at 3 p. m.

On Saturday, service will be on the regular Saturday schedule.

Except for the Benjamin Franklin Station, 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and the National Airport Station, all stations and branches will be closed Thursday and Friday.

The two stations named will be open 24 hours both days, except from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. Thursday, when they will be closed so employes can see the inaugural parade.

The Main Postoffice, North Capitol st. and Massachusetts ave., will be open continuously both Thursday and Friday.

Railroad Plans To Impose $1 Space Charge

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad plans to impose a service charge of $1 on coach seat reservations on a number of its trains in a move to reduce the number of cancellations.

A railroad spokesman said today that tariffs for the charge have been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, effective February 1.

Other Eastern and Southern railroads reportedly plan similar action.

The plan was first announced last month at an ICC hearing on alleged blackmarket dealings in railroad tickets. At that time, Homes Bannard, then general passenger agent for the Pennsylvania and a spokesman for the New York Central said the roads expected to establish a service charge for coach seat reservations, refundable only when the passenger releases the space in a prescribed period before the time of departure.

Refunds of the service charge will be made if the space is released three days ahead of time of departure to points south of Jacksonville, Fla., and up to midnight the day before departure to other points.

Among trains affected are the Trail Blazer to Chicago, the Jeffersonian to St. Louis, the Southerner to New Orleans, the Champion and the Silver Meteor to Florida.

Warships of 3 Nations To Avoid Antarctica

London, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—Britain, Argentina and Chile have agreed on a "truce" on warship movements in the disputed area of Antarctica north of latitude 60 during the 1948-49 summer season, the Foreign Office announced tonight.

The three powers will not send vessels into the area, because they want to avoid "any misunderstanding in Antarctica which might affect the friendly relations" between them.

Jubilant 575

Missourians Rollick In On 3 Trains

It was Missouri's day at Union Station yesterday as the influx of inaugural visitors began to swell.

And if anyone thinks all the big political figures of the "Show Me" State already had acquired addresses here with the 3-year-old Truman Administration, he should have been down there.

Starting at 1:05 p. m. yesterday, Gov.-elect Forrest Smith's inaugural specials began arriving from St. Louis—34 Pullman cars in all, and in three sections.

The Smith specials brought to town 575 proud, jubilant Missourians, including a former Senator, county judges, State office holders and plain friends of "Our Harry" and his White House family.

Except for the Missouri contingent, the arrival of nine other State delegations, plus eight dapple-gray circus horses to draw an old steam calliope, constituted the day's Inaugural business at Union Station 48 hours before Truman becomes the thirty-second President of the United States.

"At this stage inaugural traffic at the station is a little below normal," said Station Master William H. Marks. He explained that no coach excursion trains are being used this year, owing to a war-created shortage of equipment.

The big influx of train riders will begin this afternoon and Thursday morning, when extra sections of regular trains will start "boiling in," Marks said.

Old Home Week

It was old home week for Missouri Democrats on the station platform when train W-3, the first section of the Governor's special, coasted in.

Former Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri was on hand to greet former Senator Frank Briggs who filled President Truman's unexpired term in the Senate.

Postmaster Barney Dickman of St. Louis was all smiles. Every face was familar to him.

Eugene G. Tighe, former judge of the St. Louis County Court, hopped off the train.

"It was a wonderful time we had aboard last night . . . lots of singing, some good accordion playing . . . and some gentlemanly hoisting," reported the robust former judge and present member of the St. Louis election board.

Frank Napolitano, business manager of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union of St. Louis, came off the train strumming a banjo, followed by his buddies singing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

Missouri State flags were everywhere. And no one was in any hurry to shove off—until the news photographers did.

The third section carrying "all the brass"— Governor and Mrs. Smith, his secretariat, and the Gutenberg Bible for the swearing-in ceremony—arrived over an hour late. The train had pulled a coupling just outside Keyser, W. Va.

"But I'm sure mighty happy to be here for this affair," said the top executive of the 'Boss'" home State.

So was George Wagner, 40, of 1609 K st. nw., a local baker who came to the station to shake Governor Smith's hand and just "generally see the Missouri show."

"This is the place all good Democrats should be. It's the hot spot," said Wagner, who used to live in St. Louis.

On Platform Afternoon

Mrs. Edward S. Murphy of Kansas City, Mo., also was on the platform all afternoon. She had driven here on Monday to see "Mr. Truman take the oath because he is the only man I know who got to be a big man all by himself." Her mother is an old friend and neighbor of the Trumans in Independence, she said.

Another touch of the anything-could-happen-now atmosphere, sweeping Washington, hit Track 27. Uncle Sam, in the person of Arthur St. Clair Davis of Rocky Mount, N. C., waltzed through the station.

Decked in the traditional red, white and blue dress and a bona-fide goatee, he had come to town as guest of Representative Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) to parade with the Tar Heel delegation. Davis is 78 years old, has been a letter carrier 26 years, and is here under sponsorship of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Rocky Mount.

There's just one more contingent yet to show up to round out the Missouri family party—President Truman's World War I Battery D. It debarks at Union Station today at 8:15 a. m.

Citizens to Hear Douglass

Edgar Douglass, assistant superintendent of the Montgomery County school board, will describe the county's school system at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Garrett Park Citizens' Association. The meeting will be held in the Garrett Park Elementary School.

Heavy competition for the 12,000 off-street parking spaces inside the cordon area on Inauguration Day was predicted yesterday by District authorities.

As a result, motorists are being urged to park their cars on the outskirts, close to mass transportation facilities.

Parking rates are generally up, with one large lot charging $2 for 37 hours instead of 35 cents for 24. Some lots are maintaining their daytime rates and upping the tariff sharply after 6 p. m. on Thursday. Others will add a flat increase across the boards.

The two largest parking lots inside the cordon area—behind the Municipal Center at 3d st. and Constitution ave. nw., and behind the District Building at 14th and D sts. nw.—will handle more than 2000 vehicles. Both have been selling reservations and both have hiked their rates.

Motorists will pay $2 to park at the Municipal Center lot, but can enter any time after 6 p. m., Wednesday and stay until 7 a. m. Friday. The usual rate is 35 cents a day. More than 100 extra attendants have been hired. A few reservations were still available there late last night.

Rates Listed

Behind the District Building the rates will be $1 until 6 p. m. and a flat 50 cents after that time. Usual rates are 75 cents during the day and 30 cents at night.

The District Parking Agency will have a special investigator working throughout Inauguration Day checking on gouging practices, although Chairman P. Y. K. Howat said his agency will be powerless to alleviate "exorbitant rates." Most gouging will be done by attendants, rather than lot operators, Howat said.

Motorists will require some evidence that they have parking-lot reservations before police will admit them to enter the cordon area or cross Pennsylvania ave.

Traffic will be comparatively free until 10 a. m. After that police have been instructed to demand parking evidence before admitting cars to the cordon area. Pennsylvania ave can be crossed after that time only at 14th st. nw., according to Inspector Arthur Miller of the Trac Division.

Space for 5000 motorists is available at the Pentagon, Howat said, but no Government agency has authority to grant official permission for its use on Inauguration Day.

Howat said it would take an act of Congress to get this authority, but he added unofficially, motorists may use the lot and in fact are urged to use it in lieu of crossing the river.

Charles T. McGavin, chief analyst for the parking agency and its Inauguration Day investigator, said that workmen were rushing the Ring Garage at 19th and M sts., nw., to completion before Thursday. Approximately 350 cars can be handled there.

Not Bright Prospect

McGavin said the prospects for parking space Thursday were not particularly bright, but that many lots have been running at less than capacity. Parking lot owners agreed with him, and said that so much attention had been called to the prospective difficulty in parking downtown that they might have "plenty of space."

Other large parking facilities available to people who wish to drive to the inaugural ceremonies include the Capital Garage, 1320 New York ave. nw., with a capacity of 900 cars; the newly opened Cafritz Garage at 13th and K sts. nw., handling 250 cars, and Thompkins Garage on I between 15th and 16th sts. nw., with a capacity of 550.

In addition, spaces generally reserved for Government employes will legally be available to non-Government workers on the holiday, according to one police authority who wished to remain anonymous. Many of these workers will not drive to the Inauguration, he said, and their parking spaces will be available at least for a while.

Smaller lots handling up to 100 cars will also have some space, according to a poll yesterday. Small lot operators are generally reserving approximately 50 per cent of their space for regular monthly and weekly patrons, but the remaining space is for transients.

Veterans to Hear Barr

Joseph Barr, national executive committeeman of the Jewish War Veterans, will speak at a meeting of the John and Bernard Wilner Post No. 31, Jewish War Veterans tonight at 8:30 o'clock at the Veterans Home, 3147 16th st. nw. New officers will be installed at the meeting.

THEY'RE NOT MISSOURI MULES—Dan and Dobbin look about the city after arriving yesterday. They are members of a six-horse team which will pull an old-fashioned steam calliope in President Truman's Inaugural Parade. They hail from Louisville, Ky., colonel, and represent the Cole Brothers Circus

Parade Horses Give Struggle For Housing an Added Kick

The inaugural housing struggle even hit horses yesterday.

And the 1949 Inaugural Committee set right out to meet it by unofficially appointing its versatile workhorse, Bud Dugan, chairman of a horse housing subcommittee. He has his hands full.

Yesterday a Kentucky State special train pulled into Union Station towing a freight car load of eight Percheron circus dray horses. They will bring up the rear of Thursday's parade drawing the only steam calliope still used by a circus.

Four Missouri mules—born, raised and worked in President Truman's birthplace of Lamar, Mo—also arrived in town to tow the State float.

Today 42 more Missouri steeds are slated to arrive, making a total of 54 inaugural animals already on Dugan's neck. And it was rumored last night that California plans to dress up its parade showing with a few horses.

The size of the horse delegation called for a quick shift in housing plans early yesterday. They were originally scheduled to bed down at Dr. William Mann's Zoo. That was when it was thought the eight circus animals were to be sole representatives of the species.

As Dugan saw horses everywhere he looked, he quickly settled on the Rosecroft Stables at the old race track in Oxon Hill, Md.

"They were all resting comfortably and should be at peak form at 1 p. m. post time Thursday," Dr. John R. Keeler of 8109 Georgia ave., Silver Springs Md., told The Washington Post last night after making his stable rounds. He has been assigned chief veterinarian in charge of Inaugural steeds.

Pat and Jim, Knobby and Dobbin, Dan and Nero, Dick and Crockett—the eight circus horses—pranced off their train at Union Station like the old troupers they are.

They have traveled some 160,000 railroad miles with Cole Brothers Circus the past 10 years, trainer-driver "Dutch" Warner, 45, of East Chicago, Ill., said.

But his charges almost didn't make Harry Truman's Inauguration. Originally, it seems, circus headquarters in Louisville, had offered elephants to the Kentucky State Inauguration planners, Dutch explained.

"But when we heard Inauguration Day might be cold and Dewey, they decided upon harcy horses for the job," said poker-faced Dutch.

Meanwhile, Bud Dugan is keeping his fingers crossed. He's not much of a horseman, and, for all of him, his stable is full.

National Heart Week Resolution Introduced

A resolution to establish national heart week, beginning February 14, St. Valentine's Day, was introduced yesterday by Senators Pepper (D., Fla.) and Bridges (R., N. H.).

Pepper, in a Senate speech, called heart disease "the Nation's greatest killer" and said campaigns for funds for research will be under way during the week suggested for directing public attention to the need.

Measures to Save Allocation, Export Controls Are Offered

House and Senate Banking Committee chairmen yesterday put extension of expiring voluntary controls and slightly more binding export controls ahead of comprehensive action on the price-wage front.

In fact, both Senate Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) and House Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) indicated Congress may want to know more about price trends before it tackles the proposed "stand-by" powers.

Meanwhile, Maybank and Spence simultaneously introduced in both Houses these two bills extending controls nearing expiration deadlines:

1. Temporary continuation, until September 30, 1949, of authority to make voluntary allocation of shortage goods and facilities.

2. Extension of somewhat tightened export control powers for 28 months, through June 30, 1951.

Once both bills are passed, both chairmen said they would press for action on a strengthened rent control law. Existing rent controls expire March 31.

Maybank said he would like to hold committee hearings in representative sections of the country on food and other price and supply trends before action on stand-by powers and a comprehensive anti-inflation program.

Spence similarly indicated he will want to know if the present price trend is downward, and if inflationary pressures generally have lessened, before enacting further inflation curbs.

"If there has been such a lag, certainly I haven't felt it in my experience and pocketbook," Spence said.

"It would do no harm that I can see to give the President all of the stand-by authority he asks unless we get a clear reversal of inflationary pressures."

Two Bibles Will Be Used When President Takes Oath

Two Bibles, open to different passages, will be used Thursday, when President Truman takes the oath of office in front of the Capitol.

One Bible, a reproduction of the original Gutenberg edition printed in 1456, arrived yesterday afternoon on Missouri Gov. Forrest Smith's Inauguration Special. He described it as "the most precious thing we had on the train."

The other Bible, which will rest on top of the 25-pound Gutenberg facsimile, is the White House Bible used when the President took the oath April 12, 1945, to succeed Frankklin D. Roosevelt.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said yesterday that the President had selected the passages after considerable thought, but they will not be disclosed until the oath has been taken.

The Missouri Bible was bought recently by the President's home town Chamber of Commerce, at Independence, Mo., for $5000. It is heavily embellished with illuminated lettering and bound with Moroccan leather. Its text is in Latin.

Frank W. Rucker, vice president and general manager of the Independence Examiner, and Homer M. Clements, superintendent of schools, Jackson County, Mo., escorted the Bible to Washington.

Senate Kills Measure to Exempt Inauguration Event Tickets From Taxes

move to curb the power of the House Rules Committee.

It took three formal roll call votes to kill the inaugural tax exemption bill, which passed the House Monday with the help of Republican leadership there.

The first vote was 47 to 45 against passing the bill.

A second roll call, paradoxically, defeated the tabling of a motion to reconsider the bill. The vote against tabling was 49 to 42.

Finally, the Senate voted 47 to 44 against reconsideration of the bill.

Forty-two Democrats and one Republican, Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.), voted consistently in all three roll calls for getting the measure passed.

Forty-one Republicans and one Democrat, Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), voted consistently in all three roll calls against passing the bill.

Five Democrats voted a straight "no" ticket—against passage, against tabling the motion to reconsider, and against reconsidering. They were Senators Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.); Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.); A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.); Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), and John L. McClellan (D., Ark.).

Senator Byrd said he voted against the tax exemption "because I don't think we should exempt a show here in Washington when every little Sunday school social has to pay taxes."

Senator Dennis Chavez missed the first roll call for passage, but voted with the majority of Democrats on the other two roll calls. Senators Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) and James E. Murray (D., Mont.) voted for passage but missed the two other roll calls.

The Senate's action may cost the Inaugural Committee between $60,000 and $75,000 to cover Federal tax payments on tickets for grandstand seats for the parade the Gala and the Inaugural Ball.

It has been estimated that parade seat sales total about $190,000. In addition, about 4000 free tickets were given to the White House and the Diplomatic Corps. These presumably were of the $10 variety. The tax in this one category would thus run to about $46,000.

Ticket sales for the Gala amounted to about $35,000 and to the Inaugural Ball to about $35,000. Neither of these figures includes free tickets, on which the tax also must be paid. Not included in the figure for the ball are the special boxes, which sold for $250 each.

The 20 per cent Federal tax on these two events would total about $17,600, bringing the total tax figure to about $63,600.

Robert V. Fleming of the Riggs Bank, head of the finance committee of the Inaugural Committee, declined to comment until he had talked to General Chairman Melvin Hildreth.

Hildreth said in a statement issued shortly after the action that it may be impossible to announce accurate figures on the amount of tax the committee will have to pay the Government until after the Inauguration.

Hildreth asserted that the committee received assurances in November that tax exemption would be granted when Congress returned to Washington.

"If the Inaugural Committee had not gone ahead and acted on the assumption that Congress would grant tax exemption, the Inaugural Committee would not have been able to organize a parade, erect grandstands for spectators or a reviewing stand for the President and his guests or conduct the Gala and the ball," he said.

Says the Inaugural ticket, "tax exempt"

Hildreth said he hoped that the committee's action "in assuming that the Congress would grant it the same tax exemption which has been traditionally granted to previous inaugural committees" will not work a hardship on business leaders who contributed to the guarantee fund.

Final Senate action killing the ticket tax exemption bill followed bitter debate, in which Republicans denounced Inauguration plans for a "Roman circus."

"Sour Grapes" Suspected

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), next majority floor leader, told reporters later he felt the Republican stand against the bill was "sour grapes."

"They're still grieving over their defeat," said Lucas.

He said the talk about a "Roman circus" was a lot of "political palaver."

Lucas said Congress would have to take care of any deficiency in the returns of the Inaugural Committee, and "as one United States Senator I'd be most happy to support such an appropriation."

But during debate, Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) took a firm stand against the idea of such a deficiency appropriation.

Denounced as "Precedent"

Morse denounced the tax exemption resolution as "an exceedingly bad precedent." He said if Inauguration officials seek a deficiency appropriation, the answer of the Congress to them should be "No appropriation, gentlemen." He said any deficit should be made up by those who have underwritten the program.

Morse said that some of the ticket prices were exorbitant. He said it was clearly exorbitant to charge $10 for a ticket to a seat with not even a back to lean against as "the circus goes by."

He said he planned to sponsor again a bill on which he could not get a hearing in the last Congress to exempt from the Federal amusement tax the first $100 received in any year through sale of admission tickets to school benefits.

He said he hoped to get "as enthusiastic support" for his plan as the Democrats were giving to the inaugural tax exemption bill.

Before the final defeat of the bill, two amendments were voted down. A 54-to-38 vote killed the proposal of Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) to exempt from the amusement tax admissions to nonprofit agricultural fairs.

Defeated 63 to 28

A 63-to-28 vote defeated the proposal of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) to exempt from luxury taxes stoves and powders and oils used for babies. He said the way the legislation stood without his amendment "it would say it's not a luxury to attend the Inaugural Ball, but if a mother stays home powdering and oiling a baby's bottom—that's a luxury."

Senator Millikin, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee in the last Congress, urged passage of the resolution. He told the Senate he had been consulted last year as chairman about the attitude of the Finance Committee about exempting the inaugural tickets from the tax.

Millikin said he then promised to support such an exemption, after being assured that there was precedent for it, and that it was a nonprofit enterprise.

in case you're DEWEY-EYED over the inauguration...

. . bring your tears to us, whether they're tears of joy or otherwise. We have sympathy for the sad, and a big smile for the glad. And, most important, we have food that makes your mouth water instead of your eyes.

Take our roast beef, for instance. When we say PRIME ROAST BEEF we mean, specifically, just that. Here is roast beef that must pass every test but Civil Service to even reach our kitchens. And then it comes to your table so thick and flavorful, so redolent of the heavenly aroma that only "chosen" roast beef can impart, and simply streaming with those roast beef juices that swim in your plate like nectar from Olympus. We could add a similar paragraph about our steaks and chops.*

Then, our Rum Pie. Our Rum Pie will make you forget politics and remember that the pastry art preceded the poll-taking industry, and that—after all—politics is but a shambles of man's inadequacies compared to his consummate success in the field of good cooking.

If you're pleased with the fact that the local boy made good and is remaining at Number 1600, then you'll certainly want to add the festive touch of a celebration to your meal. Rum Pie and Coffee is always spelled in capital letters, because it's a Fan and Bill's ritual that must be tasted to be appreciated.

From cocktail to after-dinner conversation we've done our part to remove the art of eating from the classification of mere necessity and place it in the category of soul-soothing, spirit-lifting, nerve-caressing joy that's an experience—not just a meal.

After the Inauguration . . . see us.

*If you want to join Washington's most select epicurean company, then order Fan and Bill's charcoal-broiled steak, served on a chestnut plank. It's the original Fan and Bill's Planked Steak.

Now-the nicest people use dial

This new deodorant soap removes skin bacteria that cause perspiration odor . . . keeps you fresh round the clock!

A Product of Armour Toiletries

dial actually stops odor before it starts!

Because dial, alone of all soaps, contains AT-7.

Heavy clothes! Overheated rooms! Crowds! In winter, too, even nice people perspire. So that's why the nicest people now use Dial year around. Unlike other soaps, Dial doesn't merely "cover-up"—it removes the major cause of perspiration odor. For Dial with odorless AT-7 removes the skin bacteria that thrive on perspiration. AT-7 is the only ingredient known to keep its full antiseptic power effective in soap. And Dial smells good—not strong, not sissy!

Complexion protection! Mild, kind—Dial is so rich-lathering and thorough-cleansing, you couldn't give your skin finer beauty care. So keep several bars of Dial on hand—for your bath and complexion care.

2500 at Dinner Hail the President

among Democrats in the darker days of the '48 campaign.

Mr. Truman, ruddy-faced and jolly, started off by referring to his two "bosses" at the head table. One was the First Lady, attired in a light blue gown, who had come in earlier with Miss Margaret Truman, wearing a dark red creation.

The other "boss" was Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley. Mr. Truman recalled his own days as a Senator from Missouri, and said he always followed the policy of Barkley, who was his leader.

"Incidentally," Mr. Truman said, amid laughter, "I'm putting out a little propaganda."

"Can Win Cold War"

Barkley, who spoke first, said that Mr. Truman needed the kind of support today that was given the President in wartime.

"If we have it," the Kentuckian said, "we can win this cold war."

When it came time for the President to speak, he simulated chagrin.

"I found in the Senate," he said, "that an ordinary Senator didn't have a Chinaman's chance with oratory . . . after the leader of the Democratic majority had spoken his piece. You can understand the position which I am in now. Barkley got the floor first, and he made my speech."

"Tremendous Responsibility"

Further along in his speech, the Chief Executive said:

"Now, Senator Barkley and I have a tremendous responsibility—the greatest burden, I think, that any President and Vice President of the United States ever had in the history of the country.

"We are going to assume that burden, and we are going to do our best to carry out the things that are necessary to meet the situation with which we are faced, in this country and the world.

"But, we can't do that unless you, and the Congress, and the people of the United States get behind us and help us carry out these principles that are necessary to get . . . the peace in the world that we need and that we are going to get."

'Younger' Barkley

Mr. Truman said that no President was ever more fortunate than he in the matter of a Vice President.

"Barkley and I have been going along with the Democratic Party ever since we can remember," he said, "and he is somewhat younger than I am."

This brought laughter from those who were aware that the Vice President-elec is 71, seven years older than the President.

"We have always been in accord," Mr. Truman continued, "with the policies and principles of the Democratic Party, as set out by Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Bespeaks Cooperation

"We expect to carry out the policies and principles laid down in the Democratic platform, and that is the reason I am anxious for Senators and Representatives who are Democrats . . . to cooperate with us, and I know that is exactly what they are going to do."

Mr. Truman sketched his own experience beginning with that April day in 1945 when he took over from the fallen Roosevelt. He said it was necessary then to assume "an almost unbearable burden." He said he was willing to assume it because that was his duty, aand he recalled that he did the best that he could.

Principles Stated

"I had not much cooperation after September 6, 1945," he said, "for the simple reason that at that time I enunciated the principles of the Democratic platform of 1944, which I had helped to write, and on which I had been elected with the President of the United States."

He was referring to his first major message to Congress in 1945, which was credited with ending the first Truman honeymoon.

The Chief Executive recalled the Philadelphia convention last July, when Senator Barkley delivered the keynote speech and he himself "enunciated the principles on which we were going to be elected."

He recalled also a speech he made at a political rally in the Mayflower last winter, when he told the diners that there was going to be a Democrat in the White House in the next four years—"and you are looking at him."

Appeal for Support

Here Mr. Truman appealed for the Nation's support in his quest of world peace, urged the Truman-Barkley Club to stay alive, and sat down with the remark that "Barkley is pulling at my coat."

Governor Roy J. Turner of Oklahoma, chairman of the club, then introduced George Jessel as the "Toastmaster General of the United States." Jessel proceeded to wow Mr. Truman with such cracks as "Listen to Winchell and you think the world is coming to an end; listen to Pegler and you wish it would."

The dinner was remarkable for the fact that, aside from the President and the Vice President, virtually all of the Administration "brass" was away from the head table. The places of honor went to those who, in Senator Barkley's words, "worked in the vineyard of the Lord" in the recent campaign.

Cabinet officers and political celebrities like James A. (Big Jim) Farley sat out at the regular tables. Former Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, who ran the 1944 Democratic campaign, had a table in the balcony.

A policy of non-segregation was followed. Elliott Paul, author of "The Last Time I Saw Paris," had at his table William L. Houston, local Negro lawyer; Houston's sister, Miss Clotill M. Houston, his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles H. Houston, and Albert Ammons, a Chicago pianist. All were the guests of Welburn Nayock of Los Angeles, treasurer of the Truman-Barkley Club.

Paul told reporters:

"This is the first time in the history of inaugurals that Negroes have been admitted as guests to a function of this kind, and I'm rather enjoying the honor of presiding at the table."

Room Calls Show Fervor, Prejudice

King Wang has been in this country since Pearl Harbor, as student, actress and housewife. At present she is a playwright-student at the Catholic University. One of her plays concerning China is scheduled for an experimenting production at the university this March. As the result of five weeks' work as a volunteer with the Inaugural Housing Bureau, she has come to like the United States, getting a much better conception of Americans from countless interviews with Washington housewives.—Editor's Note.]

By King Wang

"I'm the widow of a Spanish-American war veteran. I'd like to do my duty as a patriotic citizen. Could you send around some nice Democrat for my roomer during the inaugural?"

As a volunteer worker with the Inaugural Housing Bureau for the past five weeks, I have taken some 300 calls from offerers of sleeping spaces, some perhaps not quite as seriously motivated as the lady above, but all as willing to help accommodate an avalanche of visitors from all over the Nation attending the Inauguration of the President of the United States.

From these candid conversations with Washington housewives, I have arrived at a more revealing picture of a good cross-section of American householders, of their likes and dislikes, of their hates and prejudices, of their fears and sense of patriotic duty, than a student of sociology from abroad is likely to accomplish in several years.

15,000 Beds Offered

Up to date, some 15,000 beds have been offered by Washington householders. Although a number not up to the desired goal, yet encouraging in the fact that 90 per cent of these came not from established rooming houses or social service agencies but from people who have never before opened their houses to roomers.

An elderly couple offered their two-room apartment for $150 a week, while another apartment owner conveniently takes her vacation during the inaugural "lull" elsewhere to offer her "luxurious" one-room for $50.00 a night. On the other hand, a modest pharmacist timidly asked if 25 cents would be too much to ask for one night's lodging! On the whole, however, most were content to accept the Bureau's guidance of $2.50 to $5 per person per night.

To counter the profound racial question as it exists in the Nation's Capital, Bureau volunteers would ask each room profferer of his or her racial preferences. In this sharply segregated city of Washington, a rather pleasing percentage, though not great, but encouraging, turned up of families who would not mind admitting whites, Negroes or Orientals as their guests during the inaugural.

While a negative answer from white residents to whether members of the colored race would be admitted as prospective roomers seems a foregone conclusion, the fact that some housewives go to such extremes as to grow hysterical at the mention of the word "Negro" in the question, or to demand how such a "possibility" could be put up to her, does reflect the particularly strong feeling toward racial discrimination in the Metropolis of Greater Washington. On myself, as a Chinese, the inclusion of the word "Oriental" in the racial question has not produced a too happy effect.

Gen. Clay 'Likes' Hitler, Says Paul Robeson

General Clay and other American officials in the United States zone in Germany "like Hitler" and "like the remains of German fascism," Singer Paul Robeson declared yesterday.

Robeson, in Washington with a number of Civil Rights Congress demonstrators, told a press conference that he was in Germany in 1945 and "saw" manifestations of profascism on the part of American leaders. He did not elaborate on the charges.

"I'm a Negro-American and I'm going to reserve some love (for the United States) until I'm free and the Negro people are free," the singer said, in commenting on the slaying of Isaiah Nixon Austin, Georgia Negro shot and killed last September after he voted in a primary.

Josephson Airs Complaint

Robeson said the Justice Department is "still trying to puzzle out" whether the slaying was murder, which is solely a State matter, or an infringement on voting rights which would give the United States authority to step in.

Leon Josephson, New York attorney, recently released from Mylan Federal Penitentiary in Michigan after serving 10 months for contempt of Congress for refusing to testify before a House Un-American Activities Committee hearing, told of alleged unfair treatment at the prison.

"I was put in the hole (solitary) my second day there because I refused to eat two potatoes on my plate," he said.

More Action Promised

Josephson declared that as a result of his prison experiences he intended to be "more active than ever" in the Communist Party.

Earlier in the day, about 2000 members of the congress, labeled as a subversive organization by Attorney General Tom C. Clark, swarmed around the Capitol attempting to gain interviews with their Congressmen. They demanded the release of 12 Communist leaders on trial in New York.

The group was slated to return to their homes by train and bus last night.

New Plan Pressed For Repeal of T-H

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A new approach to labor law revision is being pressed within the House Labor Committee by Representative Augustine B. Kelley (D., Pa.), third-ranking member of the committee.

The Kelley plan calls for immediate repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, restoration of the Wagner Act and establishment of a temporary labor relations committee to study and recommend amendments to the Wagner Act.

The 16-man commission would include five Senators, named by the President of the Senate; five Representatives, named by the Speaker, and six representatives of management and labor, named by President Truman. The commission would be directed to make a preliminary report by April 15 and a final report by July 1.

Representative Kelley has already quietly tossed into the legislative hopper the measures needed to carry out his plan. He has also warned Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.), Labor Committee chairman, he'll fight Lesinski's "one-package" plan to revamp the Nation's labor code.

Omnibus Bill

The "one-package" plan would combine in a single bill repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, revival of the Wagner Act and several amendments to the Wagner Act urged by President Truman in his State of the Union message to Congress.

Representative Lesinski indicated last week, after a visit to the White House, that the President approved the "one-package" plan, opposed by the major labor organization.

Representative Kelley, who participated in the White House visit with Lesinski, believes the President intended to indicate approval of any reasonable plan which carried out his campaign pledge: to kill the Taft-Hartley Act and to bring back a modified form of the Wagner Act.

The President has sidestepped the issue. At a recent press conference Mr. Truman declared that he did not intend to interfere with the functions of Congress.

Truman's Favor Seen

The Kelley plan, the Pennsylvanian believes, would be agreeable to Mr. Truman. Fact is, the author pointed out, the Kelley plan is similar to a proposal first suggested by the President himself in May, 1946, during the two-day railroad strike.

Mr. Truman, in a special message to Congress at that time, asked for drastic emergency measures to deal with the strike. But in the same message he urged a long-range study of labor-management laws through a 20-man commission. The President renewed this request in vetoing the Case bill, and again in his State of the Union address to the Eightieth Congress in 1947. The Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress passed up the President's suggestions, and passed the Taft-Hartley Act.

Representative Kelley believes his plan can be easily cleared through the House by the Administration leadership. The plan could, of course, be amended in the Senate, but Kelley believes firm action by the Administration leadership would eliminate undesirable amendments in the ensuing House-Senate Conference.

Meanwhile, the AFL Legislative Council held a closed session here yesterday and prepared to push first for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, and amend the Wagner Act later.

On Capitol Hill, however, this issue appeared to be sidetracked temporarily to make way for less controversial legislation. The House Labor Committee apparently plans to move first on raising the Nation's minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour. The Senate Labor Committee is going ahead with bills providing Federal aid for education and establishing a National Science Foundation.

Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), Majority Whip, yesterday disclosed he had invited the top leaders of organized labor to meet with him and a group of Senators at a dinner here January 26 to map strategy for enacting into law "the liberal pledges of the Democratic platform".

100,000 Ride Inaugural Wave Into D. C.

ing ceremonies at noon in which the President will be sworn in before about 120,000 persons.

President Truman will have had breakfast at 7 a. m. with his World War I Battery D comrades at the Sapphire Room of the Mayflower. He will eat lunch on Capitol Hill just before the parade.

Two invitational affairs follow the parade, which is scheduled to pass the White House by 4 p. m. President Truman will hold a two-hour reception at the National Gallery of Art at 5 p. m. The Inaugural Ball will be held at 10 p. m. at the National Guard Armory, site of the Inaugural Gala the night before.

Two West Point Headquarters

In connection with the parade, the plans and training officer of the United States Corps of Cadets from West Point announced yesterday that two headquarters will be established immediately after 4 p. m. for the convenience of the friends and relatives of cadets.

The United States Military Academy band and companies E through M of the Second Regiment will have headquarters at the New Jersey yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, New Jersey ave. and I st. se., telephone Executive 4300.

The remainder of the corps, including the first regiment and companies A through D of the Second Regiment, will have headquarters at the Eckington yards of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, New York and Florida aves. and 1st st. nw., telephone Dupont 2100, extension 2.

Cadets will have liberty until their trains leave Thursday at 10 p. m.

Special Trains Arriving

More than 20 special trains had arrived at Union Station yesterday. Many brought Governors and their parties from over the Nation, including the chief executive of Truman's home State of Missouri.

Railroad officials said today will tax their energies and facilities to the utmost, but added that "several thousand passengers more than normal came into the terminal" on Tuesday.

Of more than 30 additional special trains—plus more than 100 extra cars on regular runs—arriving today, one will bring a delegation of 800 persons from Philadelphia.

Most of the city's larger hotels reported better than half their rooms filled by visitors who will remain here for the next two or three days.

The Mayflower Hotel said its house was "100 per cent" filled last night. The Statler said there were "a few scattered single rooms left, but all of them have been reserved for occupancy today."

Three early arrivals yesterday were early Americans. Chief White Calf of the Black Feet Indian Reservation, Browning, Mont., was accompanied by John Old Chief and Joe Iron Pipe. Five of their tribesmen are due on a train today.

The delegation will represent more than 4000 Black Feet Indians, according to Pipe.

Salesmen of trinkets and souvenirs along downtown streets said their business stepped up noticeably yesterday. One news stand operator on Pennsylvania ave. said he had sold 400 official inaugural programs since Saturday and had fewer than 25 left over.

Florists kept a constant watch on what they described as a "tight" market, although one street vendor said he expected daily shipments from New York to continue his $1-apiece business.

Mrs. Faye Wright, operator of the Willard Hotel flower shop, said she went to the wholesaler's "before dawn" yesterday to get a dozen orchids. She expects to repeat the performance today and Thursday.

She said her prices begin at $4. One customer bought half of her first lot at $7.50 each and "thanked me for keeping reasonable prices," she added.

Tax Threats Seen in Budget

The Council of State Chambers of Commerce yesterday denounced President Truman's $41,858,000,000 budget as a "new and perilously high plateau of public expenditures."

The council's report said the spending proposals, if enacted, will impose "heavy permanent new tax burdens which the American people cannot hope to escape in either good times or bad."

The conclusions were issued in an analysis of the budget Mr. Truman has proposed for the fiscal year of 1950 starting July 1.

It was made by Alvin A. Burger, the council's research director.

Spy Grand Jury Hears Chambers And Inslerman

New York, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Whittaker Chambers, former Communist, the Government's chief witness on prewar Communist spying, testified for 45 minutes today before the Federal grand jury investigating Red espionage.

This was his first appearance in several weeks, although he has conferred frequently with FBI agents on the microfilmed State Department papers found in a pumpkin on his Maryland farm.

The only other witness questioned today was Felix Inslerman, engineer. He was questioned twice, for one hour each time, before and after Chambers' appearance.

Inslerman's wife, Elizabeth, was in the courthouse today, but was not called for questioning. Chambers and Inslerman reportedly will be questioned again Wednesday.

$3500 Painting, Stolen in 1944, Is Sent to Museum

New York, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—The fourteenth century painting of St. Thomas, attributed to Simone Martini of Siena, stolen from the walls of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in 1944, was returned to that institution through the mails Friday in ordinary brown wrapping paper. The painting is valued at $3500 to $5000.

The restitution was revealed by the museum today. The painting, which was on a wooden panel, warped into a slightly convex shape, was broken in half when received.

At the museum it was said 'the break is clean, parallel to the grain, and very little paint has been lost, and it will not be difficult to put it into good condition."

Workman Jolted By 2200 Volts

The Washington Post

ELMER MENAS, 27, of 5203 L st., Hillside, Md., an employe of the American Bridge Co., received a jolt from a high-tension wire carrying 2200 volts while working with a crane setting tracks under the Sousa Bridge across the Anacostia River at 1 p. m. yesterday. Menas was guiding a steel rail held by a crane when the crane touched the wire, broke it, sending the 2200 volts down the crane and into Menas. The workman was held for observation at Casualty Hospital

77 Planes, 6 Ships Scour Sea for Missing Airliner

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 18 (U.P.). Seventy-seven planes and six ships scoured the Caribbean today for a British commercial plane with 20 persons aboard that vanished yesterday on a flight from Bermuda to Jamaica. It was the biggest air-sea search on record.

Hope dwindled for the Star Ariel, a luxury four-engined airship of the British South American Airways, bound from London to Santiago, Chile.

Sixteen planes from the U. S. Navy aircraft carrier Kearsage and 12 from the carrier Leyte fanned out over the area at dawn.

GOP Rejects 'Lawyers Only' Group

House Republican leaders yesterday rejected the "lawyers only" rule invoked by the Democratic leadership in naming a new five-man majority to the House Un-American Activities Committee.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.), said limitation of appointments to attorneys and former judges would "discriminate against nearly half the members of the House, who are now lawyers."

"Besides, lawyers have no monopoly on patriotism, ability or performance," the GOP former Speaker told newsmen.

The House Republican Committee on Committees, headed by Martin, postponed until next week the selection of four Republicans to fill minority vacancies on the spy-hunting group.

In naming the five-man Democratic majority on Monday the Democrats decided their appointments to the group should be trained in the law, and dropped Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) for the official reason he was not a lawyer. Hebert charged the real reason was he supported the Thermond-Wright ticket.

Another Dixiecrat, Representative John J. Rankin (D., Miss.) was dropped on another count—that no chairman of a major committee should serve on a second committee. Rankin is chairman of the Veterans Committee.

Indications are Republicans will reappoint Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.), who is a lawyer, and give Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N.J.), who is not a lawyer, the "option" of returning if he wants to.

Thomas is awaiting trial on charges of conspiracy and fraud in connection with an alleged scheme to collect salary kick-backs from his congressional employes.

Few Democrats applied for posts on the controversial House unit, but Republicans said GOP applications are piling up.

Rome, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Film star Tyrone Power and starlet Linda Christian announced today they will be married here January 27.

"Why not? My feet were cold!"

Foster to Get Separate Trial

prisonment and a $10,000 fine each, if convicted.

The severance of Foster's case was granted by Medina on request of United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey, who also asked that the trial of the others proceed.

McGohey had indicated yesterday he would ask for a separate trial for Foster, 67, when the latter failed to appear in court along with other defendants. Foster is suffering from a heart ailment.

When McGohey entered his motions today, defense counsel immediately launched a bitter attack against them. They contended the Government was acting in "unseemly" haste in asking for separate trials.

George W. Crockett, jr., one of the defense attorneys, said Foster was "absolutely indispensable" to the defense of the other 11.

"He has a fund of information as national chairman of the Communist Party that no one else can have," Crockett said.

Announcement Cited

Answering defense charges of "unseemly" haste, McGohey said he had announced at a hearing November 15, 1948, when the case was adjourned because of Foster's condition, that he would move to sever the case against him should the defendant's condition not improve by January.

He said that the affidavits of four physicians, two of them court-appointed, who examined Foster earlier this month, meant that "in the foreseeable future Foster is not going to be able to come into this court."

Earlier, Judge Medina had overruled defense objections to police detailed around the United Stats Courthouse.

He said "what precautions are taken seem to me to be entirely proper" in answering a defense contention that "the same state of armed siege which existed yesterday exists today."

turned to his post at the Naval Air Station in Norfolk and on August 2 Mrs. Lavender was packing in her apartment at the Dunbar Hotel, preparing to join him.

Present with her were two friends, Marion V. Moore of 308 Florida ave. nw., and Marie A. Taylor, who also lived in the Dunbar.

They testified that Miss Cox came to the apartment and said she wanted to congratulate the bride. She was invited in and a round of drinks was poured, they said.

Mrs. Taylor said that Miss Cox walked from the living room into the bedroom and called to Mrs. Lavender to bring her the drink.

She said when Mrs. Lavender walked to the doorway between the living room and the bedroom, Miss Cox was heard to say:

"I'm going to kill you. You took my man. I'll stand here and see that you're dead first."

Two shots followed, Mrs. Taylor said, adding that as Mrs. Lavender slumped to the floor Miss Cox walked forward and pumped three more shots at the fallen woman.

An examination later showed four of the five shots from a .38 caliber revolved had taken effect.

Miss Cox was arrested by a hotel detective as she was leaving the apartment.

In her defense, Miss Cox said she didn't remember what had happened, that she had several drinks and had taken two types of sleeping drugs.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Cecil R. Heflin did not specifically ask for the death penalty but asked the jury to return a verdict of guilty

Swindler of 1920

Ponzi Dies At 71 in Charity Ward

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Jan 18 (AP). "Get-Rich-Quick" Charles Ponzi, the little man who swindled the American public out of big money in 1920, died in poverty in a hospital charity ward Saturday.

Ponzi

Partly blind and paralyzed, he was 71.

Ponzi's body was claimed by a legal agent at the public morgue today. The agent will pay for burial with $75 Ponzi managed to save from a small Brazilian government pension.

This was the man who attracted more than 15 million dollars in sucker money to his Boston office in a few months of 1920 with the cry "double your money in 90 days." He stuffed currency into his desks when the cash boxes were filled and into waste baskets when the desks overflowed.

Ponzi, a slim little Italian former convict, said his business was based upon the purchase of international postal union coupons throughout the world, taking advantage of favorable exchange rates. For a time, Ponzi paid off. Fresh money paid both principal and interest on the old. But newspapers got curious and the bookkeping system collapsed. The government deported him to Italy in 1934 after serving a seven-year sentence for larceny in Massachusetts.

Ponzi came to Brazil from Italy before World War II and made a meager living teaching English.

Acheson Given Confirmation

persistent critic of almost everything the Administration has done abroad, and by Senator Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), a former member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Mundt had suggested inviting Whittaker Chambers to testify before the Foreign Relations Committee on Acheson's alleged link with Alger Hiss.

Connally Praises Acheson

Support for Acheson in the debate came from both sides of the aisle, and from the Democratic and Republican leadership of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) predicted Acheson would make "a distinguished Secretary of State," and would uphold American foreign policy "with firmness and skill." He described Acheson as "thoroughly at home" in the office of Secretary of State because of his past service as Acting Secretary.

And he called for confirmation by an overwhelming vote "that will carry a message to the entire world that he has our support."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), also praised Acheson's qualifications, but warned that the Republicans would hold President Truman rather than Acheson accountable for future American foreign policy.

"I think the President's choice of his official family is more his business than ours, more his responsibility than our," Vandenberg declared. "I personally shall leave this preponderant responsibility where it belongs, and where I can later hold it to strict nonpartisan account.

"Of course it is impossible to ask him or any other nominee what policies he will pursue, because those policies are directed by the President. Therefore, it should be made wholly obvious that we do not underwrite results in foreign policy which will flow from our confirmation."

Vandenberg then dealt with the whispers and rumors of Acheson's association with Alger Hiss. Nowhere in the evidence, he said, were there any "sinister implications" about Acheson.

Attitude Summarized

"I have asked Mr. Acheson," Vandenberg went on, "if I might summarize his Hiss attitudes in the following single sentence, and he agrees:

"An assertion of personal friendship for the Hiss brothers; a stanch defense of Donald Hiss; a purpose to leave Alger Hiss to the courts—and total, aggressive hostility to subversion in the State Department."

Vandenberg disclosed publicly that he had "vigorously" opposed a proposal last April, presumably from President Truman, that Acheson be made the first head of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

He recalled that Congress was insisting on separating ECA from State Department control, and also on appointing "an administrator who was a proven success in large-scale business management."

"Mr. Acheson was not a large-scale business operator, and he was substantially related to the State Department," Vandenberg explained. "Therefore, I did not believe he qualified as ECA administrator under the particularly narrow and technical specifications which he had drawn for the job."

There were other tributes to Acheson yesterday—from retiring Floor Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), who predicted a "brilliant record" for him; from Senator Brien MacMahon (D., Conn.), who called Acheson's fight for control of atomic energy "one of the great achievements of diplomacy and statecraft in our time," and from Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), a new member of the Foreign Relations Committee who said no Secretary of State in the last 15 years had been so well qualified.

Even Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho), Henry Wallace's running mate in the last election, said he was "mildly happy" about Acheson's appointment, because it would mean the return of a civilian at the top of the State Department.

GOVERNORS—Fr. P. 1

Three More Governors Arrive

madge of Georgia also arrived yesterday. More than 100 Georgians will be here for the event.

Talmadge was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Eugene Talmadge; eight members of the Georgia General Assembly, members of his military staff and State officials.

They included James S. Peters, chairman of the State Executive Committee; J. Robert Elliott, national committeeman; Mrs. Doris Blitch, State national committeewoman; Adjutant General Ernest Vandiver and Mrs. Vandiver.

Talmadge and his party were breakfast guests of Georgia Congressmen.

Other events on the Talmadge program yesterday were a tea by Hugh Peterson, former Congressman from the First Georgia District, and the Truman-Barkley dinner. Tonight he will attend the Georgia State Society ball at the Shoreham Hotel.

Governor Thomas J. Mabry of New Mexico, accompanied by his brother, Henry Mabry, was another official arrival.

The Governor spent the morning visiting New Mexico members of Congress. He was luncheon guest of Senators Anderson (D., N. Mex.) and Chavez (D., N. Mex.).

He said he planned no official State business while in Washington.

A trainload of more than 150 Texans arrived during the day and Lieut. Gov. Alan Shivers and Mrs. Shivers came in by plane last night.

Heading the group were Democratic National Committeeman Wright Morrow of Houston; Mrs. H. H. Weinert of Seguin, Democratic national committeewoman, and Mayor John C. Calhoun of Corsicana, chairman of the Texas Inaugural Committee.

Welcoming them was a group of Texans who have been transplanted temporarily in Washington, among them Attorney General Tom Clark, Senators Tom Connally and Lyndon B. Johnson, most of the Texas House members, and Federal Judges Marvin Jones and Luther A. Johnson.

Brownstone Ghost

Sixteenth st.'s Henderson Castle, now being razed, had long outlived its era. An architectural ghost, it hovered over 16th st., recalling not only the "brown decades" of American life, but the days when German castles, curricula and ideas were widely copied in this country. Built in the 1880s and modeled after a Rhine castle, this turreted brownstone citadel, which recently has functioned as a boarding house, seemed of late years to be eons removed from the rambling, sun-drenched, earth-hugging houses of Frank Lloyd Wright—houses now beginning to find acceptance from a public they once shocked.

Senator John B. Henderson of Missouri, who built the castle, and his wife, Mary Foote Henderson, who ruled as a social queen in its great halls, were prominent figures throughout that somber yet pretentious, post-Civil War era that Lewis Mumford has labeled the "brown decades." Brownstone became predominant in public buildings and mansions through the years 1865 to 1895. It was a time, Mr. Mumford says, when "browns had spread everywhere," probably as part of the psychological depression that followed the war. Electricity later was to prepare the way for the widening of windows and the letting in of sunlight. Rhineland architecture and ideas were to fall into disrepute, brownstone mansions to become rooming houses and commercial "clubs."

There was special irony in Henderson Castle's decline at one time into an after-hours club or cabaret, the nighttime noise of which caused complaints from surrounding residents. For the mistress of the castle had crusaded during her lifetime against alcohol—also against tobacco, meat and women's modern fashions, including short skirts—and in 1906 had made headlines by emptying the contents of her wine cellar into the 16th st. gutter. The castle also figured in a bitter three-year legal fight between Mrs. Henderson and her foster granddaughter, this being set off when the owner offered it to the Nation as a residence for the Vice President. Henderson Castle's drab and even shabby later history was a typical denouement of many such mansions. It is well that this brownstone ghost is at last being laid low by the hammers of the wreckers.

On Salaries

As of 12 o'clock noon Thursday the salary of the President of the United States goes up from $75,000 a year to $100,000 a year. At the same time the salaries of the Vice President and the Speaker of the House ascend from $20,000 to $30,000 a year. Each of the three also gets a tax-free expense allowance for which he need make no accounting: $50,000 a year for the President and $10,000 a year for each of the others. These increases seem to us quite liberal, and long overdue, for the President has not had a raise since 1909.

Actually, these three increases are only a small section of the broad problem of bringing Government salaries into line with realities. The President, who has maintained a modest silence about the size of his own income, has repeatedly called attention to the difficulties of getting and keeping good men in the public service. The attraction of higher incomes in other pursuits has drawn many talented administrators away from the Government.

The Presidential Salary Act, it will be remembered, is but the severed head and shoulders of an originally much more extensive bill. This would have provided increases of various amounts for some 200 appointive officials: departmental chiefs and subchiefs, agency heads, members of independent commissions, and the like. It would have put some system into the situation where now, because of special legislation, some subordinate officers get more than their superiors. These features had to be lopped off the bill in order to get the part now enacted through Congress before the inauguration.

But the excised portion is still must legislation, in our opinion; and the President in his reorganization message on Monday reiterated, as he had in the budget message, his request for action on it. He also called attention to the need for similar action with respect to the salary schedules of the Classification Act. These, too, ought to be raised, and for the same reason. The present top limit of $10,330 discourages the ablest civil servants from staying in Government. And the correspondingly low maxima in the lesser grades drain off the best men at every step.

All this costs money, of course. But the cost is worth the gain in efficient administration. Mediocrities and men of wealth, as we have said before, do not make the best servants of the people. But, if they are not to dominate the public service, Government service must be made attractive both to the top administrators and to the lesser ones without whose talents the machinery of Government cannot run smoothly.

Inauguration

This will be the most highly organized inaugural ceremony since that momentous April morning in 1789, when General Washington in his new brown suit and freshly powdered wig and burnished sword and scabbard stood on the balcony of Federal Hall in New York and repeated the oath recited by Chancellor Livingston. Then, of course, there were no precedents to guide the inaugural committee and the ceremonies had more or less to be improvised on the spot. However, General Washington and some of the other high dignitaries on that occasion were veteran Freemasons who had an instinctive feeling for ritual and a good deal of experience with it. They knew just how far to go without overstepping the bounds of what was called republican simplicity, a virtue on which many Americans of those times set considerable store.

It is not true that General Washington said after the conclusion of the ceremonies, "Well, they made a damned fool out of me out there today, but they'll never do it again." Neither is it true that Mr. Jefferson rode unattended into Washington on a March morning in 1801 and, after hitching his horse to a picket fence near the White House, and without further ado, took charge of whatever matters of state Mr. Adams had neglected in the famous midnight session at his desk on the previous evening. But these legends, like most, probably contain a certain allegorical truth. They probably suggest pretty accurately how their respective subjects really felt about the whole business.

How Mr. Truman feels about it all, we have no way of knowing. He appears to be giving the committee a free hand. But if he falls in with all the plans that are being made for him, he may get himself quite innocently into all sorts of difficulties. For example, yesterday morning's newspapers reported that some of Mr. Truman's friends from Independence, Mo., are on their way here with a facsimile reproduction of the Gutenberg Bible, upon which they expect him to take the oath of office. If he does, he will certainly hear from the editor of the Christian Century. For, of course, the text of the Gutenberg Bible is that of the Latin Vulgate of St. Jerome. In other words, the Gutenberg Bible is the formally approved Bible of the Catholic Church with the apocryphal, or deutero-canonical, books mixed right in with the rest of the Old Testament, instead of being separated and plainly labeled as in the larger editions of the Authorized Version. Not only that, but if the President uses a mere facsimile or imitation Gutenberg Bible, he is very likely to hurt the feelings of the people at the Library of Congress and the Folger Library, both of which have real Gutenberg Bibles which they would doubtless be glad to lend for such high patriotic purposes.

Inaugural addresses fall into two categories—the long and the short. The shortest perhaps was that of General Washington, the longest certainly was that of General Harrison. The story goes that some weeks before the inauguration Mr. Webster had handed the President-elect a fat manuscript which he said was the speech the general was to read at the inaugural ceremony. General Harrison thanked him, but said that he had already written his own speech. Webster was indignant and took no pains to conceal it. Thus there was a Cabinet crisis before the Cabinet had actually taken office. Finally, it was agreed the President should be permitted to read his own speech, but not until Webster had edited it. General Harrison had had a sound classical education and remembered all of it. Each of the points in his speech was illustrated by an example from antiquity, and Webster afterward was fond of boasting what a fearful massacre of consuls and proconsuls had occurred under his editorial hand. About the relative length of Mr. Truman's speech we have heard nothing, nor for that matter anything about its content, but on the basis of his previous performances we feel safe in surmising that it will be brief without being curt.

Recognizing Coups

Pragmatically there is something to be said for diplomatic recognition of the army government of Venezuela which the Administration is said to be planning. As the American Foreign Ministers implied in the Act of Bogota, nonrecognition itself is no policy. Continuity of diplomatic relations is desirable to protect our own interests as well as to maintain a steady flow of information. Although there has been no change in our diplomatic representation in Venezuela, that representation has had no official status since the military coup of last November. The fact that some Latin nations already have recognized the new Venezuelan regime probably frustrates any ex post facto collective policy respecting the junta there.

Nevertheless, there is an element of inconsistency in recognition at this time. The State Department itself has initiated talks with other governments on means for quarantining Latin militarism. Several of the governments have favored the withholding of recognition of Venezuela; for example, the Bolivian reply urges that recognition not be granted until there is assurance of free elections. For us to plunge ahead with recognition would understandably make the holdouts feel they had been left on a limb. Moreover, if recognition were to follow immediately upon the appointment of a new Secretary of State, the psychological reaction throughout Latin America would be bad. It would seem like a new policy. We would seem to be giving unnecessary sanction to the vigilante concept of army groups which take matters into their own hands whenever they disagree with the actions of elected governments.

Thus, while it probably would be unwise to withhold recognition indefinitely, certainly there ought to be a reasonable delay to enable Secretary Acheson to review the whole affair, and any reestablishment of relations ought to be coupled with energetic efforts to obtain free elections in Venezuela. More than this, the objective of our diplomacy ought to be a common policy agreed upon in advance to forestall the confusion over the Venezuelan revolt and the Peruvian coup that encouraged it.

Legislative Timetable

After Congress adjourned last June in a state of pandemonium, Senator Myers introduced a resolution proposing a legislative timetable. The Senator described the scene just before the gavel fell for the last time as "one of weary, exhausted, sleepless, punch-drunk, confused, overworked Congressmen and Senators required to make snap judgments or surrender deep-seated convictions in order to allow Congress to adjourn and still enable the Government to function." His adjectives helped to win attention for an eminently sensible measure. We are pleased to note that the Senator proposes to reintroduce his resolution.

Congressmen are no different from other human beings in this matter of procrastination. They tend to leave an enormous amount of their work until the last weeks of the session. Committees take their time in conducting hearings, with the result that many important bills pile up on the floors of the House and Senate at about the same time. Last year the majority leaders in both houses did try to work out weekly legislative programs, but something more is obviously needed. If Congress is to enact at the present session even a substantial fraction of the legislation to which the Administration has pledged its support, a systematic means of getting that legislation before both houses will have to be worked out.

Our own thought is that the legislative timetable should be worked out by the Majority Policy Committee in the Senate and the Democratic Steering Committee in the House until a policy committee is set up in that body. Senator Myers, in his original resolution, would leave this function to the majority leaders, in consultation with the standing committee chairman. Any means of getting a legislative timetable into operation would be preferable to the absence of a legislative schedule. But the timing of important bills would carry far more weight if it had the authority of the Majority Policy Committee behind it and the approval of a legislative-executive council through which the President's views could be reflected. In any event, the Myers resolution deserves a better fate than to be crushed in the next legislative log jam.

Middle Brackets

What is the dividing line between middle and upper bracket incomes? President Truman answered that question by saying that the Treasury puts in the "middle" category incomes ranging from about $6000 to $25,000 or $30,000. His reply removes all doubt as to what he meant when he suggested in his State of the Union message that Congress should consider raising personal income tax rates in the middle and upper brackets. But $6000 is, after all, an arbitrary line of demarcation that will not settle the controversy in Congress over the amount of new taxes (if any) that should be raised by increasing individual taxes and the proper starting point for imposition of such taxes.

The real point at issue is whether the taxpayer with an income of $6000 has graduated from the low-income class and is in a position to pay more taxes than he does at present. Standards of income adequacy have, of course, been greatly changed by the rise in living costs. But, even at existing price levels, an income of $6000 is far above the average income of the great mass of American wage-earners. While certain classes of workers are getting extraordinarily high pay on an annual and sometimes on an hourly basis, the average earnings of workers in manufacturing industries is only $55 per week. That is more than twice the prewar average; nevertheless, even with full employment throughout the year, these workers would average only $2860.

Or take another illustration: out of 47.1 million individuals subject to income taxes in 1948, 32.9 million are estimated to have had net incomes (after deductions but before exemptions) under $3000, while 44.7 million individuals had incomes of less than $5000. Moreover, 110 billion dollars of the taxable income reported belonged to the people in the under-$5000 brackets, while the total incomes of the 2.4 million individuals in the brackets above $5000 amounted to only 28.7 billion dollars. After tax deductions slightly more than 100 billion dollars of income remained at the disposal of the former group, while the latter had 20 billion dollars of income left. Furthermore, 2.2 million of the taxpayers above the $5000 level were in the $5000 to $25,000 group. The statistical evidence, therefore, indicates that people with incomes of $5000 or $6000 are really a privileged class.

The figures also back Senator George's conclusion that, assuming Congress should decide to raise half of the four billion dollars requested by the President through increases in individual income taxes, it will have to reach down into the $6000 level. Indeed, a very strong case can be advanced for dipping down to still lower levels in view of the punitive rates of taxation levied on the topmost incomes, plus the fact that the bulk of taxable income is concentrated in this area. However, it is virtually certain that Congress will not risk reprisals at the polls by voting increases in the lower-brackets.

Negative Policy

It is a sad commentary on the state of the Union that when a proven and able diplomat is nominated by the President to be Secretary of State of this Nation, and thereby play an enormous role in shaping the future of the world, all he apparently needed do to be confirmed by Congress and presumably by the general public, was to profess to be anti a single nation and anti a system of ideas.

This is negativism of the worst sort, and it has been just this sort of negativism that has characterized our foreign policy in the postwar years, and that has enabled the philosophy of communism to capture the imagination of a great number of people in Europe and Asia.

We here in America can also offer something positive to these people, but it cannot be done merely by being "against." The way to combat despotism of any sort is by what William James called "the replacing power of higher affection." Would it not have been refreshing as well as decisive to hear Mr. Acheson reconfirm the original spirit of Secretary Marshall's idea and proclaim that our foreign policy should not be directed against any one nation or any ideology, but it should and it shall be directed against poverty, hunger and misery everywhere?

Health Insurance

Mr. Herman Morton in his letter of January 14 feels there is no threat of socialism in a national health insurance plan. I agree. However, the plan being considered by the Government is a compulsory health insurance plan. I am certain that Mr. Morton will agree that fire insurance (to which he draws a comparison) is not compulsory but is subscribed to by the individual to meet his particular needs and to accommodate his particular purse. There are voluntary health insurance plans already in existence that can be tailor-made to meet the need of the individual family.

A compulsory health insurance plan is not the answer to everybody's medical bill. Only those persons employed and with a social security number will be covered by the plan with a 3 per cent deduction from salary to pay the cost of administration. This deduction can readily be increased to as large a sum as Government sees fit.

That it will be increased is evidenced by the experience of other countries who have tried such a plan—notably England. There the government estimated the plan would cost 152 million pounds—but finds it is going to actually cost 240 million pounds—or nearly a billion dollars—for a nation of less than 50 million people. That deficit of 88 million dollars will have to be made up by the people, by an increase of taxes from other sources. Hence, any apparent saving to the individual is a false saving.

Auto Prices

The January 13 Washington Post reports that Mr. Henry J. Kaiser, the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, and others are demanding that the Federal Reserve Board's Regulation W, which limits the payment period for automobiles to 18 months, be relaxed. The reason they give is that the regulation is "soaking the poor and favoring the rich," and is also forcing production cutbacks in automobile factories.

There is no question but that to purchase an automobile today does require an inordinate amount of money. The blame for this, however, belongs not with Regulation W, but with the automobile manufacturers and distributors themselves and the prices they charge.

Regulation W in effect simply prevents those who cannot afford these extravagant prices from getting new cars for which they would have the utmost difficulty in paying. Spreading payments over a longer period can not make the price of a new automobile any less extortionate. The Federal Reserve Board therefore should not contemplate any relaxation in Regulation W without a corresponding reduction in new-car prices.

Inaugural Tickets

Try as hard as I can, I can't justify treating an inaugural as a Broadway show. It seems highly undemocratic to me that a small group of people can decide who is to attend such a function. Surely, money should not be the deciding criterion! I also cannot understand the use of public sidewalks for the construction of bleacher seats, to be bought and sold.

Western Market

As a 30-year west end resident and substantial real estate taxpayer I should like to file a vigorous protest against proposed plans to raze the present Western Market Building at 21st and K sts. nw., now under consideration by the District Commissioners, and to lease the land "to a group of investors for erection of a combination parking-public market structure."

True, the plea has been advanced that city revenues would be increased by this scheme of renting to private commercial interests. Has any thought been given to the cheapening of all adjacent and nearby properties by the erection of an all-night garage on this site?

Freedom Train Crowds

I hope that others who visit the Freedom Train have more freedom than I had to inspect the documents.

As there are exhibits on both sides of the car, and a double line of sightseers, you get a chance to see only half the documents. With the crowd pushing in back of you, you can hardly do more than see the titles of these.

Might it be possible to avoid the crush, and give people a chance to see what they came for, by limiting the number admitted to each car at one time?

Changes In Taft-Hartley

The Taft-Hartley labor law should not be repealed. Despite the tremendous pressure being brought by unionized labor groups it is to be hoped that our legislators will consider the interests of the great majority of American citizens as against the interests of special groups whose ambitions and aspirations are entirely selfish and who cannot or will not see beyond the bounds of their own ranks.

This law is a protection for the honest, upright laboring man in affording him a choice, within certain limits, a to whether he joins or does not join a union when seeking employment. If the law is amended it should be in the direction of even greater freedom along that line.

The law probably should be amended to give greater protection to employers of labor, by way of giving them freedom of choice in the hiring of their own labor and in the dismissal of their own laborers when found incompetent or unsatisfactory. The right to hold a job should depend upon the individual merit of the worker and not upon the possession of a union card.

The radical labor union members and especially the unscrupulous labor union bosses are doing just what the Communists want them to do. An honest, upright and patriotic labor union official will not refuse to sign an affidavit renouncing communism and this is what they should be required to do. It is unfortunate that our President is tied, hands and feet, to the radical labor elements as a result of promises rashly made in order to get elected.

WILLIAM N. HALL.
Arlington.

We may expect to hear much about the alleged abuses of power by a few labor leaders. The substantial contributions made to the national welfare by the labor movement are likely to receive less attention than they deserve.

Labor organizations always have been bitterly fought in America, and often by unfair and undemocratic means. The financial and political forces which throw their weight against labor's attempt to expand its influence were always extremely powerful. To meet this opposition it became necessary that labor unions become powerful also.

Most unhappily for the growth of the labor movement the law was weighted heavily against unions in favor of employers. Too often also courts were decidedly unfriendly. It is therefore only natural that now that unions have become powerful at last, labor leaders should have the feeling that "It's about time."

Most people agree, however, that this free-for-all fight now must come to an end. With so much power on both sides, the conflict endangers the very foundation of our national prosperity. We cannot afford the production curtailment which a continuation of this industrial battle makes certain.

Labor men look upon strikes as definitely effects, rather than as being the cause of work stoppages. In practically every case involving a strike, the responsibility for the work stoppage is the effect or result of the unwillingness of the employer to meet the price terms of the workers as expressed through their authorized union. But many labor men are coming to see that if the nature of the work interrupted by the strike is so highly "charged with the public interest" as some courts have held, that the stoppage cannot safely be permitted by the Government, then certainly the operations involved must be classified as public utilities.

Men might not have full freedom to work or refuse to work in essential public utility situations, but in such case it seems absurd to continue the legal fiction that such operations are a part of our "free enterprise system." In all this controversy, let it never be forgotten that prosperity is vital. The means by which this prosperity may be maintained is highly complex and technical in its details. But everyone can understand the importance of an adequate wage for all who are employed. An adequate wage is essential to provide the buying power which to provide a full market for the products of our industries and farms. HARRY DANIELS.

Youth Sees A President

By Malvina Lindsay

Tradition's Triumph

IT HAS been so long since a President's inaugural was a big jamboree that you find yourself plagued by the question: Why all this fuss?

Here are thousands of visitors, many with Junior or Jane along, filling hotel lobbies, restaurants, streets, paying lavishly for lodging or crowding in with relatives. Here are blocks of wooden bleachers on which people who have at home radios, and easy chairs, or even television sets, will sit for three hours or longer to view a traditional parade with floats. Here are jaded socialites in a dither about their ball gowns and long white gloves. Here are half a million people preparing to join a sidewalk crush to see a President ride by—when next week they might view the entire scene comfortably at a movie.

You think of all the energy and funds going into this, also of the shadows hanging over America and the world—global starvation . . . atom bombs . . . unconquered disease . . . totalitarianism . . . the cold war . . . boom and bust cycles . . . the mutterings of submerged millions of people. Is all this inaugural festivity the busy-ness of an ant hill on which a cosmic giant may momentarily step? Is it merely mankind's love of pomp and circumstance, of bread and circuses? Or is there some deep subconscious sense among people that this makes them a part of the stream of history?

SOME ARE saying this inaugural is reminiscent of Jackson's, when "King Mob" came to town and celebrated its ousting of the line of colonial gentlemen. Yet these are mostly sleek, orderly visitors, far different outwardly from the frontier partisans who took over the White House in the 1829 inauguration. Partisans they are, most of them, party leaders and workers, civil office-holders. But among them are many nonvoters—children who have been brought to Washington to see an inaugural and a President.

Repeatedly, visitors give as their main reason for coming that they want a son or daughter or both to witness what has become this country's chief patriotic pageant. Repeatedly, local residents, members of both political parties or none, tell of plans for getting their children in seats or stands of vantage to see the President ride past.

You ask yourself, What shall all this profit young America? For that is the chief test of whether all this costly fanfare is justified at a time when the Nation needs all its energies and substance for the challenges ahead.

FOR ONE thing this inaugural may help the history books to come alive. A summation of the traditions added by a succession of Presidents, it may give youthful sightseers a closer, warmer link with the past. Its democratic pageantry should lift youthful hearts in dignity and pride.

The attendant sightseeing in Washington may be counted on to build more of the affection and sense of ownership with which Americans regard their Capital City. This mingling with other Americans from all parts of the country will also accentuate the neighborliness that in a strange city sets people from Knobtown to New York on the trail of mutual acquaintances.

Then too, children will be able to go home and tell their playmates of what they saw. And when they are old they will tell their grandchildren of seeing in the flesh President Truman, the President who . . .

Inaugural celebrations have been a hardy lot, you reflect. Even Lincoln's first, with seven States seceded, had its procession, its crowds, its Marine Band. In 1864, with the Nation still rent by the Civil War, there was an Inaugural Ball.

Possibly, people feel that they gain national strength by coming together for ceremonies, parades, traditional observances. Perhaps after the perfunctory inaugurals of depression and war years they are hungry for what the British found in their royal wedding. Perhaps, with the age of innocence in world affairs long gone, they have a heightened sense of uncertainty about the future and long to feel the support of solid national traditions. Perhaps they are dimly aware that the many wars going on in men's minds may give this Inaugural a special niche in history.

Transit Radios

The Capital Transit Co. again proposes to inflict its riders with radio loudspeakers on buses and streetcars. The small comfort of having our commuting hours to study or read, or merely think, will now be denied. Let us vigorously protest this outrageous intrusion of booming advertising dinning at our ears, added to the noisy confusion of traffic, as we travel to work and back.

There have been unprecedented numbers of accidents in the past year involving public vehicles in the District of Columbia. Adding more noise to the motorman's problem can only result in further diversion of his interest from driving. Many commuters employ these precious hours to study. Must our rights be trampled in the greedy rush for more advertising media? IONE CONWAY.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

As Acheson Takes Over

FEW MEN in American public life have had the opportunity and, at the same time, the burden of responsibility that now falls on Dean Acheson. The new Secretary of State will enter office with the confidence and friendship of the President and responsible leaders in Congress.

Childs

In the department he takes over he will find associates with whom he had worked on intimate terms while he was Undersecretary. One of the advantages in Acheson's appointment is that he begins with a broad range of experience and background.

He was in part responsible for the appointment of George F. Kennan to head the State Department's planning staff. Contrary to rumors circulated since the President appointed Acheson, the two men worked well together. In fact, when Acheson's good friend, Justice Felix Frankfurter, gave him a dinner at the time of his retirement as Undersecretary, one of two close associates present from the department was Kennan. The other was Charles E. Bohlen, now counselor of the department. Bohlen, regarded as one of the ablest and most knowledgeable experts on foreign affairs, particularly in the Russian sphere, also worked closely with Acheson.

The new Secretary will, of course, be faced with the necessity of major changes. If Walter Bedell Smith, when he ends his vacation, informs the President that he cannot for reasons of health and income return to his post as Ambassador to Russia, the President will accept his resignation willingly.

GENERAL Smith should not be asked to return. Two years and more of the solitary confinement that is the American Embassy in Moscow is enough to make the most dispassionate and objective man lose his perspective.

In other diplomatic posts abroad the United States is inadequately or badly represented. Changes, to be made gradually and tactfully, are essential.

A drastic overhaul is due also in the field of Latin-American relations. The deterioration there has gone a long way and the prestige and influence of this country have suffered greatly, as we seem to have condoned or even encouraged the overthrow of democratic regimes by force.

Reflecting the era of hysteria and fear now happily passing, Acheson's critics have directed most of their suspicion at the possibility he might "appease" Soviet Russia. To those who followed most closely his work as Assistant Secretary and Undersecretary that was patently absurd.

Their fear is not that he will appease Russia but that he may fail to explore all the avenues, however dim and uncertain, that might lead to a negotiated armistice or, at any rate, a truce ending the cold war. To be resolute and yet not completely unyielding at a sign of change from the Kremlin is Acheson's curiously difficult position.

HOW WATCHFUL and alert he must be, while maintaining the firm course of American policy, we can know from the past. When the Russians in the spring of 1939 decided to change their approach to Nazi Germany, they did not come marching into Berlin with flags and trumpets.

An unimportant diplomat in the Soviet Embassy in Berlin gave a hint to the German Foreign Office of a desire to improve trade relations. The significance of that hint was immediately understood and the Foreign Office prepared the way for negotiations that led to the Nazi-Soviet pact of August, 1939. While that is not a happy example, it is nonetheless indicative of Russian methods.

One difficulty faced by any American Secretary of State is that public opinion has come to expect him to be Machiavelli, Metternich, St. John and Superman all rolled into one. In other words, we expect the Secretary and something called "foreign policy" to solve the world's ills, even when the world is in the midst of a revolutionary change as it is today.

That attitude was implied in much of the criticism directed at that great American, George C. Marshall, who now retires. He was handicapped, it was said, by the limitations of his military background. Of course, he was. But the critics too often overlooked the qualities of greatness that carried him through a difficult transition period.

The point is that every human being has limitations of one kind or another. There is no saintly magician who can resolve every dilemma. Acheson's qualifications and capacities are so apparent that no one should be in the least surprised when the limitations of what he can do also becomes obvious.

U. N. Meeting On Indonesia Is Postponed

Lake Success, Jan. 18 (AP).—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada tonight postponed for 24 hours a Security Council meeting on Indonesia.

Informed sources said this step was taken because the United States plan for a settlement of the conflict does not yet have enough backing to pass the Council.

The Council will meet on Indonesia at 3 p. m. Thursday.

The United States, backed by Cuba, Norway and China, was reported by informed sources to be working for the support of Britain and Canada for its resolution, which calls for release of Indonesian leaders and progressive withdrawal of Dutch troops. Egypt was said to be favorable. These sources said France would abstain. Argentina, Russia and the Soviet Ukraine were reported likely to abstain if they did not vote against it. Seven votes are necessary for passage.

Austin Returns to Post, Declared 'in Fine Shape'

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate to the United Nations, returned to duty today after a long convalescence from an operation.

Austin became ill in Paris last November during the U. N. General Assembly meeting and was flown to Washington for surgical attention at Walter Reed Hospital.

After the operation, he went to the "Little White House" at Key West, Fla., to recuperate. His aides pronounced him "in fine shape."

3 West Zones' Consolidation Bogged Down

By Wes Gallagher

Berlin, Jan. 18 (AP).—The merger of Big Three occupation zones into a western German Trizonia is completely stalled, authoritative sources said tonight.

In fact, almost all major Big Three negotiations on the military government level in Germany are bogged down in disagreements among Britain, the United States and France.

The Western powers, who fought as one to take Germany apart, now are divided on putting her back together.

Six months of negotiation since the London Conference agreed the Western zones should have common economic, trade and military government policies have failed to produce any decisive results.

Authoritative sources attributed the failure to make any progress to these factors:

1. Resistance of military government job holders of all three powers to any curtailing or merging of powers.

2. Big power reluctance to give any powers they hold exclusively in their zones into a common pool.

3. Resistance of France and Britain in particular to giving up their close low level controls on German industry in favor of more general policy controls.

4. The fundamental difference between France on one side and Britain and the United States on the other as to how much power shall be given the Germans.

The merger of the three western zones now appears possible only by direct negotiations between Washington, London and Paris.

Pope Praises Work of ERP

Vatican City, Jan. 18 (AP).—Pope Pius praised the works of the European Recovery Program in Italy today but said its ultimate aim should be "to facilitate the spiritual life of men."

The pontiff spoke to James D. Zellerbach of San Francisco and 61 other Americans on the ERP staff here and their families. Zellerbach is leaving for the United States soon to report to Congress.

"Your vast country, so rich in production and material wealth, has also shown its richness in designs and undertakings," the Pope said. "Those who give, can understand the meaning of the phrase 'it is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

He added, "For complete success of any work of relief or reconstruction, it is essential that you keep in mind the ultimate aim of such endeavors, which is not only to alleviate physical suffering and provide economic help, but by means of these to facilitate the spiritual life of men."

New Cabinet Task Put Up To Sophoulis

Athens, Jan. 18 (AP).—Themistocles Sophoulis, who resigned as Premier Saturday, is to try to form a broadened new Greek government to include all except the extreme right wingers.

King Paul I entrusted Sophoulis with the assignment today.

Alexander Diomedes, a retired banker, was appointed Deputy Minister, with responsibility for the whole economic field. He, like Sophoulis, is a Liberal.

Sophoulis, 88, who is suffering from a heart condition, had resigned in a cabinet dispute over social measures and the naming of a generalissimo to command the army's antiguerilla campaign.

It is understood Gen. Alexander Papagos, who once declined the appointment, will be named generalissimo and will enjoy the powers and full authority he demanded.

Rhodes Talks Progress to Vital Issues

Rhodes, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Israeli-Egyptian armistice talks slid easily today into the make-or-break isues of boundaries and withdrawal of troops from the Negev.

Optimism still was evident. Agreement upon two previous issues helped to push the negotiations along.

Settlement of the Faluja pocket differences in favor of the Egyptians was viewed as solid evidence the Jews are seeking to wind up the discussions with an armistice as quickly as posible.

The Ninth Egyptian Brigade, made up of about 3000 men, has been besieged at Faluja since mid-October. Although terms of the settlement were not announced, Israel is believed to have agreed to release the troops soon.

It was announced in Tel Aviv that a United Nations convoy of food, tobacco and medical supplies will be sent from Egyptian-held Gaza Thursday to Faluja, and that the same convoy will take to Gaza about 250 wounded and sick Egyptians.

Private but unofficial sources in the Israeli capital said, too, that Israel and Trans-Jordan have scheduled armistice talks to start in the Jerusalem area soon, perhaps Thursday.

Israel Formally Rejects British Plane Protest

Tel Aviv, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—Israel formally rejected today the British government's note of protest over the loss of five Royal Air Force planes which reconnoitered the Negev battlefront on January 7.

After three unsuccessful efforts to transmit the memorandum to "Jewish authorities in Tel Aviv," the British reached the Israeli government through Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary General. Israel transmitted its answer through the same channel and informed Britain it was guilty of "a grave breach of neutrality."

The reply relied principally upon evidence given by two RAF pilots, who were captured, to prove that Britain had compromised its neutrality in the Palestine war.

Britain to Free 11,000 Jews Held on Cyprus

By Ned Russell

London, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, in an unexpected gesture to the new state of Israel, announced today plans to release more than 11,000 Jewish immigrants held on the Mediterranean island of Cyprus and permit them to go to Israel. They include between 7000 and 8000 men of military age.

Bevin announced the decision when he faced his critics in Commons and pleaded successfully for a delay in the debate on his Palestine policy. There will be a full-scale debate next week, however.

As Parliament reconvened after its Christmas recess, Bevin made a brief statement on the crisis in the Middle East. He showed restraint and great caution as he spoke and answered briefly some mildly challenging questions from Winston Churchill, Conservative opposition leader, and other members.

Pressed by Churchill, the Foreign Secretary hinted at the possibility of early British recognition of Israel. At the same time, it was learned a majority of the British cabinet is urging Bevin to recognize the Tel Aviv government.

Bevin said the problem of recognition was under discussion, but, he added, "It is not an easy one and you cannot take one state in an isolated way." He said the problem was complicated by the somewhat similar situation in Indonesia.

He was notably more conciliatory to Israel than in any of his previous utterances or in any recent Foreign Office pronouncements.

It was significant that none of the more active Labor Party "rebels" entered the 20-minute discussion today. They are holding their criticism until Wednesday, when there will be a secret debate on the Palestine problem at a meeting of the Parliamentary Labor Party.

Bevin's announcement of the release of the Jewish immigrants at Cyprus came as a surprise to the crowded House.

He made it clear that the Israeli authorities would have to transport them to their new country from the island where many of them have been held in barbed-wire camps for a year or more. He said the decision was due to the "more favorable situation" which had developed.

Churchill wanted to know how Bevin justified the move in view of the government's transfer of troops to the Trans-Jordan port of Aeaba on the Red Sea.

"Is he not, in fact, reinforcing both sides at once?" Churchill asked amid laughter.

Dodging Churchill's attempts to provoke him, Bevin said he had been working on the problem of the refugees at Cyprus for some time. But, he added, he had been "handicapped by arrangements with other people." He did not clarify this remark.

Bevin's plea for a delay in a full-dress debate on his Palestine policy was based on the fact that "delicate negotiations" are going on between Israel and Egypt at the Island of Rhodes and between Israel and Lebanon and Trans-Jordan. He said the negotiations were making "good progress" and warned against any debate that might disturb them.

New Policy Traced In Part to Talks Here

By Fitzhugh Turner

Britain's change of heart toward Israel can be traced in part, it was learned last night, to conversations in Washington between Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett and Sir Oliver Franks, the British Ambassador.

The talks have been going forward periodically for several weeks and another, lasting an hour, was held yesterday. The result, according to American and British diplomatic officials, is that British policy in the Middle East has begun to swing toward a union with American policy.

The State Department and the British Foreign Office have agreed for some time that Anglo-American strategic and economic interests can best be served by peace in the Middle East, but they have differed on Israel's role.

Lovett, it was reported, has persuaded the Foreign Office that the Jewish state does in fact exist and that it is important that that state be friendly to the Western powers.

The conversaions have been held in private, with a few advisers sitting in.

Sir Oliver, emerging from yesterday's session, told reporters only: "We've continued our discussions about the Palestine area and we've noted with encouragement the progress which is being made in the Rhodes truce talks. I personally have same feeling of optimism."

Pro-Soviets Delay WFTU Vote On Split, U. S. Delegates Assert

Paris, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—The expected split in the World Federation of Trade Unions was postponed tonight. American and British members of the organization's executive bureau accused pro-Soviet delegates of delaying a decisive vote.

The issue before the WFTU executive bureau is a no-compromise motion of the British Trades Union Congress asking for one year's suspension of the international's activities.

This motion, supported by the American CIO, was to have come to a vote today. But a counter resolution, introduced by the pro-Soviet general secretary of the WFTU, Louis Saillant, asked that the suspension recommendation be referred to the WFTU executive committee and general council.

James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, said "If I had my way, the meeting would have ended today."

Behind the maneuvering was the desire of each side to blame the other for the split.

The vote is expected Wednesday. The CIO and Trades Union Congress have decided already that if their suspension proposal is voted down they will withdraw and start a new international organization which will not include Communist countries.

German Reds Lightly Fined

Duesseldorf, Germany, Jan. 18 (AP).—Two German Communist leaders, whose followers sought to portray them as martyrs, got off with light fines today for agitation against the Allies.

A British court imposed a $150 fine on Hugo Paul, chairman of Ruhr area Communists, Paul Salenka, his secretary, was fined $90.

Their trial was interrupted by Communists singing the Internationale in the courthouse.

Durban Uprising Costs 120 Lives

Durban, South Africa, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Authorities said today that 120 persons died in the native uprising against Indian merchants here. The official death list was revised upward from 85 as Durban itself began to return to normal.

There were reports of minor clashes last night in several areas, but in ravaged Durban Indians began to emerge from refugee centers and moved about in groups.

Troops still patroled the worst affected areas. There was an acute shortage of fresh food in some districts.

Ambassador O'Neal's Resignation Accepted

President Truman yesterday accepted the resignation of Emmet O'Neal as United States Ambassador to the Philippines. An attorney and former Kentucky Congressman, O'Neal submitted his resignation last November 26, saying he wanted to return to private life.

Mr. Truman accepted with "very real regret," and praised O'Neal's "valuable contribution" to friendly relations between the two countries.

A. S. & T. Net In Year Rises To $814,123

By S. Oliver Goodman

American Security & Trust Co. yesterday reported net earnings of $814,123 for 1948, equal to $2.39 a share on capital stock. This was an increase of $69,626 over the previous year, when $2.19 a share was earned.

Bell

President Daniel W. Bell, in one of the most interesting and comprehensive pamphlet reports ever prepared by a Washington institution, cited these highlights for the year:

Gross operating earnings totaled $3,739,254, a gain of $298,774 over 1947.

Loans outstanding at yearend amounted to $44,110,888, an increase of $7,107,472.

The trust company added $254,959 to undivided profits, after disbursing $425,000 in dividends, adding $100,000 to employes pension fund and provision of $34,164 for reserves.

Investment in Government securities aggregated $63,596,339 at year end, against $77,780,605 at the end of 1947.

Deposits of $142,749,106 as of December 31, 1948, were nearly triple the $54,342,248 of 10 years ago.

All directors were reelected at the stockholders meeting. The board elected Floyd D. Akers, president of Capitol-Cadillac-Oldsmobile Co., a member of the executive committee.

William J. Flather, jr., was elected chairman of the executive committee, succeeding James M. Green who remains a director. Flather is chairman of Mergenthaler Linotype Co. and heads the Washington real estate firm bearing his name.

Bell was reelected president and Corcoran Thom was renamed chairman of the board. All other directors and officers were reelected.

NEW CHAIRMAN: S. Dolan Donohoe was elected chairman of the executive committee in the only change at annual meetings yesterday of the National Capital Bank. Donohoe succeeds T. Earle Bourne who remains on the board of directors. George A. Didden, jr., was reelected president and board chairman and all other officers and directors were reelected.

STOCK SALE: The financial district watched with unusual interest the sale of $20,000,000 worth of common stock of Bethlehem Steel Corp., one of the largest common stock sales since the war. The company, through an underwriting group headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Smith, Barney & Co., marketed 627,960 shares of authorized but unissued common at $32.50 a share, the closing price on the New York Exchange. The offering was made after the close. Advance reports indicated the offering was—in the phrase of one underwriter—"a huge success." The prompt sale of the stock should inject new life into the bitterly argued fight over the question of equity financing.

WHO'S WHO TODAY—Gene A. Bond of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Cos. was elected president of the National Capital Forge of the American Public Relations Association . . . Walter T. Bonney has resigned as director of public relations for Bell Aircraft Corp. to accept a similar position with the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics in Washington . . . Lloyd K. Crippen, vice president and actuary of Acacia Mutual Live Insurance Co., has been appointed to the aviation committee of the American Life Convention.

HOLIDAY FOR SOME: Washington banks and building and loan associations will be closed Thursday in observance of Inaugural Day. Major securities markets, including the Washington Stock Exchange, will be open Thursday as usual. Brokerage houses here also will be open.

ODD LOTS: Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania, has asked the State oil industry to absorb a proposed 1-cent boost in gasoline taxes . . . Public offering of 885,000 shares of Southern Indiana Gas & Electric common stock at $19.50 a share met an "excellent reception" and a sellout is anticipated by Smith, Barney & Co., which headed a group of 111 underwriters . . . Folger, Nolan Ins. of Washington, is distributing a booklet explaining municipal bonds and their tax-exempt status . . . Procter & Gamble Co. has formed a subsidiary with million-dollar capital to take over production of radio and television programs and motion pictures for the company . . . Timken Roller Bearing Co. has purchased the war plant next to its branch plant at Columbus, Ohio, for $3,243,707.

College-Trained Persons In Demand, Class Told

Job opportunities remain plentiful for college graduates, students of American University were told yesterday by personnel officers of five area corporations.

Speakers were Wilbur S. Prentiss, Revere Copper & Brass Co., Baltimore; Harry Schwartz, Hecht Co.; Robert Berry, Hecht Co.; Leroy Brunig, Lansburgh Bros.; Harry G. Easman, Potomac Electric Power Co.

Professor Theodore H. Levin presided over the panel meeting, which is a part of the university's business and industrial management program.

Industry Plans 5-Year Outlay Of 55 Billion

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—A total of about 55 billion dollars will be invested by American industry for new plants and equipment by the end of 1953 if present plans are carried out, McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. economists estimated today.

They said a survey showed that $14,100,000,000 is earmarked for investment during 1949, or "only 5 per cent less than the record-breaking total actually spent in 1948." Expenditures this year might well exceed those of 1948, since "actual expenditures have been larger than planned in the years since the war."

The survey also showed most manufacturing lines, with the major exceptions of steel and petroleum refining, have virtually completed their postwar expansion programs, the announcement said. But the expansion programs in railroads, utilities, oil production and pipelines still have two to five years to run.

Three out of four manufacturing companies are counting on profits and depreciation reserves to pay for their planned new buildings and equipment. About 15 per cent expect to borrow, and only 9 per cent to sell stock. But 20 per cent would like to sell stock, and only 4 per cent want to borrow.

A more liberal depreciation allowance for income tax purposes would prompt almost two-thirds of the companies surveyed to increase their capital expenditures, the report added.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—Cotton futures turned strong today under the impetus of more activity in the export market. Gains extended to $1.50 a bale before the market reacted slightly on profit taking and hedge selling. Final prices were 40 cents to $1.05 a bale higher.

Business Outlook

Conveyors, Stackers, Upenders Replace Dad's Lever, Wheel

By J. A. Livingston

AN INDUSTRY, as old as the wheel and the lever, is having a new burst of energy in the United States. Perhaps, it's because labor costs are high—as so many industrialists argue. Perhaps, it's because progress was long overdue. Perhaps, it's because of the war. The Army and the Navy had to move so much, so fast, and so often that new methods for picking up and putting down guns, tanks and shells had to be devised.

Livingston

At any rate, materials handling as an industry is up and growing. The magazine Distribution Age estimates that manufacturers, wholesalers, warehouses, truckers, railroads, newspapers, contractors, and so on, will buy 785 million dollars of materials-handling equipment and supplies this year. The industry has two magazines devoted exclusively to it, Flow and Modern Materials Handling, each with something better than 20,000 circulation. And some 60 business publications, from the American Wool & Cotton Reporter to the Fishing Gazette, devote departments to it.

Besides, the industry has developed a salty, picture-giving vocabulary of its own, aided and abetted no doubt by advertising men. Trade names include load grab, bale clamp (for cotton obviously), sideshifter, scoop, unpenders, scootcrete (a scooter which carries concrete), payloader, straddle truck (which carries its load underneath), skylift, and towveyor. Names of some companies are similarly descriptive: Hyster and Towmotor.

AS PROOF of material-handling's bigness and importance, 225 exhibitors paid for 110,000 square feet of space at Convention Hall in Philadelphia last week. More than 17,000 persons from nearly every country in the world and every industrial State in the Union came to see what's new in lifting, toting and dropping.

Equipment ranges in price from a few pennies for a corrugated pallet to $30 000 for a motorized crane. There are small, hand-push-and-pull trucks at $8 for carrying trunks, bales, and boxes to $3500 for motorized lift and stack trucks. There are quick-drying inks, stencils, and brushes for marking. There is a machine that cleans floors and separates pennies, metals and such like from dirt and waste materials, and then moves the whole business where you want it (cost $850). There are elaborate conveyor systems for hauling coal from mines or monorails for toting automobile bodies around a giant plant like Ford's Lincoln-Mercury. There are machines which stack loads 60 feet in the air as against the 6 feet a man might lift, thus using vertical storage space heretofore wasted.

ONE JOB on display at Convention Hall would grab a barrel, move it, then dump it. Other machines would scoop up sand, gravel, or whatnot, carry, and unload. Another, for use in large bakeries, pharmaceutical houses, etc., would lift a bag of sugar or epsom salt and empty it. A motorized wheelbarrow promises to ease all manner of work from unloading coal to wheeling fertilizer for a garden patch.

The fork truck and the pallet are twin innovations in the technology of picking, toting, and dropping. The pallet, made of wood or corrugated paper, is a sturdy, 6-inlh-high platform on whirh can be set lartons, machinery, barrels, bags—anything to be moved or stacked. The fork truck is a powerful but small vehicle, very much like the tow trucks seen on railroad platforms. It has a long two-pronged steel fork which fits into the pallet, picks up the load, moves it, and then, at destination, can stack it.

IN EFFECT, the fork truck is a portable freight elevator, usable anywhere in a plant where loads are palletized. To see it is to know that freight handling is due to change, that palletization is an inevitability like the electre motor.

The economics are simple. Nearly all unskilled labor in factories goes into picking things up and putting them down somewhere else. Speakers at the Materials Handling Show usually said that 25 per cent to 30 per cent of all factory payrolls went into materials handling. Obviously, then, here is where manufacturing economies are still possible in an era in which labor costs have risen, unions are powerful, and efficiency demands reductions in absenteeism due to sprained backs, aching muscles, and plain physical exhaustion.

Collaterally, factory layouts will change. One-story, spreadout plants will take the place of multi-story buildings. Example: Yale & Towne in Philadelphia has reduced materials handling two thirds by moving out of a four-story into a ground-level plant. Indeed, the history of recent migration of industry has been from crowded cities where buildings reach up to undeveloped areas where buildings reach out.

U. S. Warning Given on Steel Ration Misuse

The Government served notice yesterday it will crack down on any company that misuses steel obtained under a voluntary rationing program.

The warning was given in an announcement that guarantees of steel are being withdrawn from a Bronx, N. Y., firm on the ground that the company had not used rationed steel for the purpose for which it was intended.

The action was the first of the kind since allocations programs were set up under Government sponsorship to assure supplies of scarce steel for "essential" uses.

Misuse Not Described

Earl W. Clark, director of the Commerce Department's Office of Industry Cooperation said that "steel products allocated to the company for use in manufacturing warm air heating equipment were used for other purposes." The "other purposes" were not described.

Identifying the company in a statement as the Maridon Manufacturing Co., Inc., Clark said:

"Such misuse of allocated steel products not only violates provisions of the voluntary plan, but also seriously interferes with successful realization of the objectives of Public Law 395 (the law authorizing allocations programs).

"With steel demand still greater than the supply, it is important that we maintain a careful watch to see that allocations are used for the purposes intended.

To Withdraw Privileges

"We will withdraw certification privileges from any participant who does not comply with provisions of our voluntary plans."

Approximately 10 per cent of all steel produced is now directed to concerns that agree to use it for "essential" uses specified in the allocations programs.

Clark said the Maridon company obtained 576 tons last July 8 and 83 tons more on October 14 for making warm air furnaces, pipe and fittings for residential housing.

Clark said the company was given opportunity to contest charges of misuse of allocated steel, but "did not ask for the opportunity to be heard."

Baby-Sitting Sergeant Is Held On Morals Count

An Air Force staff sergeant who works as a baby-sitter while off duty, was charged yesterday in Municipal Court with committing an indecent act on a 5-year-old boy he was hired to mind.

The defendant, Sergt. Stanley Willetts, 28, was held for grand jury action. He was taken to District Jail when he failed to raise the $5000 bond set.

According to police, Willetts minds children for several families, including his own Captain's, stationed at Bolling Field.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert E. Short announced in court that "two or three" similar cases will be presented to the grand jury directly.

Potato Surplus Blame Placed On Waistlines

The Agriculture Department laid part of the blame yesterday for recent potato surpluses on a modern-day tendency to keep slim waistlines.

The surpluses have cost the Department more than 200 million dollars in price supports since the war.

Potato consumption has declined from 195 pounds a person in 1910 to 118 pounds in 1948, the Department said in a study of what to do about "too many" potatoes.

Many people watch their weight more closely than in earlier years, the report said, and there is also a tendency to substitute other high energy foods for potatoes.

However, the department came to the defense of the spud.

"Many housewives," it said, "are inclined to overemphasize the fattening effect of potatoes. Many do not know how many food values potatoes possess."

Despite public criticism of the Government price support program, the price of potatoes was said to have little to do with the quantity bought.

AF Asks 150-Mile Rocket Test Range

The Air Force asked Congress yesterday to let it build a rocket range for testing guided missiles that travel more than 150 miles horizontally from the launching spot.

It said "certain other nations" already are working hard toward weapons of "inter-continental" range.

200 Million Asked

It asked for 200 million dollars to get started on the job at once.

In a letter making the request, Air Secretary Symington said:

"The field of guided missiles is still within its infancy.

"Certain other nations have availed themselves of the services of German scientists and technicians, and are making vigorous efforts to produce guided missiles in inter-continental ranges.

"It will be necessary for the United States to take the lead in this new field."

Range Needed Soon

Symington said the range is needed soon, because the armed services are developing, and have "scheduled for tests in the near future," missiles that must be flight-tested at long ranges.

The proving ground would be for the joint use of the Army, Navy and Air Force, but would be under Air Force jurisdiction. Secretary of Defense Forrestal approved the request, which went to the House and Senate Armed Services Committees.

The services have a joint proving ground now at White Sands, N. Mex., where rockets developed by Germany during the war have been tested.

Camp Closing Hard Blow To Blackstone

Blackstone, Va., Jan. 18 (AP). Town Manager R. D. Maben, jr., planned today to go to Washington with "formidable data" in the town's effort to have the Army cancel plans to deactivate Camp Pickett, near here.

The data was prepared in conference here yesterday among Maben, Mayor W. I. Moncure, E. C. Moncure, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and T. N. Elliott, town clerk.

60 Homes Nearly Completed

Among data to be taken to the Capital by Maben will be maps and blueprints showing the construction of 60 new homes nearly completed and plans for construction of more than 50 additional homes in various stages of construction, all intended to accommodate the camp's civil and military personnel.

Other data included maps and photos showing completed sewer, water and electricity facilities to the new housing developments. Officials estimated the city's expansion cost since reactivation of Picket at about a million dollars.

More Than Did Its Duty

"The Second Army officials came here last year and told us the camp would be reactivated," Maben said. "On the strength of their representations that the town ought to cooperate by creating new housing, fostering new restaurants, amusements and other recreation, Blackstone more than did its duty."

Truman Must Sign Pay Bill Today If He Is to Get Raise

By the United Press

President Truman put off until today the pen stroke that will give him a $75,000 pay raise.

Today is the last day the President has to sign the pay raise bill if he wants to collect during his next four years in office.

The measure will increase his salary from $75,000 to $100,000 a year, and raise his tax-free expense account from $40,000 to $90,000 a year.

It also will raise the pay of Vice President-elect Alben W. Barkley and House Speaker Sam Rayburn from $20,000 to $30,000, and give each a $10,000 tax-free expense account.

Second Alexandria Councilman Files For Reelection

Alexandria City Councilman Leroy S. Bendheim yesterday became the second candidate to file for reelection in the spring municipal elections.

Bendheim

Bendheim filed his petition seeking nomination in the city's April 5 Democratic primary with Gilbert J. Cox, jr., city Democratic chairman.

Councilman Marshall J. Beverley is the only other candidate to file thus far for the primary which will nominate candidates for the nine-man City Council and the offices of city attorney and city collector.

Way Paved for Falls Church Suit on Schools' Ownership

The Fairfax County School Board last night paved the way for a court suit to determine ownership of schools in Falls Church by refusing a request to turn the schools over to the new city.

County and city had agreed last November to a friendly court suit because of an apparent conflict in State laws over ownership of the schools. The question is holding up plans for a $7,500,000 county school bond issue.

The city, it was agreed at the time, will bring the suit against the county.

The supervisors last week, however, felt the question was a matter for the school board to handle.

The council's request was that the county turn over the schools to the Falls Church school board and that the city assume their debt as of August 16, 1948, when Falls Church became a city.

The board's resolution last night stated the county board has no authority to turn the schools over to anybody, and authorized the county's Commonwealth attorney to defend it against the suit that Falls Church says it intends to bring.

Strike Averted On Hudson Tube

New York, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—A strike by 170 engineers on the vital Hudson and Manhattan Railroad scheduled for 4 a. m. tomorrow was averted tonight when a Federal mediator succeeded in bringing the employers and engineers to agreement on all major points at issue.

Federal Mediator Ross W. Foran announced that the strike on the railroad which brings more than 200,000 New Jersey commuters under the Hudson River to their jobs in New York every day, had been postponed for a week.

Foran did not announce the details of the settlement but said it "looks very hopeful" that the remaining "fringe items" would be cleared up before the new walkout deadline January 25.

Double DANDERINE GUARANTEES DANDRUFF RELIEF

Kills dandruff-causing germ*-on contact!

It's refreshingly fragrant and works so effectively it's been used in some of the most stubborn cases—with remarkable results!

Dandruff can hurt your looks, your popularity. Trying to get rid of it with ordinary preparations that simply remove loose dandruff is just a waste of time and money. For they do no more than plain water and brushing will do. They don't destroy the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

To get real relief, this germ must be destroyed. And easy-to-use Double Danderine actually kills this germ —on contact!

That's why we say Double Danderine guarantees dandruff relief. Try it. If you're not completely satisfied, return the empty bottle and your money will be refunded.

*Pityrosporum Ovale, the germ which leading authorities say is the cause of the most common kind of dandruff.

Hagerty Out as Hoya Coach, Becomes Director

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

EIGHT MONTHS AGO, the bonny members of the District Boxing Commission treated themselves to a $1400 television set, a de luxe number, out of commission funds. Senator Henry C. Dworshak, Idaho Republican on the Appropriations Committee, winced a bit but withdrew his objections on the plea it was a necessary "educational" step for the boxing commissioners.

POVICH

The plan, the commissioners said, was to aid in the schooling of their referees and the instruction of seconds, by bringing to them the manner in which fights were handled in other cities. And it would also give the commissioners, themselves, opportunity to closely observe boxers who may ask for licenses in Washington.

It all sounded plausible enough, but it appears that the commissioners now have been educated in another direction. They are reported readying a new bill for Congress that would enable the D. C. commission to dip into the promoters' television receipts for 10 per cent of the video income, as well as its 10 per cent of the gate receipts. Boxing commissions in other localities, especially New York, grab off a percentage of the video receipts, says Commission Chairman Heinie Miller.

MILLER FRAMED the bill that didn't reach Congress in the last session. He got the approval of the D. C. civic bosses, but if he attempts to introduce it at this session, he'll have to go some fast legal rounds with the talent of Mrs. Florence Turner, promoter at Turner's Arena, whose counsel advises that the boxing commission has no authority to move in on her television receipts.

Miller points out that the bill he prepared last July asks that the television revenue be included specifically in the "gross receipts" of the boxing contests from which the commission is entitled to a 10 per cent take. But the commission's percentage is specifically labeled under the District boxing law as a "gate tax," and the promoters' attorneys will argue long that the television revenue is no part of the gate receipts.

Turner's Arena has announced its intention of cutting in its fighters for 25 per cent of the video receipts, but not a penny for the boxing commission. In the promoters' view, the commission (1) isn't entitled to the money, and (2) doesn't need it. On the other hand, the promoters are having a hard time of it and need the dough, as do the fighters who have been battling for meager purses during the winter slump.

THE FACT THAT the New York commission is dipping a greedy hand into the television revenue of the promoters in no manner justifies the same tactics by the D. C. commission. The New York body is political and favor-granting in the best traditions of city hall politics. One of the charms of the D. C. commission is that it is nonpolitical, or so it claims to be, and is beholden to none except the public interest.

There is no great call to follow New York's examples blindly, anyway. Gotham is the locale of such charming innovations as Murder, Inc., but that act shouldn't move the District to a similar setup. The District commission is charged with administering a better boxing business in Washington, and depriving promoters of revenue which would enable them to pay better purses and attract better fighters is hardly in the public interest.

In Washington, the boxing commission isn't starving. In its last fiscal report for the year ended June, 1948, it turned over to the District government $5700, representing income in excess of the sum needed to pay all commission expenses, salaries and even the cost of a $1400 television set.

THE COMMISSION has a reserve fund of $15,000 despite turning over an average surplus of $6000 a year to the District government for the past several years. Not in five years has the commission been required to dip into its reserves, despite the fact that a couple of years ago the commissioners were put on salaries aggregating $10,000 a year.

If the commission were truly eager to better conditions in the fight business in Washington, it might turn its attention to a sorry situation among its referees to whom they allot only $25 for working a full program of bouts in the small indoor arenas. The take-home pay of two referees working the entire card is $12.50 each.

The District government, as represented by the boxing commission, is no more entitled to a share of boxing's television receipts than to a cut of the Redskins' or Nats' video income. The fact that boxing is a licensed business hardly gives the commission license to whack its by-products. If the commission gets away with a bite out of the television receipts, it could claim a bite out of the arenas' hot dog sales, too.

Leahy Here Today But Not About Redskin Job

Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, will be in town today but it will not be to talk about the Washington Redskins coaching job.

Leahy, often mentioned in connection with the Redskin vacancy, was reached by telephone last night at Norfolk, Va., where he attended a sports banquet.

Asked if his visit in Washington had anything to do with the Redskin job, he said:

"Oh, my no; definitely not."

He said that he would see Leo DeOrsey, a director of the Redskins and the team's attorney, but only about business matters.

"I'll have a friend wth me who want sto see Leo about some legal matters," Leahy said. "I've known Leo for a long time and like to visit him whenever I can."

Leahy was asked if he would discuss the Redskin job if DeOrsey brought it up.

"Oh, Leo won't do that," Leahy said. "He knows what my sentiments are along that line. He knows that I am not at all considering going into professional ball.

"If I were considering such a change, I would be flattered to have the Redskins consider me, but I'm staying at Notre Dame."

Leahy confirmed a report of yesterday out of Binghampton, N. Y., that he will step aside as director of athletics at Notre Dame and turn those duties over to Ed (Moose) Krause, basketball coach.

"Yes, that probably will happen within a year," Leahy said. "The two jobs, head football coach and director, simply are too much for one man."

Inevitably, Notre Dame's prospect for 1949 crept into the conversation.

"We're going to make a alot of friends next year," Leahy said. 'We lost seven regulars off last fall's team and we're going to lose some ball games.

"In fact, after next season everybody in the country probably will be calling us for games."

Cherry Stays at Texas

Austin, Tex., Jan. 18 (AP).—Blair Cherry late today said he will remain at the University of Texas as head football coach.

Cherry, head coach at the university the past two seasons, last week confirmed reports that he had been contacted by officials of two professional football teams, the Washington Redskins and Chicago Cardinals.

He made his brief announcement shortly after a joint meeting of the university athletic council and the athletic committee of the board of regents.

Schwagel Leaves; New Football Head Will Be Named Friday

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Another sudden upheaval of athletic personnel occurred yesterday at Georgetown with these surprise results:

1. Rome F. Schwagel, director of athletics since 1942, "resigned."
2. Jack Hagerty, head football coach since the middle of the 1932 season, was named to Schwagel's post.
3. A new head coach will be announced Friday.

Author of the announcements that appeared to leave all concerned slightly flabbergasted was the Rev. Robert Parsons, S. J., faculty director of athletics.

Father Parsons, who took over that post just last fall, was unavailable for comment.

The 57-year-old Jesuit, also a professor of logic at Georgetown, in his first shakeup broke up a unique coaching trio last December 21.

That's when Line Coach Maurice (Mush) Dubofsky quit when asked to take over as coach of a proposed 150-pound team. End Coach George Murtagh accepted.

With Head Coach Hagerty, Dubofsky and Murtagh had the longest tenure in college ranks as a coaching team. All Georgetown men, they had been guiding Hoya football since 1932.

Astonishing thing was that when Hagerty was called last night, he still didn't know that he wouldn't be expected to coach next season.

When Father Parsons offered him the director of athletics position, he accepted. At the time, Hagerty said, he told the faculty director that he thought it would be difficult to do a good job with both posts.

Father Parsons' announcement then was read to Hagerty. It said that appointment of the new head coach will be held up until Friday "for reasons of courtesy."

Hagerty, 44, seemed pleased with his new job. "I think the opportunity is much better and I'm going to do my best to be a good athletic director.

"I'm getting old for this coaching business, you know. I feel that I'll have a little more peace of mind now, and so will my family."

Hagerty admitted that he made a coaching recommendation to Father Parsons, but wouldn't divulge any information other than the fact that the person now is a college coach.

At the time of the December move, Father Parsons stated that Hagerty would remain as head coach and was ordered to get three full-time assistants.

Since then, Hagerty has been shopping for replacements. He recently returned from the coaches' meeting at San Francisco and said he expected to announce his choices shortly.

Yesterday, the surprised Mr. Hagerty said he received written and verbal applications from a number of coaches but, fortunately, had made no definite commitments.

Hagerty, one of the greatest backs in Georgetown history, was graduated in 1925 and then played pro football with the New York Giants. A native of Dorchester, Mass., he was backfield coach at Holy Cross in 1932, leaving in mid-

Margarita May Be New Hoyas Coach

Georgetown started its guessing game last night and there was a strong campus rumor that Bob Margarita, currently backfield at Yale, will be the new coach.

Margarita, former Chicago Bear, worked all of eight days last spring for the Hoyas before being lured to Yale for a reported $7500. Another name mentioned was that of George McAfee, great Bear runner, who plans to retire from pro ball. Wayne Millner, former Redskin aide, also had some supporters.

Merger Still in Air

AAC Meets, Says Outlook Bright for '49

By Jerry Liska

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP).—All-America Conference club owners huddled for six hours today without a decision to determine whether the 3-year-old circuit will merge with the rival National loop or continue the costly professional football feud.

Twenty AAC representatives met at the office of Ben Lindheimer, chairman of the league's executive committee, in a showdown over the loop's future.

Lindheimer said that based on the day's discussion, the AAC prospects for next season appeared "very bright." He did not elaborate as to whether this had to do with continuance of the AAC, or a merger with the National League.

Lindheimer added that the meeting would be resumed at his office at 11 a. m. EST, tomorrow.

No "Peace" Meeting on Tap

He said there was no "peace" meeting scheduled with the National League.

After the session Arthur M. McBride, owner of the champion Cleveland Browns, and Dan Topping, owner of the New York Yankees, left the office, telling reporters they were "going to see somebody." They declined to indicate whether this might be a National League official.

The purpose of the confab was to determine which members—undoubtedly the Brooklyn Dodgers, Chicago Rockets, aand New York Yankees—would be able:

1. To raise funds for another AAC season, or,

2. Step out of the picture to facilitate a merger with the National League.

To rumors that an expected merger might be composed of anywhere from 12 to 14 clubs, Topping added this suggestion:

The AAC might continue as a separate league with only six mem-

St. Louis Whips Celtics By 89 to 83

Boston, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Celtics dropped their seventh consecutive Basketball Association of America game tonight as the St. Louis Bombers held off a late Boston rally to win their third in a row by an 89-83 score in front of 3947 fans.

Belus Smawley was high man for the night with 25 points, while Johnny Logan hit for 17 points and Ace Maughan 16.

St. Louis showed brilliantly in the first, third and fourth periods when they scored 24, 28 and 27 points respectively. A strong second period drive enabled Boston to leave the floor at half time with a 38-all count.

With three minutes to go in the game St. Louis had a 12-point margin, but Boston cut it down to four points with 38 seconds remaining.

Even Fabulous Santa Anita Is Feeling the Pinch

Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 18 (U.P.). Southern California's worst winter in decades, combined with the pinch that racetracks have felt all over the country, today found luxurious Santa Anita's parimutuel handle and attendance far below that of the 1948 season.

As the track went into its fourth week of a 10-week season, attendance was off about 25 per cent and wagering was off some 40 per cent.

The Gorgeous One Performs Here Tonight

Turner's Arena will get its second touch of Venus tonight when Mr. Gorgeous George strides daintily to the ring for a slight wrestling tussle.

Embalmed, as usual, in the choicest imported drippings, his silky maize hair twisted meticulously into ringlets, George will be preceded by a new valet, Mr. Jackson Hunter, who'll scour the Arena ring for loose teeth, stains and bacteria.

Mr. George's old valet got the gate for letting a few bacteria remain alive the last time he disinfected the local canvas.

Chosen to oppose the Hollywood hypochondriac is Signor Michel Leone who normally doesn't mind a few bacteria as long as they don't foul.

Included on this grand Inauguration Eve program will be an octet of wrestlers, unscented. Nanjo Singh, advoate of the Cobra Clutch, takes on Stu Hart; Sammy Menacker faces unbeaten Wilbur Nead, Bibber McCoy meets Hal Keene and Harry Finkelstein grapples Fred Carone.

St. John's Routs Central, Pantos Has 10

The St. John's Cadets had a surprisingly easy time with Central yesterday as they trampled the Vikings, 48-27, at the Central gym.

Five-foot, seven-inch Bobby McLindon was the defensive star for the Cadets, shutting out Central's star, Jimmy Pantos in two out of three periods. Pantos scored five against Bobby in the second quarter, and five more in the last period, after McLindon had left the game, and St. John's had piled up a 32-17 lead.

the Cadets' attack with 10 points apiece.

St. John's rolled up a 9-2 lead in the first quarter, and the closest that Central came afterward was an 18-13 half-time deficit. The win brought St. John's record to 8-1. Central, preseason favorite to win the Interhigh championship, has lost three out of six starts.

Scheib Says He's Worth $10,000; Mack Disagrees

Philadelphia, Jan. 18 (AP). Righthander Carl Scheib, who won 14 games for the Philadelphia Athletics last season and hit .298 as a pinchhitter, said today he wants a $10,000 salary for his 1949 pitching chores.

The 22-year-old Gratz, Pa., native now living in suburban Willow Grove turned down an $8000 offer from the American League club owned and managed by Connie Mack.

Scheib didn't mention anything specific but he hinted his '48 pay was not enough for a 14-game winner (he lost eight) and figures Mack should make up for the oversight.

"I just bought a new house," Scheib said, "and I'm a family man too, and that takes money." (He recently became the father of a baby girl.)

Phil McNiff Breaks Nose In GW Practice

Nosed out by Georgetown a week ago, George Washington University's basketball team developed more nose trouble yesterday.

The Colonials' leading scorer, Phil McNiff, broke his nose in a scramble for the ball during yesterday's intrasquad scrimmage, and will miss practice for at least four days. It is expected, however, that Phil will be ready to play in the Maryland game at College Park next Wednesday.

McNiff has scored 111 points in 11 games, and is the third ranking pointmaker in the Southern Conference.

Meanwhile, G. W. Co-captain Maynard Haithcock is just recovering from a mouth injury suffered in the 53-49 loss to the Hoyas, and is participating in the scrimmages. Haithcock slammed into a Georgetown player, suffered bad cuts inside his mouth, and missed most of the second half of the game.

Lions Lead, 2-0, But Lose, 5-3

After trailing for two periods, the speedy Providence Reds wore down the short-handed Washington Lions in the third period to subdue the Lions, 5-3, before a meager crowd of 1129 at Uline Arena last night.

The Lions were getting the jump on Providence as the game opened. Lion initiative paid off in two identical goals by Gordon Duggan and Paul Mundrick after a third of the period was over. Both shots sailed into the left corner of the cage from about 20 feet out.

Eddie Kullman, a skillful and aggressive performer for Providence all night, got one back before the period ended.

In the second period, Kullman's aggressiveness got him into a fight with Phil Vitale and a four-minute penalty, while Vitale was sent out for two. McGill joined Kullman in the penalty box and Mundrick promptly scored again, sending the Lions into the third period ahead.

The Reds' lightning fast break clicked smoothly in the last period as Washington, depleted by injuries to Forwards Norm Burns and Dan Porteous, couldn't maintain the pace. Providence's last goal was scored by Johnny Chad after Lion Coach Frank Beisler pulled his goalie in a last ditch effort to tie the game.

St. Louis Is Named Top Team

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—Unbeaten St. Louis University today was voted the top college basketball team in the Nation.

In a coast-to-coast poll, first in the sport ever conducted by the Associated Press, the brilliant Billikens from Missouri received 69 first place votes out of 93 ballots to lead runner-up Kentucky by a wide margin. Coach Ed Hickey's fast-breaking crew has whipped 11 straight foes this season.

In addition to its first-place nominations, St. Louis drew 23 second-place votes anad 1 fourth for a winning 904 points, to gain the honor of being named on all ballots. Kentucky was the only other quintet to receive recognition by all the experts, but got only 16 first-place votes to finish second with 842 points. The Wildcats garnered 67 second-place votes, 9 thirds and 1 fourth. Kentucky's only loss in 12 games was to St. Louis, 42-40.

Western Kentucky, one of the country's six undefeated fives, placed third with 545 points. Only team to be mentioned for all 10 places, the Hilltoppers squeezed out only two firsts, but bagged 43 thirds to edge out fourth-place Minnesota.

The Gophers, triumphant in all their 12 starts, earned fourth place with three first-place votes and 480 points.

The Oklahoma Aggies, only other team to receive first-place mention, landed fifth place on three firsts and 289 points.

The tabulation is based on 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second and down to 1 for tenth.

Billikens' Coach Hickey Agrees, Says Writers Made Good Choice

St. Louis, Jan. 18 (AP).—Coach Eddie Hickey thinks sports writers showed excellent judgment by voting his undefeated St. Louis University Billikens the Nation's best college basketball team.

"I'm proud of my players and I can't find any fault with the writers who took part in the poll," Hickey said today.

Although the Billikens have already beaten some of the Nation's best teams, Hickey said he expected St. Louis' own Missouri Valley Conference to provide more trouble than the intersectional games.

Hickey flatly predicted his Billikens would beat Hank Iba's Oklahoma Aggies in an important conference contest at Stillwater, Okla., Thursday night. Last year the Aggies were the only team on the St. Louis schedule that the Bills failed to beat. They upset St. Louis twice and won the conference title. Currently the Aggies are rated the fifth best team in the Nation.

Washington-Lee held a 31-29 lead going into the last quarter, but the Cadets' rally was overpowering. The win was the third straight for unbeaten Charlotte Hall. W-L has a 7-3 record.

'Ironmen' Turn Back Coolidge

With their first team playing the entire game for the third time this season, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's Barons defeated Coolidge, 38-35, yesterday at the B-CC gymnasium. The victory was the tenth straight for the Barons.

The score was tied at 20 all at halftime, and Bethesda held a 30-28 lead going into the last quarter. However, Coolidge rallied to take a 33-30 lead early in the period, and Bethesda had to stage a spurt in the last few minutes to win. Fred Genau, who scored 18 Bethesda points, sank three field goals in the late Baron rush.

season to take over at Georgetown.

He has held the position since, except for a tour of duty in the Navy's athletic program during the war. Hagerty had an over-all record of 61 victories, 39 losses and 9 ties.

His teams of 1938, '39 and '40 had an unbeaten streak of 23 games before losing the classic Boston College game, 19-18. The 1940 team went to the Orange Bowl, losing to Mississippi State, 14-7.

Schwagel said yesterday, "Just say that I resigned." The energetic 36-year-old Georgetown graduate admitted that it was a "sudden decision."

The move came as quite a surprise. Schwagel left a responsible position with General Motors to return to Georgetown because of his love of collegiate athletics.

He was graduated from Georgetown in 1933 and director of athletic publicity while working for his master's degree which he earned in 1936.

He was with General Motors' overseas division and served as sales director of Venezuela, Colombia, the Caribbean area and Mexico.

In 1942, at 29, Schwagel became one of the youngest athletic directors in the country. He had a free hand at Georgetown, making all the schedules without consultation with the coaches.

He was president of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association and a member of numerous committees of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic League.

Schwagel said he was undecided about his future plans but definitely doesn't intend to stay in college athletics. He said he was considering returning to the export business or entering the public relations field in New York.

Mike Palm, who served as backfield coach on a part-time basis last fall, also was affected in the December shakeup of assistants.

Another coach leaving Georgetown is Mac Cara who resigned as freshman football and basketball tutor on Monday to take the end coach post at Mississippi State under Arthur (Slick) Morton.

Preakness May Follow Derby by Week

Baltimore, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Preakness probably will follow the Kentucky Derby by only a week again this year.

This became apparent today when three of Maryland's four major tracks submitted dates for their 1949 racing meets.

Pimlico asked for a spring session from May 2 through May 14.

The Derby has been set for May 7, so Pimlico apparently is planning on running the Preakness on May 14.

Last year the Maryland Jockey Club set the Preakness back a week amid general approval from horsemen. They liked the two-week breather between the first two heats in racing's triple crown.

As the schedule is set up now, the 100-day season will start March 28 at Bowie. There is a minor conflict in the fall, with both Pimlico and Bowie asking for the same Saturday, November 12. There was a similar contest last year and the commission decided for Bowie.

The dates asked for: Bowie—March 28-April 9 and November 12-26. Pimlico—May 2-14, October 29-November 12. Laurel September 20-October 27.

Landon Graders Win

Robert Chatfield tallied 11 points to lead the Landon School's seventh graders to a 27—19 victory over Sidwell Friends yesterday in the Landon gym.

Around Town . . .

Outstanding speed skaters continued to sign on for the South Atlantic championship at the National Arena Saturday night.

Manager Ralph Canary said yesterday that his Alexandria Arena will be represented by Jim Calder, Maryland State speed king and Alice Williams, national women's junior titlist, along with 15 other entries.

Catholic U. Wins

In a practice meet which took place in the Catholic University pool, the Cardinal swimmers turned in a 47-28 victory over George Washington University yesterday.

W-L Riflemen Win

Flaherty Scores 20

Paced by Bud Flaherty's 20 points, Chamberlain Vocational High's junior varsity subdued Hine Junior High, 53-48, in a basketball game at the Chamberlain gym.

The Atchison & Keller Plumbing Co. five last night defeated the Knights of Columbus, 47-28, in a McKinley Tech Recreation League game.

Howard Beats Morgan, 54-40

Frank Booth and George Jett led a slow-starting Howard University five to its third straight C.I.A.A. victory last night at Turner's Arena when the Bisons defeated Morgan, 54—40. Howard was behind, 9—1, and held only a 23—21 halftime lead over the losers, paced by Bill Sealey's 15 points and George Washington's 13.

bers, dropping the Chicago Rockets and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The AAC won't surrender without its own terms and probably would rather assay another season than have Buffalo, the Los Angeles Dons, or any other member ready for another try given a brush-off by the National League.

In this respect, it looks as thuogh the All-American means business. Publicitor Joe Petritz disclosed today that six clubs have announced signing of 44 players for the 1949 season.

Columbia Heights

Citizens Unit Asks Double Liquor Tax

The Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights last night adopted a resolution urging the District's present 50-cents-a-gallon liquor tax be doubled.

Dr. Lyman Keebler, a member of the forum's health committee said the resolution was in line with a suggestion by Commissioner Guy Mason to make the District's liquor equal to that of Maryland and Virginia.

The forum met at the Bell Vocational High School, Hiatt pl. and Lamont st. nw.

In other action, the group recommended $56,000 in District funds be set aside to treat teeth of District public school children with fluorine, and voted to join the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations.

Recreation Board Hit

Abolition of the District Board of Recreation as "unfair and discriminatory" was recommended last night by the Central Northwest Citizens' Association.

Meeting at Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, 10th and U sts. nw., the members voted to send letters to the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate urging board's abolition.

The members also voted to join the Central Suffrage Conference and to send 10 delegates to the next Conference meeting.

Playground Control

The Anacostia Citizens Association last night went on record as favoring retention of recreation areas under the District government rather than the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission.

The motion was passed at a meeting at the YMCA, 17th st. and Good Hope rd. se.

The association also approved a petition to the District Commissioners, asking immediate action to eliminate traffic congestion at Barney Circle se., and its surrounding approaches to the Sousa Bridge.

Petworth to Participate

The Petworth Citizens Association, meeting at Petworth Library, Upshur st. and Georgia ave. nw., last night voted to participate in the library's fiftieth anniversary, to be celebrated next Monday.

The association also urged that a stop sign be placed at 7th and Decatur sts. nw. for southbound traffic, and it moved to follow up a request for a bus stop at New Hampshire ave. and Emerson st. nw.

Merrick Triumphs

Merrick defeated Georgetown, 51-46, last night at Fort Myer in a Boys Club 120-pound class basketball game. Bob Ahearn and Russell Brown, each with 17 points, were leading scorers for Merrick.

Negroes Put on Committees By Head of Virginia Legion

Richmond, Va., Jan. 18 (AP).—J. Westwood Smithers, Virginia Department commander of the American Legion, today appointed Negro veterans to the department's standing committees.

The appointments of the Negro committeemen, as members-at-large of all standing committees, was unprecedented in the State's Legion, Smithers said.

The department commander said Negro Legionnaires comprised almost 10 per cent of the total membership of 41,393 in 1948.

Named to the committees were:

Thomas B. Edney, Post 81, Virginia Beach, rehabilitation; Marvin R. Smith, Post 348, Glade Springs, safety; C. R. Spencer, Post 343, Red House, agriculture; Leander Wheaton, Post 81, Virginia Beach, aeronautics; William E. Jackson, Post 62, Charlottesville, Boys' State; James Wilson, Post 119, Radford, education of war orphans.

John M. Cunning, Post 29, Danville, law and order; W. P. Thoroughgood, Post 5, Norfolk, membership; Rev. Burnette Brooks, Post 194, Arlington, musical organizations; Matthew McGuire, Post 152, Tappahannock, new post; U. S. Payne, Post 115, Richmond, outdoor publicity; G. G. Saunders, Post 161, Roanoke, Sons of the Legion.

East Central Civic

A reminder to Melvin D Hildreth, general chairman of the President's Inaugural Committee, that no official of the Federation of Civic Associations had been invited to participate in the inaugural was voiced last night by the East Central Civic Association last night.

The association met at Bundy School, 429 O st. nw. It also voted to send a letter to the District Commissioners requesting sale of toy guns to small children be controlled. Such control might eliminate accidents caused when motorists are hit by B-B and water pistol "ammunition," it was pointed out.

Bradbury Heights

Bradbury Heights Citizens Association went on record last night favoring a sales tax for the District.

In other action at the meeting in the Adelaide Davis School, 44th pl. and H st. se., the group elected Mrs. Edward G. Rees, 1223 45th pl. se, as secretary.

More and more value for the millions of buyers, year after year—for the average American family—not just the fortunate few—

So runs the record of progress in General Motors values.

The example above is typical. The Buick of 1928 was one of the fine cars of its day. Over the years, Chevrolet—America's most widely owned car—has outstripped even luxury cars of those times. Meanwhile, Buick, too, has been so greatly improved that today it is more than ever a truly fine car—to a degree undreamed of twenty years ago.

In Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Cadillac there have been corresponding advancements.

The innovations since 1928, listed above, are but a few of many introduced throughout the entire line of General Motors cars.

Now we have entered another year—and again General Motors has made great strides.

Every 1949 General Motors car—Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac—is notable for brilliantly styled new Bodies by Fisher, for superb performance, for surpassing comfort and convenience.

Go to the dealers' showrooms. Look at the new Cadillac with its revolutionary new V-8 power and the new Buick with silk-smooth Dynaflow. See the Futuramic Oldsmobile and its new "Rocket" Engine. Thrill to the beautiful new Pontiac in two great lines and the stunning new Chevrolet for '49, more than ever the value leader in the low-price field.

You will see for yourself that General Motors cars for 1949 are an even better buy.

See the NEW 1949 GENERAL MOTORS CARS. See how much FURTHER PROGRESS has been made in features, quality and value.

Truman Wants Pay Rise for Military And Payroll Taxes

The President has frowned on continuing the $1500 income tax exemption for each member of the armed service, it was learned yesterday. Also, he believes income taxes should be withheld from the paychecks of military people.

Instead, the President believes that Congress should increase the salaries of the military. He has promised to recommend a military pay plan to Congress within a few weeks. This is the story behind the President's decision:

During the war the Congress enacted legislation to exempt the pay of GIs from Federal income taxes and the first $1500 of income for officers. That act expired last December 31 and the military agencies have started to withhold taxes from salaries.

The Navy, however, sponsored a bill to continue the $1500 exemptions and to forbid withholdings. The White House has informed Secretary Sullivan that the President is opposed on the ground that it would be discriminatory and class legislation. The President emphasized that he's opposed to reducing the take-home pay of military people—the effect of the present arrangement—and that military salaries should be increased by Congress to more than offset higher taxes.

MILES SCULL has joined the staff of the Senate Expenditures Committee. He'll specialize in the reports and recommendations of the Hoover Commission on Government Reorganization.

THERON LAMAR CAUDLE, the Assistant Attorney General, is being pushed by his friends to resign and be a candidate for the Senate from North Carolina in 1950. Senator Hoey now holds the seat.

JAMES WEBB had a most attractive offer which he was about to accept when the President tapped him to be Undersecretary of State. The University of North Carolina wanted him to head up its school of public administration. Earlier, he had rejected several business offers which would have paid him several times his Federal salary.

DAVID K. NILES, the able White House adviser on minority problems, will be the President's personal representative at inaugural ceremonies in the new state of Israel to be held in the spring.

DCEs: While the Civil Service Commission is debating the possibility of a new drive to find jobs for displaced career employes, the DCEs are forming an organization of their own. The jobless career employes hope to enlist all 950 of their number into a single group. They plan to take their case to both the Congress and the White House. The founder of the DCE group is Clifford L. Frank, 3707 41st ave., Cottage City, Md.

VA will establish 203 impartial boards to hear the appeals of its employes who are unhappy with their efficiency ratings. A board will be in operation around February 15 in each Veterans' Administration branch office, regional office, center, hospital, supply depot, and in every VA office with 200 or more employes. This will be the first time field employes may appeal their ratings. The boards are being established under a recent law approved by Congress.

ROY REID, JR., is the chairman of a new personnel policy board which is being set up in the Office of National Defense. The board will lay down broad personnel policies for the Army, Navy and Air Force. It could become very important to the lives of both military and civilian employes in the armed forces. Reid is the son of Agriculture's personnel director. He was the personnel chief of a Baltimore industrial concern.

TREASURY is among the several agencies that is all fouled up over Inaugural seats. Like every other Federal agency, Treasury was allocated so many seats along the parade route for sale to its employes. In fact, the employes were urged to buy through the department. But yesterday the sad news came—no seats for a number of people who had ordered and paid for them.

AGENCIES along the parade route are having a terrible time trying to divide up window space on a fair basis. Lots are being drawn in Internal Revenue and other bureaus. Even so, there are many unhappy employes.

ADMINISTRATION: The Hoover Commission has dropped its plan for a department of administration which would be made up of the Civil Service Commission, Budget Bureau, Bureau of Federal Supply and other service agencies. Budget officials were chilly toward the plan. Civil Service people were downright horrified by the proposal.

But don't count out the plan as entirely dead. There are several high-placed officials who believe the Budget Bureau should be converted into what would be a department of administration. They would give the Budget control over both personnel, office space, and other management functions as well as money. All I can say is this—these people are trying to get the Budget Bureau into a lot of trouble.

150 Watch New Council Take Oath At Rockville

(See Picture on Page B-2.)

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Montgomery County's experiment in charter county government got under way formally yesterday when its newly elected County Council took office in a ceremony at the County Courthouse in Rockville.

Approximately 150 spectators looked on as the new council members were given the oath of office by Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Montgomery County Circuit Court.

Frederic P. Lee, Bethesda attorney, who is out of the country in connection with a lawsuit, was the only member of the new council not present. He will be sworn in when he returns.

The council, after its formal induction, elected Lee as its president in one of its first official acts. Thomas C. Kelley of Darnestown, was elected as president pro tempore, and J. Douglas Bradshaw of Takoma Park, as secretary.

Besides Lee, Kelley and Bradshaw, other members of the council are: Mrs. Dorothy Himstead of Chevy Chase; P. Garland Ligon of Brinklow; Augustus R. Selby of Germantown, and Dr. Lewis Meriam of Kensington.

The new council named Irving G. McNayr, who has been county supervisor under the past two administrations, as acting county manager at an annual salary of $10,000.

It was announced that a committee composed of Councilmen Ligon, Dr. Meriam and Mrs. Himstead is now making a study on the permanent appointment of a county manager. The committee, it was indicated, may take several months before reporting.

A similar committee, composed of Councilmen Kelley, Bradshaw and Lee, all lawyers, is making a study on appointment of a legal counsel, another position provided for under the charter.

3 Resignations Accepted

Resignations of J. Ernest Hawkins, clerk to the county commissioners; F. Barnard Welsh, as county counsel, and Irving G. McNayr as county supervisor, were accepted.

The council hereafter will meet at 9 a. m. each Tuesday for public sessions and at the call of the president for private discussions of policies prior to public actions, it was announced by Councilman Ligon.

Three Resignations Accepted

Reorganization of the county government, particularly as it affects the two suburban districts, the fourth suburban or Western District, and the fifth or Eastern Suburban District, was discussed. A resolution providing for abolition of most of the jobs in these two districts and transfer of the functions to Rockville was presented by McNayr but action was postponed until next Tuesday's meeting.

McNayr said the changes would effect savings of $37,540 in addition to the salaries of the two county commissioners formerly in charge of the districts. Counting in the salaries of the two commissioners, he said the savings would run to more than $40,000 annually.

Council members said names of the employes displaced would be placed at the top of the civil service list for appointment to other posts in the county government for which they are qualified, as vacancies occur.

Proposal by McNayr that all county cars be parked at the county parking lots when not in official use was approved. County cars will carry suitable insignia and the inscription "for official use only," the council decided.

Boy Who Fought Sharks Off Cuba Arrives in Capital

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

SHARK'S BITE—Russell Anthony LaTona shows Mark Miller, Red Cross field director, where shark bit him

By Ben Bradlee
Post Reporter

The 13-year-old cabin boy who fought sharks for two days off the coast of Cuba with his bare hands and lived to tell the tale arrived in Washington yesterday with a yen for dry land.

"I've had enough," said Russell Anthony La Tona of Sacramento, Calif., with the air of a man who had spent his life, instead of six months, at sea.

Tony jumped off a Danish freighter on December 14, 1948, to save the life of his friend, another cabin boy. The ship proceeded to New York unaware that the two lads were fighting for their lives in the shark-infested waters.

Tony watched his buddy drown, and in rough seas and in plain view of shark fins started to paddle towards the Cuban shore, 40 miles away. He had only a life ring around his waist.

Twelve hours after he started, he was attacked by a shark which ripped a three-inch gash in his left foot. By splashing and making as much noise as possible he managed to thwart all but one of the dreaded sharks. On the second thrust, the shark ripped the skin from his heel.

Two days after he jumped off the Danish freighter Greta Maersk he washed up on the edge of a Cuban plantation, where he was found. Today, after a month in the Naval Hospital at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Tony is cocky and chipper, but definitely not a seagoing man.

The Red Cross brought Tony yesterday from Patuxent River to Washington and will fly him to Sacramento tomorrow.

Tony ran away from home in August, 1948, "for personal reasons" which he would not explain. His mother and father are separated, and he wants to get back to his mother. He left the eighth grade after only a few weeks.

Red Cross Field Director Mark W. Miller of the Naval Air Station at Patuxent River is Tony's bodyguard for the next 24 hours, but Tony isn't giving anybody any trouble these days. He is going home, sadder, but wiser, he said.

Governor Signs Measure Boosting Ceilings on Debt

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 18.—The first Maryland law to be enacted by the 1949 session of the General Assembly, a Prince Georges County measure, became effective today with the signature of Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr.

The legislation raises from $800,000 to $1,200,000 the debt ceiling of Prince Georges County Special Improvement Districts.

Signing of the measure by Governor Lane highlighted otherwise routine sessions today of both houses of the Legislature.

Budget Message Tuesday

During the day, it was announced that Governor Lane will deliver his budget message to a joint session of the House and Senate at a night session Tuesday.

The Lane message, for the first time in Maryland history, will discuss an annual budget. Previous budget messages have dealt with biannual budgets. Last fall, however, Maryland voters approved a constitutional amendment authorizing yearly budgets and yearly sessions of the Legislature.

The Lane budget is expected to call for from 130 million dollars to 135 million dollars to run the State through the 1950 fiscal year, which begins next July 1.

Besides the budgetary message, Governor Lane has also promised special messages on mental hospitals, tuberculosis sanatoria and tidewater fisheries problems.

To Mark Inaugural

Both houses voted today to adjourn after Wednesday's sessions so members can attend the Inauguration of President Truman.

The two houses decided not to reconvene until Monday night.

Included among the numerous House and Senate bills introduced today was one in the Senate by Senator Louis L. Goldstein (D., Calvert), which would increase the membership of the State Roads Commission from three to five.

Geographical Basis

At present, there is no geographical basis for appointment of the membership, and the bill provides for appointment of one member each from the southern, eastern, western and central portions of Maryland, as well as Baltimore City.

Goldstein said his proposal assures more equal division of the State's road building improvements.

In a companion bill, the Senator proposed distribution of one half of the receipts from the motor vehicle titling tax to the counties and Baltimore City. One half of the total receipts would be approximately $2,500,000, Goldstein said. He pointed out the additional funds would enable some counties to maintain their roads without levying additional taxes. At present, total receipts go to the State Roads Commission.

Change In Jury Law

Introduced in the House by two Baltimore delegates, James and Dempsey, was a bill aimed at removing an unusual provision in Maryland law which allows juries in criminal cases to be judge of both law and fact. Only one other State, Indiana, allows such a practice. The bill, if enacted, would limit criminal juries to judge only the facts.

Sales Control Is Asked on Cooperatives

Cogswell Would Bar Eviction Suits Unless 65 Pct. Of Tenants Buy

District Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday asked the District Commissioners to give him added powers with which to meet the growing problem of housing accommodations sold on a cooperative basis.

Cogswell asked approval of an amendment to the District Rent Act, which ends March 31, to the effect that if a structure is taken over by a cooperative association, no legal action to gain possession of any units may be made unless stock in the cooperative is purchased by at least 65 per cent of the tenants.

Cooperative Trend Increases

He said such an amendment "will very materially control the sale of apartment buildings in this city on a cooperative basis and will afford tenants residing in these buildings an opportunity to purchase at a more equitable figure than appears to be the case at the present time" and also give time for those not interested in buying to find residence elsewhere.

The administrator said the trend toward such cooperative sales grew rapidly during the summer and fall of 1948. He declared "one of the worst features" of the problem was that "with the possible exception of the Broadmoor," the buildings sold were from 25 to 40 years of age and in need of extensive repairs and improvements.

Second Amendment Sought

In addition, many will require extensive alterntions to meet the egress regulations. Thus, when "the tenants in these buildings are suddenly faced with the choice of buying the apartment at any price placed on it by the parties who undertake to change the building over to a cooperative basis" or be evicted, they may also become liable for the repair costs, he explained.

Cogswell also asked the Commissioners to recommend an amendment authorizing his office to determine maximum rent ceilings and minimum service standards for all housing accommodations created by "conversion" after January 1. He said minor changes have been used by building owners to justify "conversion" and release from present controls.

The Commissioners referred both recommendations to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West for an opinion.

Offer of Bribe For Prostitute Immunity Charged

Harold Hallums, 27, 2231 Bancroft pl. nw., was charged yesterday in Municipal Court with offering a bribe to two policemen in an attempt to have them "lay off" arresting prostitutes on their beat.

The officers, Pvts. John C. Ostrom and John A. Duquette of the Second Precinct, said Hallums gave them each $10 "as a starter" and promised a like sum for each night certain prostitutes were let alone by the officers.

Hallums pleaded innocent and was held under $1000 bond for grand jury action.

Ostrom, 24, who has been a policeman for two years, and Duquette, 24, an officer for less than a year, said that when the bribe was given, they immediately arrested Hallums. The arrest was made in the 1600 block of 14th st. nw., early yesterday.

Acts for Minors

Lawyer Finds No Patterson Will Flaws

An attorney for two minors who would benefit under the Patterson will filed papers in District Court yesterday saying that after a thorough investigation he found no grounds on which to challenge the will.

J. Edward Burroughs stated that while Mrs. Felicia Gizycka has charged that the will of her mother, Mrs. Eleanor M. Patterson, was executed through fraud while her mother was "of unsound mind," that:

"On the contrary, it is the opinion of this guardian ad litem that the instruments represent the deliberate thought and considered intention of the testator as to the disposition of her estate."

"It appears," he said, that Mrs. Patterson, owner-publisher of the Washington Times-Herald, "was a businesswoman of above average intelligence and independent judgment." In his investigation, said Burroughs, he interviewed witnesses to the will and its accompanying codicils.

Burrough was appointed by District Judge Alexander Holtzoff to protect the interests in the case of Richard Bennett Darnall Smith, 5, and Eleanor M. "Cissy" Patterson Smith, 15 months, children of Mrs. Ann Bowie Smith of Upper Marlboro.

Church Unity Series Opens At Catholic U.

Archbishop O'Boyle Presides at Rites Of Prayer, Penance

The sixteenth annual Church Unity Octave Service opened last night at Catholic University with prayers for return to the church of those who have separated from it.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, presided at the service in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception and officiated at the benediction.

The Very Rev. Edward M. Betowski of St. Joseph's Seminary, Yonkers, N. Y., said in his talk that many problems of the world may be solved by applying the word "atonement," which he termed a phrase meaning "at one" with God.

The annual Church Unity Octave, he said, was established as a period of prayer and penance that the world might be one, not according to the way of politicians, but according to the way of God. This, he said, would lead to a "genuine and true Catholic culture."

Father Betowski declared the recent request of 370 clergymen, to the New York Legislature, asking enactment of a law legalizing mercy killings was a manifestation of disintegration of the idea that the mind should be one with the mind of Christ. This disintegration, he said, has to be "corruption of conduct anad confusion of thought."

He urged Catholics not to be content with meeting a "pagan" world half way by becoming "half pagan" themselves.

The New York priest called upon members of the church to "radiate for Christ," and do something to "transform the human race into one family with God the father, Christ the brother, and Mary as mother of us all."

The Church Unity Octave Service will be at 8 p. m. nightly through January 25 at the shrine. The Rev. John Songster of Georgetown University will speak on "Return of the Oriental Separatists" tonight.

Grocers Forfeit $500 Collateral In Short Weight

Operators of a grocery store at 2159 Pennsylvania ave. nw. forfeited $500 collateral yesterday when they failed to appear for trial on six charges of short-weight sales.

The men are Edward and Roslyn Shapiro. The forfeiture was ordered by Judge John P. McMahon in Municipal Court. The storekeepers were fined $50 for short weight in May, 1948.

The forfeiture is considered unusually large by Weights and Measures inspectors. They made the purchases involved in the last month, it was said.

The charges cited a sale of 6 per cent light weight in 3 pounds of chicken, 10 per cent on a 4-pound chicken, 5 per cent on a 3½-pound chicken, 5 per cent on a 2½-pound steak, 11 per cent on 3 pounds of bananas and 8 per cent on 3 pounds of tangerines.

Recreation Board Feud With Interior Flares Anew

Wender, Schwab Say Department Holds Back Data On Golf Courses

The Interior Department yesterday was charged with deliberately withholding from the District Recreation Department information on the operation of five publicly owned golf courses.

The charge was made by Recreation Board Chairman Harry S. Wender and Vice Chairman James E. Schwab during a meeting of the board at which the long standing feud between the two agencies flared anew.

A dispute over which of the two controls 62 local playgrounds currently is before Attorney General Tom Clark for settlement. A major issue has been whether the Interior Department's policy of biracial recreation or the Recreation Department's segregated policy shall prevail.

Report Requests Ignored

Wender and Schwab reported that "for more than a year" the Interior Department has ignored requests of Recreation Department officials for information about the golf courses, and for a conference to discuss the possibility of the Recreation Department taking over their operation.

The golf courses are run for the Interior Department by a concessionaire, S. G. Leoffler, under an agreement whereby he keeps half of the profits. Leoffler's five-year contract, which expired at the end of the year, is up for renewal.

"The public is entitled to know how much money Leoffler is making," Schwab said, after he reported to the board that the Interior Department has refused to release the figures.

Official Questioned

Irving C. Root, who as superintendent of National Capital Parks, represents the Interior Department at Recreation Board meetings, declared the contract a matter between Leoffler and the Interior Department.

"Is that your idea of the business of Government," Schwab snapped, "that it be allowed to operate without knowledge of anyone?"

"For every dollar saved on maintenance, Loeffler pockets 50 cents," Schwab said.

Root said that Leoffler makes "about $12,000 a year" and that the Interior Department is satisfied with the way he has run the courses. His contract probably will be renewed, Root added.

Law Cited In Argument

Stating that the courses were built on Federal land with Federal funds, Root said he saw no reason for Recreation Department interference.

Wender argued that the Recreation Department was given jurisdiction over local public links under the act which set it up as a coordinating body for programs on both Federal and District owned recreation facilities.

Wender stated that if the Recreation Department is allowed to take over the courses the present inter-racial policy will be continued.

Schwab interrupted to declare that Wender could only speak as an individual, and policy would be decided by the full board.

"I suggest you reach agreement among yourselves before coming to the Interior Department," Root said.

The board accepted for study a report by Recreation Superintendent Milo C. Christiansen on the "Segregation in the Nation's Capital."

Christiansen criticized the study, prepared by the national committee for its "outright condemnation of public recreation in Washington, with complete lack of recognition or interracial use of certain public facilities for which the Recreation Board has responsibilities."

The Christiansen report said that the study has factual inaccuracies, and that "at no time did any representative of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital approach any member of the Recreation Department staff for information or verification of the statements made."

Area News in Brief

$5000 Peace Bond Set in Wife Threat

James H. Dutton, 38, accused of threatening the life of his wife, Lucille, 39, was ordered yesterday to post a $5000 peace bond or go to jail by Municipal Judge George D. Neilson.

Dutton was unable to find a bondsman to guarantee him for that amount so he faces six months in jail. It is the highest peace bond ever set in the memory of Washington court reporters.

According to police, Dutton, a waiter with no fixed address, broke into the home of his estranged wife at 1220 12th st. nw. last Thursday and again on Monday, and threatened her life.

Police Pvt. M. E. Swope of the Second Precinct, who arrested Dutton Monday, testified that at the time of his arrest Dutton declared he would kill his wife as soon as he got free.

Dutton denied making the threats and told the court, "I wouldn't take my wife's life; I love her."

Mrs. Dutton appeared near hysteria as she was helped from the courtroom after testifying.

Judge Neilson also fined Dutton $25 for disorderly conduct, and set $1000 bond for a jury trial February 9 on a second charge of threats and on a charge of destroying property.

Ex-Friend Strikes Out

The course of true love ran anything but smoothly yesterday for Charles S. Gardner, 25, of 6329 N. Washington blvd., Arlington, who paid a $20 fine in Arlington County Court for striking a former girl friend.

The complainant, Marlyn L. Minter, got the assault and battery warrant against Gardner last Sunday after he approached the car in which Miss Minter and a male companion were sitting in the 5200 block of N. Washington blvd., near her home.

According to the girl's account, Gardner ordered her out of the car and into her home. When she refused, she said, he struck her in the face.

She told Judge Hugh Reid that Gardner had persistently followed and "annoyed" her ever since she broke up with him four months ago. Gardner was put on $200 peace bond for one year.

Rent Bars to Continue

Rent controls in Prince Georges and Montgomery counties will be continued into the immediate future at least, Walter R. Heath, area rent director, told members of the Bethesda Kiwanis Club yesterday.

Speaking at a meeting of the club at Brook Farm Restaurant, Chevy Chase, Heath said he based his opinion on the results of a survey, taken by his office recently, which showed a housing shortage still extant in the two-county area.

Lamppost Snaps

When James E. Pryor, 24, of 1245 First st. sw., climbed a lamppost in the 1300 block Euclid st. nw. yesterday to clean the glass shade he got the surprise of his life—the steel pole snapped in two.

Luckily, Pryor was able to jump from his ladder before it struck the ground and avoided injury. Examination disclosed that rust had weakened the pole.

Tracts Sold for Taxes

More than 60 per cent of the 2879 properties placed on the auction block yesterday by the District government for unpaid taxes were sold to private buyers. The remainder was bought in by the District when no bids were offered.

About 50 persons attended the all-day session in the board room of the District Building. Samuel J. Kidd was auctioneer and Elmon F. Morris was cashier. Both are employes in the office of Collector of Taxes Guy Pearson, who directed the sale.

Originally 3100 tracts representing $249,000 in delinquent and unpaid taxes were offered for sale, but late payments reduced the list to 2879. A computation of the taxes gained for the District coffers through the aannual sale will be made today, Kidd said last night.

Two Suits Stolen

Clothes valued at a total of $150 were reported missing yesterday from a first-floor closet in the home of James Russell Wiggins, managing editor of The Washington Post, Third Precinct Station police said.

Police said Wiggins told them a Size 38 full-dress evening suit and a three-piece grey flannel suit were removed from the house, at 1612 21st st. nw., by someone who entered through an unlocked rear door between 10 p. m. Saturday and 1 a. m. Sunday.

Miss Harlan, Daughter of Justice, Dead

Miss Laura Harlan, daughter of the late Supreme Court Justice John M. Harlan, and White House social secretary during the Harding and Coolidge Administrations, died yesterday in her seventies at Emergency Hospital.

A native of Louisville, Ky., Miss Harlan came to Washington at an early age and became prominent in the city's official life.

Secretarial Career

She began her career as social secretary soon after the death in 1911 of her father, who had been an associate justice of the Supreme Court for 34 years. After serving at the British Embassy, she went to a similar position at the White House when Harding was elected.

One of her undertakings was the opening of a real estate business in the early 1920's, a move without precedent at the time.

She began her business at her home, 1207 19th st. nw. Her intention was to carry it on in the mornings while devoting afternoons to her work as social secretary.

Business Demanding

The real estate business was so demanding, Miss Harlan discovered, that she built an office on the lot adjoining her home, and worked full time.

She leaves a sister, Miss Ruth Harlan; three nieces, Mrs. Roger Derby and Mrs. Beverley Miles of New York, and Mrs. Robert P. White of Nevada, and a nephew, John M. Harlan.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw. Burial will be private.

Paul H. Alling, U. S. Envoy to Pakistan, Dies

Paul H. Alling, the first American Ambassador to Pakistan, died after a long illness yesterday at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. He was 52.

Mr. Alling

A career diplomat of 24 years' experience, Mr. Alling was forced to return to this country in July, critically ill, less than a year after he was appointed Ambassador to the new state of Pakistan.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett said yesterday he was deeply distressed to hear of Mr. Alling's death.

"As Ambassador to Pakistan he had established our relations with that country on a basis of friendship and mutual confidence," he said.

A native of Hamden, Conn., Mr. Alling entered the foreign service in October of 1924, after graduating from Trinity College and the University of Pennsylvania and spending four years in banking and editorial work.

For many years he served in the Near East, primarily in Lebanon and Syria. In 1942 he became chief of the Division of Near Eastern Affairs for the Department of tate.

Mr. Alling was responsible for making the arrangements for the historic meeting between President Roosevelt and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia aboard an American warship in the Suez Canal during the war. In May of 1945 he was appointed consul general and diplomatic agent at Tangier, where he served until his appointment as Ambassador to Pakistan in September, 1947.

On July 8, 1948, Mr. Alling was flown to this country from Istanbul, Turkey, critically ill from an infected liver. He entered the Naval Hospital a day later.

Mr. Alling leaves his wife, the former Romaine Loar of 2009 Wyoming ave. nw.; two daughters, Constance and Anne, and a sister, Mrs. Norman Shailer of Rochester, N. Y.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Friday in Fort Myer Chapel, Fort Myer, Va. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

J. M. Haley, Currency Expert, Dies

James M. Haley, 65, the Government's foremost authority on the authenticity of currency and securities, and the head of the contraband section of the United States Secret Service, died after an illness of four months yesterday.

An employe of the Treasury Department for 30 years, he was a member of the White House detail of the Secret Service from 1920 to 1935. It was his special task to guard Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

Native of St. Louis

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Mr. Haley worked as a T-man in the field for the Treasury Department before coming to Washington in 1918.

He received special training in the detection of counterfeit currency at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and at the Philadelphia Mint.

He was the Government's final authority on whether currency was counterfeit, and much of his work involved checking authentic currency which had been sent to him as counterfeit. He spent thousands of hours over his microscope in the Treasury Department, examining and measuring coins, stamps, bills and securities.

Helped Convict Counterfeiters

In many instances he helped prepare evidence which convicted some of the country's most notorious counterfeiters. He was the official custodian of all money seized by T-men in this country, which was carefully inventoried and periodically destroyed.

Mr. Haley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Evangeline Joan Haley of 319 Wolfe st., Alexandria, Va.; his mother of St. Louis, and several brothers and sisters.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Woman, 54, Killed In Crash With Highway Truck

A 54-year-old woman was killed yesterday afternoon when the car she was driving crashed into the rear of a highway maintenance truck on Route 301, about 2 miles north of Bel Alton, Md., police reported.

She was Mrs. Josephine L. Dellay of Kingston, N. Y. Her husband, John Dellay, who was a passenger in the car, was admitted to Physicians' Memorial Hospital at La Plata, Md., with a broken collar bone and undetermined head injuries.

Police said the accident occurred at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Dellay was pronounced dead when police arrived at the scene shortly thereafter.

In Greensburg, Pa., Anthony Volpe, 29, 3004 17th st, ne., Washington, died of injuries suffered when the taxicab in which he was riding collided with the rear of a trailer truck on Pennsylvania turnpike near New Stanton last Friday.

Another Washingtonian, Bernard J. Campbell, 24, 700 Xenia st, se., identified as driver of the cab, was in critical condition.

Negro Group Asks Truman to End Segregation Here

Enforcement of the District Civil Rights Act prohibiting racial segregation and discrimination in public places yesterday was demanded by the National Negro Council, 1717 Euclid st. nw., "as a final . . . gesture of hospitality to tens of thousands of guests now, arriving . . . for the President's Inaugural . . ."

The demand was contained in a telegram sent by the council to President Truman, which urged Mr. Truman to "immediately issue an executive order" directing the observance and enforcement of the act which disappeared from the statute books more than 60 years ago.

"The absence of such official action will only be calculated to invite the continued humiliation and insult of Negroes . . ." the wire said in part, acording to Edgar G. Brown, director of the council.

Funeral Rites For R. B. Ross Set Thursday

Funeral services for Russell B. Ross, 59, USO director at Hopewell, Va., and Laurel, Md., during World War II, will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at Congress Heights Methodist Church, 5th st. and Alabama ave. se. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Ross died Monday at Sibley Hospital, following a three-month illness.

A native of Corley, W. Va., Mr. Ross studied for the Methodist ministry at West Virginia Wesleyan College at Buckhannon. During World War I, he was secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Chester, Pa., and later served as secretary of the Northampton, Mass., Y.M.C.A. from 1920 to 1925.

In recent years, he was a campaign worker for fund raising drives of the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts of America and the Salvation Army. He lived at 4417 3d st. se.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Pearl G. Ross, he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Vivian R. McMahill, 2525 Minnesota ave. se.; Mrs. Kathryn R. Littleford, 4421 9th st. ne., and Mrs. Elizabeth MacFarlane, 4311 3d st. se.; his mother, Mrs. Nancy Lova Ross, Grantsville, W. Va.; two sons, John A. Ross, 620 E st. ne., and William H. Ross, 4419 3d st. se.; two brothers, Roy O. Ross, Clarksburg, W. Va., and Harry M. Ross, Bay Pines, Fla.; and four sisters, Mrs. Grace Curry of Buckhannon, W. Va.; Mrs. Ann Lowe, Grantsville, W. Va.; Mrs. Lucille Goudy, Bridgeport, W. Va., and Mrs. Olita Smith, Tort Gay, W. Va.

John Kenneth Yeatman

Funeral services for John Kenneth Yeatman, 37, Washington attorney, and his wife, the former La Dosca Hodges Buchanan, who were killed in an automobile accident, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Warner Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave. nw. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Lowry N. Coe, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association, has appointed the following committee to represent the association at the funeral: Albert F. Adams, Austin F. Canfield, Horace J. Donnelly, jr., George D. Horning, jr., Maxwell A. Ostrow and Edward R. Walton, jr.

Tuck Acts to Get Negro Unit Into Inaugural Parade

Richmond, Va., Jan. 18 (AP).—After receiving a protest that Negroes were not among those representing Virginia in the Inaugural Day parade for President Truman, Governor Tuck today made efforts to have a Negro contingent represents.

The protest was made by the State branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In a prompt reply to Dr. J. M. Tinsley, president of the Virginia State Conference of the NAACP, the Governor said despite the lateness of the suggestion if any appropriate Negro unit such as the Maggie Walker High School Band or cadet corps wished to attend he would try to make necessary arrangements.

The Governor then asked Adjutant General S. Gardner Waller to contact Melvin Hildreth, chairman of the inaugural committee in Washington, to arrange participation of a unit of about 60 from the Negro high school.

J. E. Segar, principal, said the participating unit would include the school's cadet band.

2 Boys Arrested In Car Tampering Admit 15 Jobs

Two teen-age juveniles yesterday admitted 15 automobile tampering operations, police said, after they were arrested alongside the railroad tracks at 12th st. and Potomac ave. se.

Police Pvts. George Cox and Oliver G. Coffin, who sped to the scene after a phone call that boys were breaking into a car, arrested the boys. They attempted to flee by clambering up an embankment, but slipped back on the muddy turf into the arms of the officers, the officers said.

The boys, 15 and 16 years old, were turned over to their parents pending juvenile court proceedings. Police said they admitted car thefts

Public Works Aide Quits at Takoma Park

Robert M. Ellis, assistan. superintendent of public works for Takoma Park (Md.) has resigned. Mayor John C. Post announced yesterday.

Mayor Post said action on the resignation will be taken by the City Council at its meeting Monday night. Ellis was named to the $5000-a-year post last September 1.

C. C. Weber Dies at 55; Paper Expert

Charles C. Weber, 55, Bureau of Standards paper specialist who helped the Army perfect "wet strength" papers for its wartime maps, died yesterday, apparently of a heart attack.

Mr. Weber

Mr. Weber, who lived at 3807 N. Upland st. in Arlington, collapsed at 8:55 a. m. yesterday while teaching a class in paper technology at the bureau.

A member of the bureau's staff for 20 years, he was assistant chief of its paper section at the time of his death, and an authority on paper technology.

During the war, he aided the Army Map Service in preparing for field use paper that would retain its strength when wet. He also supervised research at the bureau, perfecting a synthetic binding process that enabled manufacturers to increase their use in high-grade papers of the more plentiful short-fibered woods, by 50 per cent of the total fiber content.

He supervised other research on low cost housing materials in cooperation with the Federal Housing Administration.

Born in South Wales, N. Y., Mr. Weber was graduated from the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University in 1916.

He served overseas in World War I, then worked for about 10 years for various paper mills. In 1928 he moved to Washington as a member of the Bureau of Standard's research staff.

Mr. Weber was a member and past master of the William R. Singleton Lodge No. 30, FAAM, and a past high priest of the W. R. Singleton Royal Arch Chapter.

He was a member of the Technical Association of Pulp and Paper Industry, the American Society for Testing Materials, the Society of Motion Picture Engineers and the Technical Association of the Lithographic Industry.

He leaves his wife, the former Gladys Carr, whom he married in 1920; a daughter, Miss Muriel Weber, both of the Upland st. address and five brothers.

Services will be held Friday at 9:30 a. m. in the Eldbrooke Methodist Church, 4100 River rd. nw. with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Miss Margaret B. Fields

Miss Margaret Barnett Fields, 81, a former registered nurse who served in Washington for more than 45 years, died Monday at her home, 21 7th st. se., after an illness of several years.

Memorial services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Wastler funeral home, 301 E. Capitol st. Private burial services were held yesterday in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Miss Fields was born in Brookville, Pa., the daughter of the Rev. Alexander B. Fields, Civil War clergyman, and Mrs. Mary McElroy Fields, one of the first woman newspaper correspondents in Washington.

For more than 45 years Miss Fields served as office administrator for the late Dr. W. P. C. Hazen, Washington physician who treated President James Garfield's assassin, Charles J. Guiteau, in his cell and later pronounced him dead after he was hanged.

She is survived by a sister, Miss S. Helen Fields of Washington; two nephews, Eric J. Gaardsmoe of the 7th st. address; Don Craig, 1606 20th st. nw.; a niece, Mrs. Albert A. Claggett, 7307 15th pl., Takoma Park, Md., and two nieces, Mrs. Sarita Garvin, Santiago, Chile, and Mrs. William Wheeler of Rio de Janeiro.

Prof. Alexander Souter

Oxford, England, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Prof. Alexander Souter, one of the world's greatest Latin scholars, died here yesterday after a brief illness. He was 75.

In 1906, Souter discovered in Karlsruhe, Germany, the oldest known manuscript by an English author—a Latin commentary on the Epistles of St. Paul, written by a Fifth Century theologian called Pelagius. The commentary had been lost for 1000 years.

Dr. Spencer Of Harvard, Poet, Dies

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 18 (AP).—Dr. Theodore Spencer, 45, poet and holder of one of Harvard University's most famous professorships, collapsed and died today in a taxicab near his Cambridge home.

Dr. Spencer

Cambridge city hospital officials said he apparently suffered a heart attack.

(A fellow of American letters at the Library of Congress, Spencer was the brother of Mrs. Edmund R. Purves, 2120 16th st. nw., wife of the executive director of the American Institute of Architects.)

Dr. Spencer, author of a number of books of poetry and literary studies, was Boylston professor of rhetoric and oratory, a chair first held by John Quincy Adams and noted for many years as the professorship of Charles Townsend (Copey) Copeland.

Dr. Spencer was awarded the chair in 1946, succeeding the poet, Robert Hillyer, who took it over from Professor Copeland.

Graduated from Princeton in 1923, Dr. Spencer studied at Cambridge University, England, and received his doctorate at Harvard in 1928. He leaves a wife, the former Eloise Bergland Worcester of Hockessin, Del.

Silas A. Thomas

Frederick, Md., Jan. 18.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Silas A. Thomas, Frederick shoemaker and its oldest resident. He was 96 years old.

Mr. Thomas was in the shoe business for 70 years. Possessing an alert mind, he recalled vividly such Civil War battles as Antietam and South Mountain, and the Battle of the Monocacy.

Along Our Street with Aunt Penny

Last night was the night of the big basketball game. Just as one of the boys said, the home team was "on the beam" and won the game easily.

I believe the thing that impressed me most was the way the team worked together. I began to think how important teamwork is in almost everything—in games, schools, clubs and among neighbors, too.

Take the teamwork on our telephone party line, for example. The neighbors who share our line never tie it up with a long unbroken series of calls. When one party is using the line, none of the others interrupts, unless it's to make an emergency call. In that case, the party talking quickly gives up the line.

Just as teamwork helped win last night's game, it can help us all to better party-line telephone service.

County's Debt Gain 2¼ Millions in Year

The bonded indebtedness of Prince Georges County increased $2,271,000 during 1948 to $9,406,000, the county commissioners disclosed yesterday in releasing their annual financial statment.

The largest single item of indebtedness is more than 6½ million dollars for school bonds, it was pointed out.

The commissioners at a meeting yesterday guaranteed two new bond issues of a million dollars each, to be floated by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for construction and extension of water and sewer facilities in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

The commissioners also approved a $27,180 contract award for construction of storm drainage facilities in the Hampshire Knolls area, a special improvement district.

Administrative and supervisory costs will bring the total construction price to $31,385, it was pointed out. The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission will make the award.

In other action, the commissioners heard conflicting testimony about conditions leading up to the hospitalization early this month of the two young Huntsville, Md., children who have been suffering from cerebral palsy since birth. The commissioners decided to "continue" their investigation in the case.

Albert L. Snyder, chief of the Bladensburg Fire Department, which transported Marie Louise Hunt, 6, and her brother, Lawrence, 11, to the Prince Georges County General Hospital, branded conditions leading to their hospitalization as "an absolute disgrace." He was supported by a county social worker, Miss Agnes Duval.

In a written statement, however, Miss E. Susan Hendricks, county welfare director, said the children had received "above average care" since their case first came to the welfare board's notice in 1940.

The children were reported holding their own yesterday in the Prince Georges Hospital.

Va. Utilities Labor Act Violates Constitution, CIO Director Charges

Richmond, Va., Jan. 18 (AP).—Ernest B. Pugh, regional CIO director, today declared Virginia's Public Utilities Labor Relations Act violates both the State and Federal constitutions.

Pugh called upon the Governor to obtain a ruling on the act from Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr.

This attack on the law from a CIO official came after Governor Tuck announced he would invoke the law to seize and operate transit facilities in three cities - Richmond, Norfolk and Portsmouth—if a strike set by AFL Transit Workers Union for February 3 is called.

This decision was an apparent change of mind on the Governor's part.

He had indicated last week that he regarded the contract dispute between the Virginia Transit Co and the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL) as a matter to be handled by the localities themselves.

Pugh, pointing out that he was not affiliated with the union involved in the dispute, charged the law permitting the State to seize and operate a utility violates the Virginia constitution because it uses funds collected from all taxpayers throughout the State to subsidize a private corporation in specific localities.

He also charged the law violates the bill of rights.

"Once the State has taken over the utilities," he said, "employes are prohibited from making any effort to persuade or convince others who might take their places of the importance and justice of their demands. In fact, the bill goes further and makes it specifically unlawful even to place a picket line near or adjacent to any of the operations of the utility.

"We thus have in this bill a very clear, open and flagrant prohibition on the right of individuals to decide to work or to leave their jobs; and of the right of individuals to place their story before the public by peaceful and legitimate means to exercise free speech."

Britain Recognizes Republic of Korea

London, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—The British government has recognized the government of the Republic of Korea, the Foreign Office announced tonight. The republic recently came into being on the basis of elections held under observation of the United Nations Temporary Commission in Korea.

Pitzer Pledges Hunt for New Atom Sources

Continued search for more and other fissionable materials for atomic energy was promised here yesterday by Dr. Keneth S. Pitzer, new research director of the Atomic Energy Commission.

At the same time, Dr. Pitzer said research on security-classified problems of atomic energy should not be parceled out to the Nation's universities.

He gave his views in his first press conference held since taking office here on January 1.

One of the dangers of university research on classified projects, he said, is that such work does not fit in with the traditionally free collegiate "atmosphere" of American colleges and universities. National security measures that must necessarily accompany such research, he explained, tend to "fence off" those parts of the campus from regular university activities.

Such research, "with some exceptions, of course," should be concentrated in the National laboratories of the Atomic Energy Commission, he declared.

Shunting off most questions with the remainder that he is still new to the job, Dr. Pitzer said that research on an "across-the-boards" basis would be made towards finding new fissionable materials not so rare as uranium and plutonium. The new director, on leave of absence as professor of chemistry at the University of California, replaced Dr. James B. Fisk, who resigned last August 27 to resume his duties as professor of applied physics at Harvard University.

Alexandria Holds Robert E. Lee Banquet Tonight

Douglas S. Freeman, editor of the Richmond News-Leader, will speak tonight at a Robert E. Lee birthday banquet in Alexandria, part of the city's year-long bicentennial celebration.

Freeman's talk will be recorded by the State Department for use on its "Voice of America" program, it was announced.

The banquet will be held at the George Mason Hotel at 7 p. m. Some tickets at $3.25 apiece were still available last night at the Bicentennial Commission headquarters, 819 King st.

British Fresh Meat Ration Cut One-Fifth

London, Jan. 18 (NYHT).—The Ministry of Food announced tonight a cut in the meager British fresh meat ration and blamed it on failure of Argentina to maintain its delivery schedule.

Effective Sunday, the weekly fresh meat ration will be cut from 20 cents worth, to 16 cents worth. The loss will be made up by 4 cents worth of canned corned meat, and a week later the bacon ration will be raised from one ounce to two ounces weekly.

Texans Star at Clark Reception; Mrs. Vogel Hostess at Cocktail Fete

By Marie McNair

OPENING gun for Texans here for Inauguration Week was fired by the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, who borrowed Anderson House from the Society of the Cincinnati for a reception yesterday afternoon.

A special train from the Lone Star State pulled in yesterday morning with 120 Texans aboard, the ladies all wearing a brace of camellias presented to them by a fellow traveler, Lloyd L. Crane.

Before the party was over and guests started for the Truman-Barkley Club's dinner, Dallas and Fort Worth had quit feudin' and everybody was having fun.

Members of the Texas delegation in Congress and their wives were honor guests and in the receiving line were Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally; Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, his sister, Miss Lou, and Senator and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson. The ladies all were dressed for dinner, Mrs. Clark in black with a lace top sparkling with sequins and a lei of purple orchid petals woven tightly together, which had been flown in from Hawaii.

Black Lace Popular

Mrs. Connally, too, was in black lace with a bow of pale gold satin at the neckline, and Mrs. Johnson wore deep ivory satin, vastly becoming to her dark hair and eyes. Mrs. Delaney Walker from Dallas, who is Mrs. Clark's sister, and looks enough like her to be her twin, sttood for awhile to welcome the guests, wearing—believe it or not—black lace.

Miss Rayburn had chosen—yes, you've guessed it—black lace! Overhead in the two-storied ballroom the Marine Band's red jackets splashed the scene with color, the band keeping up a lively obligato to clinking glasses and soft Southern voices.

The Lieutenant Governor of Texas, Allan Shivers, representing the Governor, Beauford H. Jester, was there with Mrs. Shivers. Judge and Mrs. Richard Dixon were in the gathering and also Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark from Dallas, brother and sister-in-law of the Attorney General; Mr. and Mrs. George Kemble from Fort Worth and W. Arnold Porter from Los Angeles, and Mrs. Porter, who's about as big as a minute and wore a charming frock of salmon colored velvet with back fullness, a brief fitted jacket and a poke bonnet to match.

Achesons There

I met Sam Clark, the Attorney General's nephew, and from the Cabinet were Dean Acheson, whose confirmation as Secretary of State had just been put through the Senate yesterday afternoon. Mrs Acheson was with him, looking smart in slim black with an emerald green scarf high about her throat and a bit of green ribbon on her black hat.

The Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson in black tie and dinner frock, had with them Mrs. Burris Jackson of Hillsboro, Tex.; Mrs. Albert Thomas, wife of the Representative from Texas, with rust colored paradise on her hat, was looking for friends from Dallas.

Then there were the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, the Secretary of the Air Force, tall, handsome Stuart Symington, with Mrs. Symington in black satin with a bustle back, like almost everybody else, bound for the Truman-Barkley Club's dinner.

The Rev. A. D. Cannon of Corpus Christi, was there and others were Gaston Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Adams of Beaumont; Mrs. W. O. Cooper of Dallas, Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Thomas Schoemake of Fort Worth, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ash of Washington.

Who wasn't at Mrs. Martin Vogel's cocktail party yesterday, rather than who was, is the news of this story.

Two personable young men who have been friends for years were honor guests. One was Mrs. Vogel's son, handsome Pete Vogel up from Warrenton, Va., for the day, the other, equally good-looking, Geoffrey Jones, recently arrived in town from New York for a job with the State Department.

With Mrs. Vogel wearing a long gown of pale blue crepe between them, they stood to welcome the several hundred guests who came and went from Mrs. Vogel's house with the terraced gardens high up on 30th st. at the edge of Rock Creek Park. And now—here goes!

There was Mme. Morgenstierne, wife of the dean of the diplomatic corps, in black jacquard satin with an off-the-face hat of flat feathers framing her pretty face; and Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, wearing a subdued gray costume, and Lady Rama Rau, wife of the Indian Ambassador, in a colorful sari.

The Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila were there and Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Justice, and Laurence Steinhardt, once Ambassador to Russia, now our envoy to Canada and with him Mrs. Steinhardt bundled up in furs for Canada weather. Got a cheery "hello" from Mrs. Joseph Farrington, Mrs. Lowell Stockman and Mrs. Burks Summers, standing together outside waiting for the traffic jam to subside, and a friendly greeting from the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Caceres.

Mrs. Vogel's two nieces—Mrs. Clayton Adams and Miss Fay Lewisohn, were on hand, both in black frocks and Madeleine Adams had tucked blue velvet bows in her shining black hair.

The Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, circulated through the pleasant rooms, and I saw the former French Premier, Camille Chautemps, and Mme. Chautemps, who is going about again after a serious illness.

Then—Alfons Vogel, who resigned in protest from the Romanian Legation staff, with pretty Mme. Vogel, exchanging pleasantries with Mrs. Elonzo Tyner; Capt. John P. Jackson viewing the scene from a comfortable seat while Mrs. Jackson made the circuit; Mrs. Leo Brison Norris and Mrs. James Souby talking together, and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege among those around the buffet.

Clarence Hewes was there and Edward Van Devanter, Capt. and Mrs. Valentine Pottle, Mrs. McKinney Hunt wearing an ermine hat with her black suit; Mrs. William Disque with touches of her favorite blue on her hat; Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard and Mrs. Anthony Wadden with her daughter, Edwina.

Brian Stonehouse, young British portrait painter was both surprised and pleased to find Miss Elvina Steenbruck among the guests. Miss Steenbruck and Mr. Stonehouse first met after his liberation from Dachau, made an excursion with others to a nearby point where women were forbidden to trespass. But they solved that problem by disguising Miss Steenbruck as a man.

And—to go on—Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy, former Senator Henry F. Amherst, Arthur Saul, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Prochnik, Mrs. Junior Owens who was introducing her guest, Mrs. Vera Randall of Sherman, Tex.; Mme. Dreux, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves.

Education Is Wonderful!

Electors Are College Men You Vote for to Vote for The Fellow You Voted for

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WITH 531 ELECTORS, or three quarters of their total number, milling around in town, presumably polished and primped for tonight's Electoral Dinner at the Mayflower, we thought it high time to find out what an Elector really IS. It seems he's the little man you vote for to vote for the President! To add to the confusion, each State is an Electoral College and all the colleges get together here in Washington. Democrats, Republicans, even Dixiecrats select a candidate and one is elected in every congressional district. Naturally, you pick the elector you want—but there is no guarantee he will vote for your presidential preference. Mostly, however, Electors stick to the party line. Once in awhile some rugged individualist bolts and taps his party's opposition. Since it is hard to get all the boys together, this is only the fifth time in 41 inaugurals such a sizable bunch has assembled. Head of the Electoral Colleges is Francis Michael Doyle, a Philadelphia lawyer, who is on his seventeenth year and fifth term in office. Besides Mr. Doyle, the Electoral Dinner Committee includes Senators McGrath and Lucas, Leslie Biffle, Homer Cummings, Matt Connelly and Jonathan Daniels. On Inauguration Day the Electors will meet in the office of Secretary of the Senate Biffle, march to their Inaugural stand seats with members of Senate and House. Afterward they will escort President Truman back to the White House and later be honored guests at a reception given by the President and Mrs. Truman at the National Gallery of Art. Some 1900 will be squashed into the Electoral dinner, among the crush the whole Supreme Court and Cabinet, Senators, Representatives and a few lesser lights.

IT IS CURIOUS, but true, not even the most expert has had the faintest idea of the probable number of inaugural visitors. The Inaugural Housing Committee, however, is ready with 17,000 available beds. They've set up a stand in Union Station, with six women in charge and connected to headquarters by direct wire. Fortunately, many Inaugural guests present no bed problem. They'll pillow-pound in private trains parked at various junctions and freight yards. In addition to innumerable extra cars added to ordinary trains, some forty-four special trains are heading Washingtonward. Only 17 will be brought into Union Station. West Point cadets and Coast Guard laddies will be routed to the B. & O. freight yard, the Georgia Democrats will be in the Kenilworth yard across the river at 34th st. and Benning rd. Others will be in the Jersey yard at 14th and D sts. sw., some near the Union Market. The trains will be self-sufficient, and taxicabs and buses have been alerted. The Governor of Missouri was chief of the most elaborate cavalcade, three special trains were crammed with delirious home State boys. Some of the trains have individual bands—and at one time or another Union Station has been crammed with amateur musicians; the Purdue University Glee Club, the Chambersburg Drum and Bugle Corps, the Danbury Hatters (with Drew Pearson as drum major), Fife and Drum Corps, the Coe College ROTC Band, the Oconomowoc (from Wisconsin) American Legion Band, the Drum and Bugle Corps of the Lieut. Norman Prince Jr. Veterans of Foreign Wars Post.

Inaugural Fetes

Among the guests were Mrs. Clark Clifford, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Earle Stewart, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. George Mesta, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr., and Mrs. Tom Connally.

FORMER Attorney General and Mrs. Francis Biddle will be Inauguration Day hosts at an informal cocktail party and supper for a few close friends and out-of-town visitors. Mr. and Mrs. Biddle are just back from a three months trip to Europe.

President to Receive 7500

War I Comrades Placed First After Officials

By Elizabeth Maguire

WORLD WAR buddies of the President will be among the first to go down the line at the Inaugural reception tomorrow. Over 7500 guests will be received by the President at the National Gallery of Art, but he will shake hands with only a limited number.

Standing with the President will be Mrs. Truman, Vice President Alben W. Barkley and Mrs. Max ORell Truitt, daughter and official hostess of the Vice President. Miss Truman will not be in the receiving line, but she will be on hand greeting guests by the thousands.

The "five-o'clock group," which includes those being received prior to others, is headed by Governors of States. Governors will be followed by Electors and members of the Supreme Court and the Cabinet, and then members of the Joint Congressional Committee. After the above groups and their wives have been received, members of Battery D will be received in a body by the President. The President's family and his friends, and family and friends of the Vice President will follow. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is included in this latter group.

Military Heads Next

In the military group which comes next will be the Chiefs of Staff of the Army, Navy and Air Force, Commandants of the Marine Corps and Coast Guards, and a few distinguished officers. A religious group will then be received including the Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden, who will deliver the invocation at the Capitol, and Mrs. Pruden, Rabbi and Mrs. Samuel Thurman and the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of the Washington Diocese.

That will conclude a small part of the reception, leaving several thousand officials and committee members still to go down the line.

At a press conference held yesterday, Mrs. Helm, White House secretary, said the National Gallery of Art is an ideal place for such a reception. Guests can be arranged in groups in the various galleries beforehand, she explained, thus avoiding confusion and waste of time. White House aides in charge of ushering in guests, will undoubtedly be reinforced with extra aides for the occasion.

Refreshments will be served as at White House receptions.

What They'll Wear

When the President and Mrs. Truman and the Vice President and Mrs. Truitt arrive tomorrow at the west entrance of the National Gallery of Art, they will be received by the staff of the gallery. The President will be dressed in the striped trousers, cutaway coat and tall silk hat which he will also wear for the inaugural ceremony at the Capitol.

Pages have been written about the costumes to be worn by Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman during the Inauguration, and descriptions are now down to wraps, bags, shoes and jewels.

Mrs. Truman will wear a mink cape in the evenings, but Miss Truman is not sure which wrap she will choose. As for jewels, no description has been given out. Nor have flowers been mentioned.

Word has been received, however, that orchids from Mexico were flown up yesterday, including Mrs. Truman's favorite dark purple orchids and some pale lavender orchids the color of Margaret's ball gown. On the same plane from Mexico were 10,000 gardenias, a gift of the President of Mexico, to be distributed at the Inaugural Ball.

A small black satin evening bag encrusted with brilliants will be carried by Mrs. Truman to the ball, but Margaret has not selected her bag for the evening. With her ball gown Mrs. Truman will wear black satin slippers and Miss Truman will wear "Margaret pink" slippers to match her "Margaret pink" dress. To avoid rumors of an engagement, Margaret is going to the ball with her family.

At some future date Mrs. Truman will present to the Smithsonian Institute the gray lame dress which she will wear at the inaugural reception tomorrow. In answer to questions, it was stressed yesterday by Mrs. Helm that none of the gowns or accessories worn by the First Lady and Miss Truman are gifts of firms.

Guests of Trumans

Members of the family and friends of the President and Mrs. Truman who are visiting at Blair-Lee House for the Inauguration, include J. Vivian Truman, brother of the President; his daughter, Miss Martha Ann Truman, and Miss Mary Truman, sister of the President, all of Grandview, Mo.

Also two brothers of Mrs. Truman, Frank G. Wallace and George Wallace of Independence, and their two wives, and Miss Nelle Noland and Miss Ethel Noland, elderly cousins of the President, who "live across the street" in Independence.

Other guests of the President and Mrs. Truman are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Truman, he's a nephew of the President; Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wallace of Denver, Colo., brother and sister-in-law of Mrs. Truman, and their two children, Marian Wallace, 11, and David Wallace, 14. Mrs. Roy Davis Hornbuckle and Mrs. Talbot Romine, friends of the First Family, complete the list of Inaugural guests at Blair-Lee House.

Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. David W. Wallace, resides permanently in Washington. She will be on hand for some of the inaugural activities, but her drive to the Capitol tomorrow will depend largely on the weather.

Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman will attend together a reception to be given today by Comdr. and Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo at 2110 S st. The reception is in honor of the President and Mrs. Truman, and will be attended by members of the family who are here for the Inauguration.

Arriving Today

Governor and Mrs. Okey L. Patteson of West Virginia are to arrive in town this mornihg at 8:15 o'clock. They will be at the Mayflower Hotel today and tomorrow for the Inaugural activities. The Governor was inaugurated last Monday, January 17.

THE First Daughter of the Land acted as mistress of ceremonies in a March of Dimes appeal on behalf of the Women's Division, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, yesterday. Participating in the broadcast, which emanated from the East Conference Room in the White House, were (left to right) Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"; Actress Shirley Temple and her actor-husband, John Agar; Miss Margaret Truman and Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine

Time for an Urgent Message

Miss Truman Airs March of Dimes Plea

By Genevieve Reynolds

Surrounded by Missouri relatives, friends, authors and movie stars, Miss Margaret Truman yesterday urged support of the annual March of Dimes Fight Against Infantile Paralysis. She made her appeal in memory of Franklin D. Roosevelt from the White House East Conference Room over the Mutual Broadcasting System.

"We were inspired to start this fight against infantile paralysis by our late, great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt," explained the President's daughter, who interrupted the inaugural week activities to participate in the March of Dimes program. "He triumphed over the disease himself and knew what it meant to all others who had infantile paralysis."

'We Finish What We Start'

In a quiet, well-modulated voice, Miss Truman emphasized, "We are a Nation of people who do not ignore those who are in trouble—and we always finish what we have started."

Senator Margaret Chase Smith dashed into the White House coatless from Capitol Hill to participate in the broadcast, along with Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn"; Actress Shirley Temple, and her husband, John Agar. While she participated in the appeal for the 1949 March of Dimes, a taxicab waited outside to whiz Senator Smith back to the Senate for the vote confirming Dean Acheson as Secretary of State.

Pointing out that the New England region had been spared luckily from an infantile paralysis epidemic thus far, Senator Smith said that if the disease should strike that region, the New England chapters would need assistance of national funds.

"We must get ready to aid every child or adult who comes down with infantile paralysis, regardless of race, color, creed or age," declared the Maine Senator. "That means raising a great deal more money this year—two thirds more, it is estimated than in 1948. I believe the American people are going to do it," she added.

Shirley Describes Epidemic

Shirley Temple, who wore a two-piece black wool suit, trimmed with large gold buttons and a black velvet beret, recalled that her daughter Lina Susan, will be a year old on January 30, the birthday of Franklin D. Roosevelt, who established the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Then she told of the fear that struck the heart of every mother and father during the paralysis epidemic in California last year.

Youthful John Agar recalled that there were 68 iron lung cases in the Los Angeles Hospital at the same time last year. He reminded the audience that the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., had very little left in its epidemic aid fund.

Margaret Truman wore a black dress, a two-strand pearl necklace with matching pearl earrings. Her hair seemed to be newly waved.

Mrs. Truman turned out for her daughter's broadcast in an electric blue dress, perky black felt hat adorned with two saucy-looking blackbirds. As she stopped to shake hands, she smilingly quipped, "Excuse the left hand. I'm saving my right one."

Among the Executive family's relatives attending the broadcast were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wallace of Denver, Colo.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace—Mrs. Truman's brothers and their wives; the President's sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman—all of Missouri. Then there were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stevenson, also of Missouri.

Diplomatic Fete At Blair House Slated Jan. 24

A DIPLOMATIC reception will be held at Blair House on Monday, January 24. The President and Mrs. Truman will receive Ambassadors, Ministers and Charge d'Affaires and their wives at 5 o'clock. Guests will number approximately 150.

Because of repairs on the White House the annual diplomatic reception was not planned for this year. Around 1000 guests usually attend this elaborate function, but because of limited space at Blair House, the reception on Monday will be confined to chiefs of diplomatic missions and their wives.

It will be the first time since they have been at the Blair House that the President and his family have had an opportunity to receive the Diplomatic Corps. A number of new Ambassadors and Ministers who have been accredited since last summer will attend the reception.

Today the President, Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman will attend a reception to be given by the Governor of Missouri and Mrs. Forrest Smith in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel from 5 to 8 o'clock. Earlier in the afternoon Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman will attend a reception given by Comdr. and Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo at 2110 S st.

The Electors' Dinner, to be held at the Mayflower Hotel this evening, will be attended by the President, Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman, and later the President and his family will attend the gala concert at the National Guard Armory.

The Inaugural Ball at the National Guard Armory Friday evening will be attended by the President, Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman.

The President, Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman will attend a reception in their honor Friday given by the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder at the Wardman Park Hotel. Later in the evening Mrs. Truman will drop in at the inaugural reception and ball to be given for the Vice President under the auspices of the Kentucky Society of Washington at the Shoreham Hotel from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Mrs. Truman No Problem To Designer

By Norma Lanum

IF ALL HER customers were like Mrs. Truman, dress designer Mme. Caudulla Agasta would have a much easier job.

"She stands absolutely like a statue," says Mme. Agasta who has just completed three gowns and a hat for Mrs. Truman's inauguration wardrobe. What's more, the First Lady relies almost entirely on her dressmakers' choice of fabrics and styles.

Mme. Agasta has been designing and making clothes for Mrs. Truman ever since the President was sworn in. "I know what she likes and the styles that best suit her," says the designer.

Mrs. Truman is a "very conservative" buyer, too, Mme. Agasta reports. "She always asks the price. Even if she buys a feather that costs $1.50, she asks the price." A great many of the First Lady's clothes are ready made and then altered by Mme. Agasta.

For the Inauguration the Sicily born, Washington designer made Mrs. Truman a light blue moire faille dinner dress that she wore last evening at the Truman-Barkley dinner; a silk oriental brocade dinner dress for the Gala this evening, and a tailored afternoon dress of iridescent black and grey silk—with a "moonstone straw cloth" hat for the Inauguration ceremonies.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Eager to Marry, Man Is Angered Because Girl's Family Skeptically Challenges Him To Establish Proof That He Can Support Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been dating Becky for quite some time and we have made plans to be married, but it seems her brothers and sisters have a lot to say about it and want her to wait until they see if I shall make enough money to support her.

I firmly believe that if two persons are in love, they don't take that kind of advice from anybody. If they do, their love isn't very strong, I feel. It irritates me that anyone should have the gall to even mention "support" to someone in love. They make it sound like a business proposition.

Where I come from, if people want to get married they do just that; they don't wait until the man in the case becomes a banker or gets a big job at $500 a month. They get married and work for security, just like I'm going to have to do; and as millions of others do.

Likens Girl's Family to FBI

I WORK for a reputable firm and in my opinion I make enough to support a wife; and tell me what other person's opinion counts, except the female who would be my wife? Is it any business of Becky's folks how much I make? And is Becky very much in love with me, having let them delay our marriage two months or more? She won't listen to me; but who should she listen to?

Should I just sit in my office and let things slide until the FBI—by which I mean the family bureau of interference—makes up its mind to give us the "go" signal to be married? I would much appreciate your views of the matter, because right now I'm disgusted. I don't want to marry a girl who is dominated by brothers and sisters. What do you think of my attitude? F. J.

Man's Dudgeon Very Revealing

DEAR F. J.: I've gone over your letter carefully, correcting spelling, punctuation and sentence structure; and if you have an office job giving access to a typewriter, it must be at the foot of the ladder, yielding apprentice wages for apprentice effort,—as file clerk, receptionist or errand boy, maybe?

Your fighting reaction to sensible questions raised by Becky's family is quite revealing. It signifies that your hold on money is very precarious—that your purse is flat most of the time, that you have no funds saved, and that prospects of job advancement or salary increase can't be seen from here. Also it means that your character is immature, unstable and chip-on-the-shoulder.

In brief, your attitude is red-faced defensive. You are heaping criticism on your questioners because you've got no solid, reassuring or dependably forwardlooking answer to give them.

Is He Shiftless or War-Distorted?

YOU SAY, from where you come from people don't think of money when they love and wish to marry, they just go ahead, etc., —a feeble argument that won't pass muster. Either you are talking through your hat, or referring defensively to shiftless example prevalent in your personal background, in your circle of relatives and their cronies. It's certainly not characteristic of "salt of the earth" folk in any community.

Or maybe your idea that it's customary to marry in haste at nature's urge, without counting the cost, was built up during the war years, when, due to war hysteria, unbridled lads and excited maidens all over the country were leaping emptyhanded into matrimony, as if they felt it's now or never to sample the moot consolations of living together.

This berserk behavior was a flighty departure from the historic approach to lawful marriage. In general, in every century, tribe and nation—from primitive pagan to Christian civilized,—the practise has been, and is, to "screen" a girl's suitor, one way or another, in quest of proof, satisfactory to her kinsmen or guardians, that he is worthy to possess her. He may be weighed in terms of ability to provide, or other tests of manly quality or suitability,—so you see your squawk isn't justified.

For advice, either settle down or meet the test, prepared to spend years at the task if necessary, or give up Becky—who shows good sense in heeding her family's views. M. H.

MARQUIS CHILDS (center) pauses to say "hello" to Mrs. Gifford Pinchot (left) and Mrs. Richard Harkness before discussing the United Nations at a luncheon of the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace. The club met yesterday in the Willard Hotel with Mrs. Harkness, president, presiding at the meeting. Mrs. Pinchot, who has recently returned from Greece, gave her impressions of the American program in the Balkan country

'See Stalin,' He Urged Baruch

Writer Tells of Tip by Gromyko To 'Solve' Deadlock on Atom

A new objective of United States foreign policy should be to rebuild confidence in the United Nations Organization, Marquis Childs, Washington Post columnist, told members of the Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace at the organization's luncheon yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Speaking on the same program, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, widow of the former Pennsylvania Governor and a member of the WACLP, declared that the one choice left the United States to make its aid to Greece effective is to decide what kind of a revolution we are going to support in that country—"a Roosevelt democratic or Stalin Communist revolution."

Mr. Childs went on to explain that confidence in the U. N. had been undermined by circumventing the organization in the aid to Greece and Turkey program and in the Dutch-Indonesian war crisis.

"In terms of Communistic aggression it was essential that we aid Greece and Turkey," he said. "But by-passing the U. N., I believe did great harm."

The Dutch could have presented the Indonesian case to the U. N. and could have convinced the world that strong measures were needed in Indonesia, according to Childs, who described the present status of the U. N. as a "stepchild, sick and ailing."

A Chance Passed?

He expressed belief that if Bernard Baruch's Plan for the International Control of Atomic Energy had been accepted by the U. N., it would have led to a lessening of national sovereignty and toward world government. Then he reminded his audience that Dean Acheson had worked on the Atomic Energy Control Plan.

Mr. Childs revealed that Bernard Baruch and Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko became personal friends while working on the Atomic Energy Plan in the U. N. He said that Gromyko came to Baruch and told him: "I'm afraid we won't adopt it. Go yourself to the great marshal."

Mr. Childs said that Baruch didn't go to Stalin, and commented, "that 100-millionth chance might have worked . . . only way one can get an agreement with the Russians is from the top."

Asked whether he thought a World Revolution or World War III were imminent, he replied that the immediate tactics of the Soviet Union are peace "meanwhile pushing the same strategy of infiltration, sabotage and revolution around the world, which it has never abandoned."

4-Billion Budget Seen

Mr. Childs predicted that Congress would appropriate a 4½-billion-dollar budget for E.C.A. plus money for the North Atlantic Pact.

Back from a recent trip to Greece, Mrs. Pinchot said that country is so small that it should serve as a laboratory experiment to see how our policies are working.

She suggested three questions the United States should ask itself in regard to the Greek aid program, viz., (1) Have we succeeded in our objective?; (2) If we have not succeeded, why?; (3) Were the terms of the problem impossible for success?

"Main mistakes of our Government are not economic," asserted Mrs. Pinchot. "We do not have the reactionary policies that Communists try to make us believe.

"Our first mistake," she continued was to set up a coalition government. What happened? We picked a man to head the government but did not give him the authority to handle the situation. The Greek government's power now is about the equivalent of a debating society."

Contending that she talked with Greeks in all walks of life, Mrs. Pinchot said they are beginning to doubt the permanancy of U. S. A. She quoted one man as saying, "If you're going to pull out, do it now. I know the Communists will kill me, but I'd like to get my wife and children out."

Another U. S. A. mistake, according to Mrs. Pinchot, "was failure to deal with communism from a positive approach."

Representatives Chase Going Woodhouse and Reva Beck Bosone represented the distaff members of Congress, who were invited as honor guests.

Among the congressional wives present were Mrs. Ralph Flanders, wife of the Vermont Senator; Mrs. Carl Hinshaw of California; Mrs. John Taber of New York, and Mrs. Rolla McMillen of Illinois.

Special guests included Mrs. Tom Burke, Mrs. Francis Russell, Dr. Sara Wanbaugh, plebescite expert; Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Powell Shorb, Mrs. Paul Bartlett and Mrs. Roy North.

Area chairman for Suburban Hospital's membership and purchasing fund campaign will be entertained at a luncheon today at the home of Mrs. Paul Banfield, chairman of the residential committee for the campaign. The hostess resides at Landon School for Boys in Bethesda, Md., where her husband is headmaster.

Vice chairmen for the campaign are Mrs. Benjamin A. Powell, Mrs. J. William Herron and Mrs. Charles Hayes. Others who will attend the luncheon include Mrs. Hugo Huettig, Mrs. A. R. Guest, Mrs. Marvin Blakeney, jr., Mrs. Errett C. Albritton, Mrs. O'Neal Johnson, Mrs. Fred Strine, Mrs. Walter Gardner, Mrs. William Sharon Farr, Mrs. Edward M. Conklin, jr., Mrs. Gilbert V. Hartley and Mrs. Sam Bogley.

The hospital's fund campaign, the goal of which is $75,000, will open on January 31.

Ask Anne — About Wedding Reception

I expect to have a wedding reception at home for my daughter who will soon be married. The wedding (informal) will be at church. Just what will the reception call for? A wedding cake, how large? A punch, just how much to make and how do you do it? Probably have as many as 50 present. Would it be necessary to have anything else? Some of the guests may be from a distance of about 100 miles. In fact the groom himself is. Would like everything as simple as possible. W. R. T.

Serving wedding cake and punch would keep the reception as simple as is possible. Or, with this you could also have salted nuts, mints and dainty open-faced sandwiches. If you are having the cake made the bakery or caterer will be able to tell you just how large it should be to serve 50 guests. If you are making it yourself, increasing your white cake recipe so that you use 10 to 12 cups of flour (other ingredients should be increased proportionately) should make a cake which would be large enough.

The following recipe for fruit juice punch will serve approximately 60 small glasses. If you wish to allow for more than one serving per guest increase it accordingly.

Fruit Juice Punch

2 quarts strong tea
1½ to 2 quarts grape juice
1 2/3 cups strained lemon juice
6 bottles (9 oz.) ginger ale
4 cups strained orange juice
2 quarts water
1 cup sugar

Mix tea, fruit juices, water and sugar and chill 12 hours. Just before serving, add ginger ale and pour over large piece of ice in punch bowl.

We stored all our belongings in a garage for a year. Now, upon taking them out, we find that all our phonograph records are warped in the worst way. Is there any way we can get them to flatten out? Most of the records are old favorites which would be hard to replace. C. M. D.

Slightly warped records can sometimes be straightened by laying them, a few at a time, on a flat surface which is a little warm. Such a surface might be the top of your radio, if it is absolutely flat. Place only two or three records on it at one time and put a heavy book on top of them for a weight. It may take several days to see improvement. A record shop tells me that when their records become warped from standing on end in albums in the summer, they lay the albums flat in a pile and the summer heat is enough to soften them and bring them back to their original flatness.

Which types of furniture polish or wax may be used as a new coat over previously waxed furniture? Does old wax have to be removed, and if so, how? Would like to use scratch covering polish on furniture which has had several coats of brand of water-wax. M. M. I.

Any one of the paste, liquid polishing, or water waxes can be applied over the wax coats on already waxed furniture. The old wax does not have to be removed before applying a new coat unless soil has become imbedded in the original wax coat, giving the furniture a dull appearance.

The scratch-covering polish will penetrate into the cracks better if the wax has first been removed from the surface. This can be done easily by using a cleaning and polishing wax which comes in liquid form. Apply this wax to the furniture with a clean soft cloth, continuing to rub while it is wet until the surface is clean.

Quite recently, my husband and I painted our apartment light green. We want to buy a mauve or rust rug and have the slipcover for the couch forest green. I am unable to decide what color to get for the other chair and wonder if you could help me? I rather imagine a light shade would be necessary as the building is located so that we never get the sun. Q. B. S.

With either mauve or rust rug you could use a pure yellow for the other chair. This would be an especially happy choice since wour room is dark. If you should choose a rust rug, the chair could be a lighter shade of rust, possibly almost orange. However, if you chose this color, take care not to get a shade which will make the rug color appear greyish or dirty.

A friend gave me some baby food which is four years old. This fod has been put up in tins, (by well known companies), and I wonder if it is still usable after being in the tins so long. I thought just maybe the foods had absorbed some of the materials from the tins by now. Q. B. S.

If the cans are not bulged at either end and the tin has not been broken at any place, the food in the cans is in the same condition it was when placed in the can and is absolutely safe to use.

The NEW Chase & Sanborn
A New Secret Blend —"Selecciones"

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

'Why, Mommy, Why?'

Along somewhere in the third to the fifth year, most children develop a persistent question-asking tendency. No matter what parents say or ask, the response is "Why?" Gradually this may become irritating and we are likely to get a little "hard boiled" in our answers. At the same time we often feel that we ought to try to answer the questions asked.

What then, should we do when our Johnnies and Marys begin the "Why" technique?

First of all, it is important to recognize that there are at least two different kinds of questions. One is that through which children are trying to learn about everything around them. It grows out of their natural curiosity.

But there is also another kind of "Why?" This sort of "Why?" is based on the child's feeling of need to have mother or father concentrate on him.

Insofar as possible, the first kind of question should be answered as directly as possible. Ignoring the youngster or becoming impatient with him will make him feel that it isn't a good idea to try to find out about things. Though it takes time, that time is well spent.

If it seems clear that question-asking isn't really seeking answers but attention, this should not be ignored, but taken as a sign that the child needs more of us, that we are letting him down in some way. In either case then, the questions which children ask should be treated seriously.

Strike Keeps Pupils Home In Montreal

Montreal, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Almost 80,000 Montreal pupils had a holiday today as a strike of 2000 lay teachers against the Montreal Catholic School Commission for wage increases of $200 to $300 yearly entered its second day.

Pupils paraded in front of one school singing and carrying placards.

Yesterday the pupils attended classes conducted by members of church orders.

Neither side indicated any willingness to yield. One member of the school commission charged that pickets were preventing children from entering some schools, and termed this action a federal offense because it interfered with the pupils' legal obligation to attend school.

PUC Holds Hearing On H-2 Bus Routing

District Public Utilities Commission held an informal conference yesterday on a request by residents of the two blocks of Van Ness st. nw. between 38th st. and Reno rd. for rerouting of the Capital Transit Co. H-2 bus line in that area.

Three residents of the area appeared on behalf of a move to place the line one block south of Yan Ness st. for the two-block area. The transit company has opposed the request.

2 Trial Boards Authorized For Fire Dept.

District Commissioners yesterday approved a reorganization of the Fire Department trial board into two boards—one to handle complaints by department members and the other to hear charges made by civilians. The plan is similar to one adopted for the Police Department.

The Fire Trial Board will consist of three members of the department with the rank of captain or above who will try cases involving "infractions of discipline or improper procedure arising from reports made by members of the department."

A special trial board consisting of two Fire Department captains or higher ranking officers plus an attorney chosen from panels prepared by the District Bar Association and the Washington Bar Association will hear all other complaints.

The present trial board consisting of two department officials and an assistant corporation counsel will be abolished when the two new boards are sworn in.

McCarran Files Bill to Permit Wire Tapping

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday introduced a bill sponsored by Attorney General Tom C. Clark to permit wire tapping in espionage cases.

McCarran said the measure will be given careful consideration so the "exceedingly sacred rights of citizens" are protected even as the espionage laws are made stronger.

The bill, proposed by Clark last week, also would permit the Army, Navy and FBI access to telegrams, radio and telephone communications.

It also would provide penalties for failure to report the loss, theft or unlawful transmission of defense information, such as code books.

Wheat Parley Delegate Is Named by Argentina

Buenos Aires, Jan. 18 (AP).—Argentina today designated Juan Scarpati, economic counselor of the embassy in Washington, as her delegate at the International Wheat Conference.

The conference opens in Washington January 26.

This step indicated that Argentina is at least willing to discuss with other countries the long-standing dispute over grain prices in the world market. She heretofore has avoided all discussion concerning limitation of production and price control on a world basis.

On the Town

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Everyone has his troubles, like as not. Take 21-year-old Rosanna Mala, dark-eyed, half-Italian, half-Spanish songstress:

Rosanna Mala

"Already I'm in this country nine months," she'll tell you, the words a flawless spate of English, "and I can't write a line of your language."

It's tough, you'll agree—and then promptly forget about it (which you're supposed to do) when the tall chanteuse strolls over to Haydn Wood's piano and bursts birdlike into song in a pleasing contralto.

'Twas thus the Salle de Champagne (Cairo Hotel) made its debut the other night amid the popping of champagne bottles. Through the well-attended opening, corks were ricocheting over the large, plush room with the abandon of a blinded hornet. And coowner Josh Levin was moaning quietly to himself.

The lights were too bright, he sighed and the new canopy hadn't arrived, and the "singing models," of which Miss Mala is one, hadn't learned the ropes thoroughly as yet.

Levin, a New Yorker, explained that the stylish and personable models were flitting around the room for a purpose. Not only do they make with the music, but they also serve wines and brandies to the customers. Some were finding it a bit of a task to pry the cork off a champagne bottle.

He referred to the Salle as "that wine joint"—a description not without merit since its alcoholic offerings are limited to brandy and, you guessed it, wine. However, he promises that the club "will grow on you" as it did on him. (He's a converted Scotch-and-water man.)

And well it might. As Washington nighteries go, it's very much an innovation. Where once was the Club Cairo is now a large drawing room, with paintings by Washington artists hung from the walls and the softest of couches and loveseats to relax in.

To say nothing of the bevy of "singing models," which is a chapter in itself.

The scene: Michel of the violin, of the colorful garb and the swashbuckling appearance, gazes moodily into the dimly lit restaurant as he prepares to play.

The conversation (overheard): Girl to swain, dreamily—"Michel hasn't been getting enough sleep lately." The boy's reply, as he begins on the soup—"Aw, he's counting the house."

A minute later (as Michel played an intricate tune): Girl to boy—"Look how strong his hands are." The boy put down his soup spoon to inspect his own hands monutely.

Another minute later (when the gentle murmur of chatting diners seemed unappreciative to the lass): "He hates it that the people don't listen to him, really." No reply.

And finally, when Michel had finished and departed to a round of applause from the crowded room, she said—"There he goes again! Well, he can't stay back there forever." Rejoined the boy—"Your soup's getting cold."

CRIES FROM THE TOWN-ER . . . The Water Gate Inn is set for the Inauguration inundation . . . dinner will be served the day long . . . extra crews of help have been alerted . . . Managed Wimpy Hall has upped his grocery requisition . . . Over at the Raleigh Hotel's Pall Mall Room, Freddy Castro's authentic Latin music is on tap . . . the Cuban-American vocalist opened Monday . . . he plays the sax and clarinet and, speaking of versatility, about 25 Cuban rythm instruments as well, including the Donkey's Teeth and the Cencerro—better known as a cowbell . . . Lynn Reynolds, young Neptune Room pianist, does murals and portraits for the fun of it when she isn't tapping the keyboard.

New Congress Press Gallery Committee Named

A new five-member standing committee of correspondents to run the congressional press galleries for the next two years was elected yesterday by ballots of 347 gallery members.

The new members of the committee, and their vote totals, are:

William S. White, New York Times, 325; William F. Arbogast, Associated Press, 324; David Botter, Dallas News, 254; Philip W. Dodd, Chicago Tribune, 250, and Robert D. Byrnes, Hartford Courant, 215.

They were elected from a field of seven candidates. They take office Thursday.

Retail Cost of Farm Products Shows 5% Drop in 6 Months

A drop of slightly more than 5 per cent in the retail cost of the family "market basket" of farm products in the last six months was reported by the Agriculture Department yesterday.

By "market basket" the department means an amount of farm products equal to the average annual purchases by a family of three average consumers in the 1935-1939 period.

The average retail cost of a year's supply of these products for such a family was $708 last July, the highest figure on record. The cost was reported less than $675 by the end of the year.

This drop reflected lower prices for meats, fruits, vegetables and dairy products. Retail prices of bakery and other cereal products remained about the same. Prices of poultry and eggs were up about 1 per cent.

The price received by the farmer for this market basket was estimated at $343 late in the year, compared with a record $382 last January.

Thus the farm price declined 10 per cent from the record peak of last year, while retail prices dropped 5 per cent.

The farmers' share of the consumer's dollar spent for farm food products averaged about 51 cents late in the year. Earlier in the year it averaged 54 cents. In prewar years it averaged about 40 cents.

Graham Will Address Elks Club Luncheon

Philip L. Graham, publisher of The Washington Post, will speak today at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Washington Elks Club to be held at 12:15 in the clubhouse, 919 H st. nw.

The meeting, to observe National Printing Week and the inauguration of President Truman, will include a musical program by Frank Cordovilla, pianist. Guy Caponetto, exalted ruler of the Washington Elks, will preside.

Other members of The Washing-Post who will attend the luncheon include Alexander F. Jones, assistant to the publisher; Herbert Ellis-ton, editor, and James Russell Wiggins, managing editor.

One on the Aisle—

Sorry, Cousins; 'Annie' Regrets

By Richard L. Coe

NOW THAT THE family's started to gather for Uncle's big day, some of the brothers and sisters are wondering what's with theater on the home place.

Well, folks, the nearest we've got a live theater is 40 miles away in Baltimore, where the show is "Annie Get Your Gun," a swell musical that couldn't play dear old Washington for two reasons.

In the first place, the actors and the writers have said they won't play the home place unless they can play to everybody, and since everybody in the family, specifically Negroes, isn't allowed to enter the theater here, they'll not be with us on Uncle's big day.

In the second place, even if our one-time playhouse, the National, did admit everybody, it couldn't play "Annie Get Your Gun" because there are four rather important youngsters in the cast and it's agin the law for such small fry to play the home place on the "living" stage. Children under 14 are prohibited from appearing on the professional stage in the National Capital.

Of course the family's always had qualms about youngsters appearing on stage—loss of schooling and all that. But childhood careers certainly didn't hurt people like Helen Hayes, Ruth Gordon, Eddie Cantor, George M. Cohan and even that member of the family who's with us right now for tonight's Inaugural Gala, George Jessel. The theater and movie people, in the last 30 years, have been mighty careful of the kiddies (such as Sisters Margaret O'Brien and Shirley Temple, both visiting) and even when they're on the road, schooling is a must for small fry actors.

Berlin's the Real Star

The kiddies over at Baltimore's "Annie Get Your Gun" have their school books with 'em and they sure mean a lot to the show. All told, Uncle's place is in a bad way theatrically speaking.

Baltimore's "Annie" is a very nice show and, having seen Ethel Merman's New York compnay and this touring version within a few days, I've made the belated discovery that the real star of this popular hit is Irving Berlin.

Brother Irving has written some great hits in his day, but he's piled a pack of them into "Annie." You've all sung "There's No Business Like Show Business," "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun," "They Say It's Wonderful," "The Girl That I Marry," "Anything You Can Do," "Doin' What Comes Naturally" and "The Sun in the Morning." It's a big, long show, and though the two weeks' run is pretty solidly booked you may be able to slip in on the way home.

Billie Worth's Good

Sister Ethel's part is played by a pert gal named Billie Worth, who stepped into the juicy part Mary Martin had been playing in Chicago last year. She's got a swell voice for the Berlin tunes and a style of her own. Usually she doesn't try to imitate Ethel, which is a smart idea because it's good enough a part to go it on its own, and Billie's good.

The story's about Annie Oakley, Buffalo Bill's Little Sure Shot, who could shoot the fuzz off a peach. It follows part of Annie's real life story and her romance with the next-best marksman of the day, Frank Butler, who was her husband. My dad used to live across the street from the Butlers in Nutley, N. J., and we still have some baby clothes Annie knitted for my brother. Dad always used to tell us how Annie's hair had turned white overnight after she'd been in a railroad wreck while still a young woman.

It's all very folksy and good fun, and if you're missing it here you can still pick it up in New York, England or Australia, where it's just as big a hit.

In New York, England and Australia, you see, anybody can see a show if they've got the price of admission. There's no silly business about keeping people out if they've got the wrong color skin or a mole on their left elbow. We talk big, here on Uncle's home lot, but when you come right down to it, it doesn't mean a heck of a lot. It makes us look like oafs, and I guess we are.

It's too bad to have to bring all this up about our laws and lack of laws at a family reunion like this, but that's the way family reunions are.

TONIGHT'S BIG PARTY will have none of that nonsense. There'll be Negro entertainers on the stage and in the audience for the Inaugural Gala at the Armory. You'll see Lucy Monroe and Dorothy Maynor, Abbott and Costello and Lionel Hampton's band, Phil Spitalny's all-girl outfit and Lena Horne. You'll hear opera's Lawrence Tibbett and Ferruccio Tagliavani, the movies' Jane Powell, radio's Alice Faye and "Mr. Faye," Phil Harris.

Gene Kelly will dance, Jessel and Melvyn Douglas will emcee. Gene Autry, Joan Davis, Mistress O'Brien, Lum 'n' Abner, Sally and Tony De Marco, Jane Froman, Phil Regan, Dick Haymes, Edgar Bergen, Charlie and Mortimer Snerd, all the service bands and onr own chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America and the National Symphony Orchestra.

Yup, it's going to be quite a shindig, but after the bigtime show Uncle's home place will be back to its usual thin diet, vaudeville and burlesque.

OPENING TODAY—It's one of those "world premieres" today for the Warner, where the film version of that popular stage comedy, "John Loves Mary," arrives with Ronald Reagan and Patricia Neal in the title roles

Goldwyn Breaks With Producers In Movie Fight

Hollywood, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Movie Producer Samuel Goldwyn today broke relations with major motion picture studios on the grounds that he and other independents were fighting for survival.

Goldwyn said he gave formal notice of withdrawal to Eric Johnston's Motion Picture Association of America and the Association of Motion Picture Producers.

He said he did so in order to give his undivided support to the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, headed by Ellis Arnall, former Georgia Governor.

"The fight of the independent producers for an open market is a fight for survival," Goldwyn said. "There must be a return to real free enterprise in our industry—an opportunity for all producers to show their pictures on a fair and nondiscriminatory basis."

The independents have indorsed the Government's efforts to divorce studios from their theater chains.

Sweden Not Expected To Join Alliance Soon

Stockholm, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Minister of Foreign Affairs Osten Under today virtually ruled out any chance of early Swedish participation in the proposed North Atlantic defense alliance.

He told Parliament that Sweden would devote its efforts to working out a Scandinavian defense union with Denmark and Norway.

Sweden, he added, will go along with such a union only on condition it will "stay outside the great blocs of the world and that it will, in case of conflict, try to stay outside of war."

Increase in Turkey Supply Is Promised

Although Thanksgiving is more than 10 months away, the Agriculture Department came up with the promise yesterday that turkeys will be fore plentiful this year than last.

Cheaper feed and high prices for turkeys is the cause.

Only 1 D. C. Man Will Be Drafted In Next 10 Weeks

Only one District man will be drafted into the Army in the next 10 weeks.

This was revealed yesterday when the District Draft Board after clearing 9 men for induction announced the January quota of 50 was filled and said that all further drafting here would be halted for February and March. However one of the nine District men, Thomas W. Downs, 1606 Massachusetts ave. se., was rejected.

Frank D. Norton, deputy District draft director said the vacancy would be filled sometime before the end of this month by one of Washington's 44,000 registrants.

Inducted yesterday were: J. H. Seymour, 5470 30th st. nw., Joseph F. Butler, 1773 Lanier pl. nw.; Otto Bradley, 518 Lamont st. nw.; Charles W. E. Harris, 1631 3d st. nw.; Jack V. Braskamp, 1101 New Hampshire ave. nw.; Dennis Fribbly, 1129 6th st. ne.; A. J. Harrod 1355 Emerson st. ne., and J. B. Britt, 47 R st. ne.

22 Private School Bus Operators Called to Court

Montgomery County Police at Bethesda yesterday issued summonses to 22 private school bus operators for failure to have their buses painted orange and black as required by State law.

Capt. Ernest Thompson, commanding the Bethesda substation, said that the four private schools involved repeatedly had been requested to comply with the law but had failed to do so.

Schools involved are the Georgetown Preparatory School, the Landon School for Boys, Honeywell Foundation and the Longfellow School for Boys.

The 22 drivers were directed to appear at 9:30 a. m. Monday in Bethesda Police Court.

Parents of children attending the schools had complained to the police, Thompson said. Drivers cannot be prosecuted for failing to stop for a school bus unless the bus is marked in compliance with the law, he said.

Georgia House Saves Measure To Unmask Klan

Atlanta, Jan. 18 (AP).—The House defeated today by 78 to 72 a move to kill a bill aimed at unmasking the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia.

The test vote came on a motion to postpone indefinitely debate on the measure, which would prohibit the wearing of masks or hoods at either public or private meetings. Debate will begin Thursday.

Representative John Greer, the author, said a number of House members told him they had received calls from Klansmen asking that the proposed legislation be killed.

Several Representatives, supporters of Gov. Herman Talmadge and his white supremacy platform, said in debate it was not a measure affecting the State's welfare.

Convict Flees Camp

A State-wide broadcast for a convicted arsonist who was said to have walked away from State Camp 30 was sent out last night by Fairfax County (Va.) police. The convict, Jonas Shirley, 25, whose home is listed as Ferrum, Franklin County, Va., was discovered missing at 6:45 p. m.

According to Fairfax police, Shirley had served only 10 months of a six-year sentence for arson. The camp is located 1½ miles west of Fairfax.

Building Owners Elect Washingtonian

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 18 (AP).—Arthur G. Eilers of Baltimore today was elected president of the Middle Atlantic Conference of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

Eilers succeeds Harold L. Carson of Trenton. Other officers elected at the close of the conference's annual meeting at the Seaview Country Club include Marshall Davis of Washington, D. C., vice president.

Barkley Feels 'Sad' as He Ends Senate Service

Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) last night closed 36 years of congressional service with the remark that "it feels pretty sad."

Barkley on Thursday will take the oath as Vice President of the United States. As Vice President he will be the Senate's presiding officer, but he will not qualify as a member of that body.

Before the Senate adjourned yesterday members of both parties paid him tribute and shook his hand as he sat at the reddish, wooden desk which he so often pounded in the heat of debate.

Perhaps the most fitting tribute came from Senator Robert A. Taft (Ohio), who as a Republican leader often fought Barkley hip and thigh in legislative battle. The fights, Taft recalled, never went beyond the Senate floor and quickly faded before Barkley's sense of humor.

Dewey Wishes President Health, Divine Guidance

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey congratulated President Truman yesterday on his forthcoming inauguration and wished him "good health and divine guidance."

Dewey's message said:

"My heartiest congratulations to you upon your inauguration as President of the United States. I join with all other Americans in wishing you good health and divine guidance in your every labor for the peace of the world and the welfare of the people of our country. Sincerely yours, Thomas E. Dewey."

Mr. Truman replied:

"My dear Governor Dewey: I deeply appreciate your message of congratulations. Good wishes such as yours strengthen me for the tasks that lie ahead. My warmest thanks go to you for this renewed evidence of the firmness of the foundation on which our democracy rests. With all good wishes, sincerely yours, Harry S. Truman."

Seventh Marriage Annulled, Co-ed Is a Miss Again

Morgantown, W. Va., Jan. 18 (AP).—A 37-year-old West Virginia University coed had her maiden name back today, after her seventh marriage was annulled in Monongalia Circuit Court.

The decree by Circuit Judge Charles G. Baker restored to the defendant her maiden name of Miss Lillian Nicewarner, who court attaches said, was a resident of Childress, Tex.

Samuel L. McIlveen of Armbrust, Pa., husband No. 7 and now a member of the Ohio State University faculty, asked for the annulment of the ground his wife failed to conform fully to the terms of a Utah divorce she received from Roy Grainger on April 25, 1939.

Big, Little Inch Pipelines Blaze Like Giant Torch

Batesville, Ind., Jan. 18 (AP).—Big Inch and Little Inch pipelines burst into a giant torch tonight, destroying two pumping stations 1½ miles east of Batesville.

Police Chief Richard Lichter of Batesville said he had no reports of anyone hurt.

"I have no idea how the fire started," Lichter said. "I went out to investigate and was forced back by the heat. The Big Inch and Little Inch lines run only a few feet apart at that point and undoubtedly both of them are burning.

"The light is so bright you can sit on your front porch in Batesville and read a newspaper," Lichter asserted.

Captured Silver Of Hohenzollerns Goes to Germany

Baltimore, Jan. 18 (AP).—Baltimore's 175th Infantry Regiment learned today that the $800,000 worth of Hohenzollern silver it catpured in Germany is on the way back there.

There was surprise and some anger among officers of the regiment, which was part of the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division in the battle for Europe.

Bing Going to CBS

Hollywood, Jan. 18 (AP).—The Columbia Broadcasting System announced tonight that Bing Crosby will be heard over CBS next fall. The singer has been heard this season on the American Broadcasting Co. network.

Europe Capital Proposed

Paris, Jan. 18 (AP).—Britain today proposed Strasbourg, Alsatian town overlooking the Rhine on the Franco-German frontier, as the future capital of a European federation.

Hall to Quit State Post

Richmond, Va., Jan. 18 (AP).—John Hopkins Hall, jr., State Commissioner of Labor, today advised Governor Tuck he had made application for retirement. He is 70 years old and has served 23 years.

Five Hurt as Car Crashes on Way To Inauguration

Baltimore, Jan. 18 (AP).—Three New Yorkers and two hitchhiking youths from Pennsylvania were injured today when they were tossed from an automobile which overturned eight times, Essex police reported.

Police said the accident happened on Route 40 in suburban Baltimore. They reported the three New Yorkers were on their way to President Truman's inauguration.

In critical condition were Robert Kelly, 24, and a woman identified only as "Lillian" of New York City. Both suffered fractured skulls.

James Gavins, 45, New York, and Leonard Tippett, 17, Marchus Hook, Pa., were aadmitted to city hospitals with lacerations and for observation.

Daniel Collins, 18, of Linwood, Pa., was released after treatment.

Police said the youths told them they were running away from home. They said they had been picked up in Pennsylvania by Kelly, who was driving the car.

The youths said the car went out of control on a curve and overturned, strewing the five occupants for 100 yards along the highway.

Railroad Smoke Violations Show Big Drop Here

Major improvement in removal of smoke violations by local railroaders was reported yesterday by Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, engineer commissioner.

The official said that during the war 15 per cent of all checks by District workers showed violations, but during the first six months of the current fiscal year, the figure was down to 5.9 per cent.

General Young said the improvement was due partly to the conversion by railroad lines from steam to diesel engines and also by addition of mechanical devices. At the roundhouse, the wartime percentage of 80 dropped to 1.6 during the six-month period ended last month.

Hoffman Delays Plan to Divert Shipping Again

ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman today postponed for another 60 days his plan to divert some recovery shipping to foreign lines if American shipowners refuse to lower their rates.

He told a meeting of congressional, shipping and union leaders that the effective date of his order had been moved up from February 1 to April 1 because American ships are needed in the recovery program even though their charges are higher than foreign rates.

Hoffman had said originally that he would throw more business to foreign shippers after January 1 because United States vessels were charging more. Later, after sharp protests, he moved the deadline up to February 1.

Sound Equipment Being Installed For 'Sally's' Trial

Special sound reproduction equipment is being installed in the District Court in preparation for the treason trial of Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars beginning on January 24.

More than 40 sets of earphones are being installed in order to reproduce for jury, judge, court officers, lawyers, defendant and the press, transcriptions of wartime broadcasts from Berlin said to have been made by Miss Gillars, who is now in District Jail.

All available jury panels are being kept in readiness, in case jr., is prosecuting, and James J. they are needed. In addition, there is statutory provision for calling an emergency venire if necessary.

The trial is before Judge Edward M. Curran. John M. Kelley, Laughlin will defend.

Mrs. Chambers Is Cleared of Reckless Driving

Baltimore, Jan. 18 (AP).—A reckless driving charge against Mrs. Whittaker Chambers was dismissed today in Traffic Court.

She was involved in a fatal accident December 15 while driving from the Chambers home at Westminster, Md., to meet her husband, who was arriving from New York after an appearance there before a grand jury in connection with his disclosures about Communist spy activities.

Mrs. Chambers testified that she was driving about 25 miles an hour and did not see Maggie Thomas, 70-year-old pedestrian, before the impact. It was dark at the time.

The defendant was absolved of manslaughter charge previously.

Al Williams Crashes, But Walks From Plane

New Bern, N. C., Jan. 18 (AP).—Al Williams, veteran speed flier, crashed at Simmons-Knott Airport here today but walked away from his plane unhurt.

Benny Baxter, operator of the airport, said Williams' plane, a converted Navy F8F Bearcat, burned.

Degree for Eisenhower

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 18 (U.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, will receive the University of Cincinnati's highest honorary degree—doctor of laws—at the Founder's Day celebration April 22, it was announced today.

RIVERWOOD
Overlooking Potomac

If you can afford to live in a high-priced home why not have it in the most exclusive and highly restricted neighborhood in this entire area. Two often lovely homes are cheapened by the surrounding neighborhood. We are ready to show four new ramblers in this close-in beautiful Riverwood, 15 minutes from Washington, overlooking Georgetown, the reservoir, Cathedral and river. Exceptionally large wooded lots containing from ½ acre up. The prices of these ramblers range from $39,500 to $52,000 containing 3 bedrooms and all of the latest equipment throughout. We shall not attempt to describe them in detail as we prefer you inspect them for yourself. If you are interested in exceptional value with all the charm and delightful view to which your money entitles you, please come up and see us.

To reach—Come over Key Bridge, follow Lee highway to Military rd. right to Loreom lane, right 3 blocks to next road, left over the hill.

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

Bartender Makes Buck; Artist Draws Stares

Dick Reid of our Art Department walked into a downtown taproom the other night and immediately sensed that everybody in the place was looking at him.

With mounting discomfort, he felt he had walked miles before he found a seat.

He tried to think of some reason why people should be staring at him so, but made no progress until a fellow walked up and said:

"I hope you realize, Mac, that you cost me a dollar."

"I did?" asked Dick. "How?"

"I bet the bartender that the next guy to come through the door would be wearing a white shirt."

NOTHING STOPS IRWIN

Marie Manning of 711 N. Wayne st., Arlington, Va., stopped me cold with:

"Whenever cartoonists draw a figure which represents a certain year, they confine themselves to either the brand new year, which is a little infant, or the old year, which is an old man with a scythe.

"But nobody ever draws a middle-aged year, and I've been wondering what he'd look like. Do you suppose Cartoonist Irwin could help?"

Cartoonist Irwin's drawing, as usual, is better than 10,000 words.

HE MADE IT

A local church asks visitors to fill out "attendance cards"—and one such card furnishes the basis for an interesting story.

There was a day, back in March of 1948, when an unassuming fellow dropped in to worship, and in the due course of events filled out a card.

In the space which asked "Do you intend to stay in Washington permanently?" he wrote: "Until January 20, 1949—and maybe longer."

The name and address were: "Harry Truman, 1600 Pennsylvania ave. nw."

Although this is a true story, and the attendance card is proudly preserved in the church's files, I can't mention the name of the church.

The reason is that the White House secretariat is unwilling to grant "clearance" for the story of the President's little joke.

I guess there's a security risk involved. Or maybe it has something to do with foreign policy. I dunno—these things are too deep for me.

HOW NOW BROWN COW?

Government information handouts contain a lot of useful facts. Every once in a while they also contain a good laugh. Like the recent one which was headed:

"United States Department of Agriculture Urges Higher Milk Production Per Cow in 1949."

George B. Travis of the National Association of Food Chains wonders when we'll get a reply from a spokesman for the cows.

THE INEVITABLE PUN

When President Truman got his invitation to the inauguration, he wrote across its corner, "Weather permitting, I hope to be present."

Jean Broulik of 3850 39th st. nw. tells me that "Little Ole Harry" missed his cue. He should have written:

"Weather permitting, I hope to be President."

I was guilty of passing along a somewhat similar pun during my undergraduate days at Ohio State.

As usual, there was a bitter argument in progress between one of the student organizations and the president of the university, George Rightmire.

I was doing a program for WOSU, and quoted the student leader as saying:

"We'll stick to our principles. I'd rather be right than Rightmire."

If the dean of men thought the broadcast was funny, I certainly got no clew of it in our subsequent discussions.

VAGRANT T'OUGHT

These January price reductions almost give me the feeling that there's still some hope for this cockeyed economy of ours.

"HOSPITALITY" IS WORD WE SHOULD ALL LEARN

The Inaugural Hospitality Committee is enjoying a good laugh over the incident at Union Station yesterday.

As one of the ladies of the committee drove up, a policeman greeted her with:

"You're the one, aren't you?"

"The one what?" asked the lady, somewhat puzzled.

"The one that I was to arrange a special parking place for," replied the cop. "The one from the Hostility Committee."

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—In the trial of the 12 Communist leaders here, United States Attorney McGohey, will have at least 40 witnesses, including former Red officials, who will reveal the party operations down to the smallest cell. McGohey's reply to the defense's First Amendment plea will be that the speeches involved were secret ones to which there could be no answers—that these weren't speeches in the free market of ideas . . . Mrs. John McCormick has finished the first draft of her late husband's biography; "I Hear You Calling Me."

The General Motors show in New York will cost the company more than one million dollars . . . Gary Davis, the world citizen whose French visa was to have expired this month, had a meeting with President Auriol, who assured him that he may remain in France as long as he wishes. This halted the proceedings of shipping the young American expatriate to Luxembourg.

A preliminary show business poll showed Charles Boyer, in "Red Gloves," the favorite to win the Donaldson Award as the best male performance of the season . . . Charles Luckman has returned to Cambridge for recuperation from the ailment which hospitalized him in Chicago.

At the Alan Campbell-Tom Heggen cocktail party last week, John O'Hara, the author, spurned all alcoholic drinks and sipped only soft drinks. He said that he's on the wagon—and that now he never thinks of liquor any more, that it's out of his mind entirely. "How long have you been on the wagon?" O'Hara was asked. He said: "One year, 13½ days."

In explaining his flop in Paris, Noel Coward says: "My mistake was in speaking French too perfectly—which made the Paris critics look upon me as just another French actor."

Tallulah Bankhead is writing an article about Ethel Barrymore for Collier's . . . Miss Bankhead was at the Stork Club Friday night, and ordered some milk. "Serve it to me in a whisky bottle," she told the waiter, "so people won't think I'm ill."

In his new play, "A Detective Story," Sidney Kingsley enlisted the help of Judge Sam Leibowitz in writing the speech given by a certain lawyer to a desk sergeant in a police station. Leibowitz recited the speech he used to make.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Records Urged for Fund

By Drew Pearson

January is a month when we have come to think of inaugurating Presidents and of raising money for children who cannot walk.

PEARSON

In addition to children, newspapermen became so long accustomed to a President who also could not walk, that they have been a little slow to realize that the President of the United States can now drop in on his friends on Capitol Hill without the least effort, and can amble in and out of the Capitol's entrances as fast as anyone else when he takes the oath of office.

For so many years was it necessary to build long, slanting ramps up inclines in order to avoid steps for the President, that people in Washington became quite accustomed to it.

And during all the years Franklin Roosevelt was in office, the newspapers, including those hostile to him, said almost nothing about his infirmity.

Only on his birthday was his infirmity brought home to the public, and then in order to help others stricken with his dread affliction.

An Idea for Truman

Today this column recalls these facts because as Franklin Roosevelt's birthday again approaches, it is only natural that the money-raising effort which he inspired should somewhat diminish. Therefore here is an idea which may help revitalize it—an idea by which one President can help the work started by another.

Harry Truman not only can walk, but he can play the piano. And despite the advice of his daughter to stick to his few favorite tunes, a lot of people think he plays rather well.

Only a very few of the American people, however, have had the pleasure of hearing him. He has played at the dinners of his Oklahoma oil heiress friend, Mrs. Perle Mesta. He has played at the Press Club, and in the privacy of the White House.

And while it might not be dignified for the President to play before a large audience, there could be nothing wrong with Harry Truman's making two or three records for the American people for the benefit of Roosevelt's infantile paralysis fund.

For instance, if the President should make a phonograph record of his old favorites, "Missouri Waltz" and "Anchors Aweigh," I predict they would sell in the millions.

Furthermore, if daughter Margaret sang to her father's accompaniment, more millions would accumulate for the infantile paralysis fund.

Offers Cooperation

To test out the idea, I put it before Fred Alhert, head of ASCAP (American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers). Alhert has written a good many songs himself, including two which sold over two million—"I'll Get By," and Bing Crosby's theme song, "Where the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day." So he can be considered something of an authority on music. Furthermore, as head of ASCAP he is something of an authority on the sale of records.

Fred Alhert's reaction was immediate. He volunteered to obtain a waiver of all royalty rights from the authors of Harry Truman's favorites, and offered to pay a good share of the cost of making the records. The only reason he didn't offer to pay all the cost was because he feared the sale would run into so many millions it would bankrupt ASCAP.

Anyway, there is an idea—an idea by which one President can help cure the affliction which struck another President. The records could be dedicated: "To a crippled President who helped a crippled Nation—from Harry Truman."

Inaugural-Go-Round

Out-of-town detectives imported to augment the Secret Service are being paid $30 a day during the four-day inaugural. Five hundred of them, drafted from neighboring cities, wear a secret insignia to identify themselves to each other . . . Former Senator Curley Brooks of Illinois, Republican, who arranged the money for the inaugural, now can't get more than two seats for himself. He thought he was making the preparations for the Republicans. Now he is defeated, and the Democrats are spending the money. No wonder Senators are calling the Inauguration "Curley Brooks' wake" . . . Ten thousand Dewey buttons turned up in Washington this week, distributed by the Freedom Train. What happened was that the American Heritage Foundation was able to get salvaged Dewey buttons at bargain rates and covered them over with freedom slogans . . . Oklahoma's Flying L quartet, which is bringing its barber shop harmony to the inaugural, usually sings without accompaniment. But the boys are trying to arrange a special accompanist for inaugural night—a pianist by the name of Harry Truman.
